Hoover at Panama.
Coolidge Knows Costs.
About "Honest" Gamblers.
Poor Toad—Like Bears.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

ON HIS trip to South America Mr. Hoover stops first at the Panama Canal. As an engineer interested in such magnificent work, soon to be president and responsible for the canal's safety, Mr. Hoover will have his mind on our inadequate national protection.

Enemy flying machines, in a few hours, could destroy the locks and make the canal useless. And only fighting planes can protect that canal.

TALKING to the American Legion in Washington, last night, President Coolidge emphasized in gratifying fashion the importance of defense preparation.

He made clear his belief that it is not necessary to be defenseless to prove yourself a friend of peace.

"If European countries had neglected their defenses it is probable that war could have come much sooner.

"All human experience seems to demonstrate that a country which makes reasonable preparations for defense is less likely to be subject to a hostile attack and less likely to suffer a violation of its rights which might lead to war.

"This is the prevailing attitude of the United States and one which I believe should constantly determine its actions. * * * It is our duty to ourselves and to the cause of civilization to the preservation of domestic tranquility, to our orderly and lawful relations with foreign people to maintain an adequate army and navy."

ADD to that wise utterance a sufficient number of fighting airplanes, submarines and fast cruisers, and the country will have peace of mind. President Coolidge, wise economist, knows that no expense equals the cost of lack of preparation when war comes. Said he last night:

"It is sometimes represented that this country made a profit out of the war. Nothing could be farther from the truth.

"Up to the present time, our own net costs, after allowing for our foreign debt-expectations, are about $36,500,000,000. To retire the balance of our public debt will require about $7,000,000,000 in interest. Our veterans bureau and allied expenses are already running at over $500,000,000 a year. * * * Our final cost will run well toward $100,000,000,000 or half the entire wealth of the country when we entered the conflict."

SEVEN thousand million dollars for interest on our debt, more than twenty-three times what it cost to build the Panama Canal, and one hundred billion dollars for our total war bill.

You could get, for two per cent of that amount, absolute safety, PLUS THE RESPECT OF OTHER NATIONS.

Uncle Sam would be able to say to nations that call him "Shylock":

"Shylock or no shylock, take notice that I want peace, and can force it. If you doubt it, come and see."

TO "BE a toad and live upon the vapors of a dungeon" is not much worse than being a bear in Wall Street just now.

Think of last week's closing in "the street." Three million, two hundred and sixty-six thousand and ninety shares were sold in two hours, all records broken. The Hoover market, as it is called, ran wild, brokers swamped. . . .

And the worst of it for bears is the lack of anything in sight to stop the boom.

Four years of boom ahead of us is enough to make any bear want to jump into Mt. Aetna's crater. And heaven only knows what Herbert Hoover may invent to increase the boom.

He will spend money, you may depend on that. And wise spending is the life of prosperity.

ONE of the "big gamblers" died in New York, the other day accused of welching, murdered by another gambler.

It is customary for big gamblers to have themselves called "Honest John" or honest something else. The word honest makes it easier to rob fools.

REVELATIONS in connection with the killing of one conspicuous in the "honest" fraternity should enlighten young fools and old that squander money on gambling.

Safe deposit boxes of the murdered gambler are to be examined in search of stolen bonds and stolen jewelry, believed to have been received by him.

ONE who knows the dead man and his methods relates concerning him. He met at a prize fight a certain unfortunate young rich fool, eager to bet on one of the fighters. The actual odds were two to one.

The gambler said to the fool, "Don't bet any such crooked odds. How much do you want to bet? I'll take your money, even, no odds."

The fool bet five hundred dollars and won, from one whom he described as "one honest gambler." The gambler purposely let him win at half the real odds.

LATER that "honest gambler" took more than a half a million from the rich young fool, whose name is omitted out of sympathy for his relatives. The fool is now in the insane asylum and the "honest gambler" is in his grave, sent there by other gamblers for cheating them.

Show this to some young or old man that needs it.

WOMEN are becoming the stronger sex, physically and in other ways. Dr. Mulford, president of the medical society of New Jersey, says so. Light

JUMPS 75 FEET

Business worries, his family believes, today prompted Walter Taylor, 48, 548 California avenue, Avalon, to leap from the rail of Birmingham Avenue Bridge, Avalon. Injuries suffered in a 75-foot leap may prove fatal. A motorist, who said he was driving over the span when he saw the man leap, summoned police, who found the unconscious body.

PROBE OIL TRIAL "FIX" CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Robert V. Caldwell, a tentative juror in the perjury trial of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, told Justice Jennings Bailey in District of Columbia Supreme Court today that he was approached yesterday by a man who asked him whether he would "hold out" in the case.

Caldwell said the man had given the name of "McGinnis."

The defense challenged Caldwell as a juror and he was removed from the box.

The trial of Stewart is the last of the oil scandal court cases growing out of the naval oil leases

ALVIN STAR WILL JOIN CAST OF WELFARE SHOW

Further assurance of success for the great all-star midnight entertainment to be given at the Stanley Theater Friday night, November 23, by the Variety Club of Pittsburgh, under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, for the benefit of the Welfare Fund, was received today. Laine Blair, star of "The Golden Dawn," which comes to the Alvin next week, telegraphed from Cleveland:

"This would not be a Golden Dawn if Laine Blair did not harken to the call for help at a midnight show, the proceeds of which are to relieve suffering humanity. I will get a real thrill out of participation in the performance."

The Variety Club and the Sun-Telegraph are to be congratulated for having inaugur-

RELIEF IN RADIO JAM PROMISED

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—After receiving complaints from Pittsburgh and other centers on the operation of the new wave lengths which went into effect for the first time yesterday, officials of the Federal Radio Commission today said that reports would be ordered in each case with a view of studying local reception conditions under the new order and proper changes made when necessary.

Members of the commission stated it was to be expected that a number of difficulties would follow the new wave length allocation, particularly since some of the stations would be unable to arrive at their proper allocation at the start.

The complaints from Pittsburgh were confined more to station WCAE. A report of the situation in Pittsburgh will be requested shortly it was stated.

"Maybe you get them—maybe you don't!"

This about sums up the radio situation in Pittsburgh so far as its four stations are concerned in the wholesale revision of wave lengths throughout the country by the Federal Radio Commission. Radio fans today are faced with an almost hopeless jumble of squeals from the dial points whence formerly came entertaining music and interesting programs.

Nobody has any trouble getting KDKA, station officials and listeners agree.

There seems to be no trouble getting WJAS, WCAE and KQV, collectively, but separating them is out of the question unless the receiving set is equipped with improved condensers.

OLD SETS HURT MOST

The most radical change in radio reception here is noticed in picking up WCAE, operating on a wave length of 245.8 meters. Its new position at the bottom of the dial is confusing to operators of even the newer type sets, while many owners of older sets are able to pick up only a series of howls and noises where they should be getting programs from three different stations.

WCAE, WJAS and KQV have been assigned wave lengths close together. WJAS is operating on 232.4 meters and KQV divides time with WCSO, Springfield, O., on 217.3 meters.

WJAS fares probably better than the other two low wave-length stations, their power having been increased from 500 to 1,000 watts

Cut Antenna to Relieve Radio Jumble

"Shorten your antenna."

This advice was given today by radio engineers appealed to in an effort to remedy, if possible, the jumble in local radio reception which followed yesterday's revision of wave lengths throughout the country.

The trouble, generally, lies in the fact that sets are not attuned to selective reception, according to radio experts. This can be remedied by cutting down the length of aerials and careful tuning on the dials, it is declared. Long antennae pick up the powerful nearby stations which drown out studios operating with less power, it is said.

Fifty feet is the proper length of aerial for the present-day set, local dealers said.

BIG RUSH GRIPS ARMISTICE MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The stock exchange opened today with one of the biggest early rushes in its history, with the public plunging in madly to participate in the demonstration by the bull forces.

In the first half hour 770,000 shares were traded in, with 500,000 shares transacted in the first fifteen minutes.

The rails also showed strength. The ticker showed:

10,000 shares N. Y. Central at 182, up ¼; 10,000 shares National Cash Register at 101, up 1½; 20,000 shares American Can at 115½, up 2; 20,000 shares Mexican Seaboard at 52, up 1½; Canadian Pacific at 237, up 3; Baltimore and Ohio at 118½ up 1; Vanadium Steel at 110; up 2; a rise of 25 points since Friday.

Profit-taking by the professionals blocked the progress of the tidal wave in the second hour, but here again the market displayed remarkable vitality in absorbing without difficulty. Montgomery Ward fell back 10 points in the process, but was not surprising in view of its spectacular 270-point jump since the first part of the year.

Vanadium, Republic Iron and Steel, Youngstown and the other little steels plunged ahead to new high price levels, Vanadium resting temporarily around 110, a 26-point leap from the low of last week.

Crane Wilbur Weds U. S. Actress Abroad

LONDON, Nov. 12—(INS.)—Crane Wilbur, English playwright, was married to Beatrice Blinn, an American, at St. Martin's register office today. The registry record described the bride as "Beatrice Edna Blinn, the divorced wife of Alfred H. Kleinberg, and an American actress."

319 LEAVE SINKING LINER

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—The British steamer Vestris, with 109 passengers and a crew of 210 aboard, was sinking 250 miles off Hampton Roads today and all took to lifeboats. At 1:25 p. m. the Japanese steamer Ohio Maru was standing by. The sea was reported moderately rough.

The nature of the Vestris' disability was not disclosed in the series of SOS messages which she dispatched during the morning. Her captain, William J. Carey, reported that her starboard decks were awash, that she had a 32 degree list, and that immediate aid was needed.

BOATS RUSHED TO SCENE

News that the passengers were being taken off and that the Japanese vessel was in a position to give aid was received by the Lamport and Holt Line, owner of the Vestris, from its Bermuda agent, nearly three hours after the ship had sent out her first SOS flashes describing her position as extremely critical.

More than a dozen vessels, including five coast guard cutters, set their courses for the scene of the ship's distress, but the Ohio Maru was apparently the first to reach the spot.

The Vestris' wireless, which had worked frantically during the late morning hours, was still in operation at 12:45 p. m.

The Vestris left New York last Saturday with a general cargo of 6,000 tons and a consignment of mail, in addition to her passengers. She was bound for Barbadoes and South American ports. Although details of her predicament were lacking, it was assumed that she ran into the severe gales that swept the Atlantic coast on Saturday night, and it was thought that her cargo might have shifted.

CUTTER TO RESCUE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Coast guard headquarters announced this afternoon that the coast guard cutter Davis expected to reach the Vestris at 3 o'clock this afternoon, Eastern time.

The Davis reported the Vestris sprung a leak and wirelessed that she was sinking. The Davis was in constant radio communication with the sinking ship which reported that she was riding at a 30 degree angle on her beam end with some of the lifeboats already lowered. The Vestris operator reported that the vessel might go under at any minute.

The coast guard destroyer Tucker was 160 miles from the Vestris and

Reward for Name Of Suicide Yarn Gossip

BUTLER, Pa., Nov. 12.—An advertisement that attracted considerable attention appeared in Saturday's issue of a Butler newspaper. It was signed by William F. Martin, Butler attorney and chairman of the Democratic county committee, and read as follows: "A reward of fifty dollars will be paid for information leading to the identification of the person or persons starting the report of my daughter having committed suicide, which report is and was maliciously false and untrue in every particular."

Mr. Martin's daughter is reported in good health.

PASTORS' PLEAS LEAD TO RAID IN HOMESTEAD

Answering the demand of Homestead clergymen that vice be cleaned from their borough, Homestead police early yesterday raided four alleged resorts, including the Rose Garden Inn, and arrested 103 men and seven girls.

Chief Michael Maroney and Capt. James Conley, who led the police, made efforts to hit still other resorts, but the big raid brought about a quick shut-down in other underworld activities.

Five alleged proprietors were fined $100 and costs each and 103 visitors $5 and costs each at hearings before Burgess J. J. Cavanaugh today. The former, charged with violating a borough ordinance, were Tony White and Samuel Stein, Rose Garden Inn, Dickson street; Chauncey Gradison, Negro, 529 Third avenue; Harry Keller, 528 Third avenue; A. H. Hunter, 221 Sixth avenue.

15,000 IN ARMISTICE PARADE

Pittsburgh today watched its largest Armistice day parade—a procession of veterans of the World War who moved along in weather reminiscent of those wet cold days in which many of them fought the last weeks of the struggle.

Ten years have trooped placidly into history since a little group of men put pen to paper in a cluttered dining car in France and all along the smoking, quaking line from Switzerland to the sea, the firing ceased.

Ten years!

Only a decade since those high times when men marched all night and fought all day and remade a world in the tortured mud of France. But how far away it seemed today—another age in another world almost—as men everywhere, thousands of them in Pittsburgh, got out uniforms that time had hallowed and memories that time had hallowed, and looked back across the years.

With hair growing a little gray around the temples and memories of Paris leave and vin rouge growing a little dim, they gathered this morning in the side streets off Fifth avenue, at least 15,000 of them; so far away it seemed an elegy for the ones they left behind.

Under lowering skies they formed up, while thousands lined the sidewalks all the way from Miltenberger street to the Sixth Street Bridge. As the first outfit turned into Fifth avenue and swung down the hill toward the gray old courthouse the rain came.

But a bugle band played "Madelon" and the marchers stepped out cheerfully. It was a gayer, more colorful line than any that has trod the avenue in the last 10 years. There were more gaudy uniforms than ever, on the bandsmen, more flags, more music. But ever there was still the pervading tone of olive drab, garb of fighting men.

TRIBUTE AT 11 O'CLOCK

At 11 o'clock—the time of tribute on the day of the armistice—the head of the parade reached the Sixth Street bridge

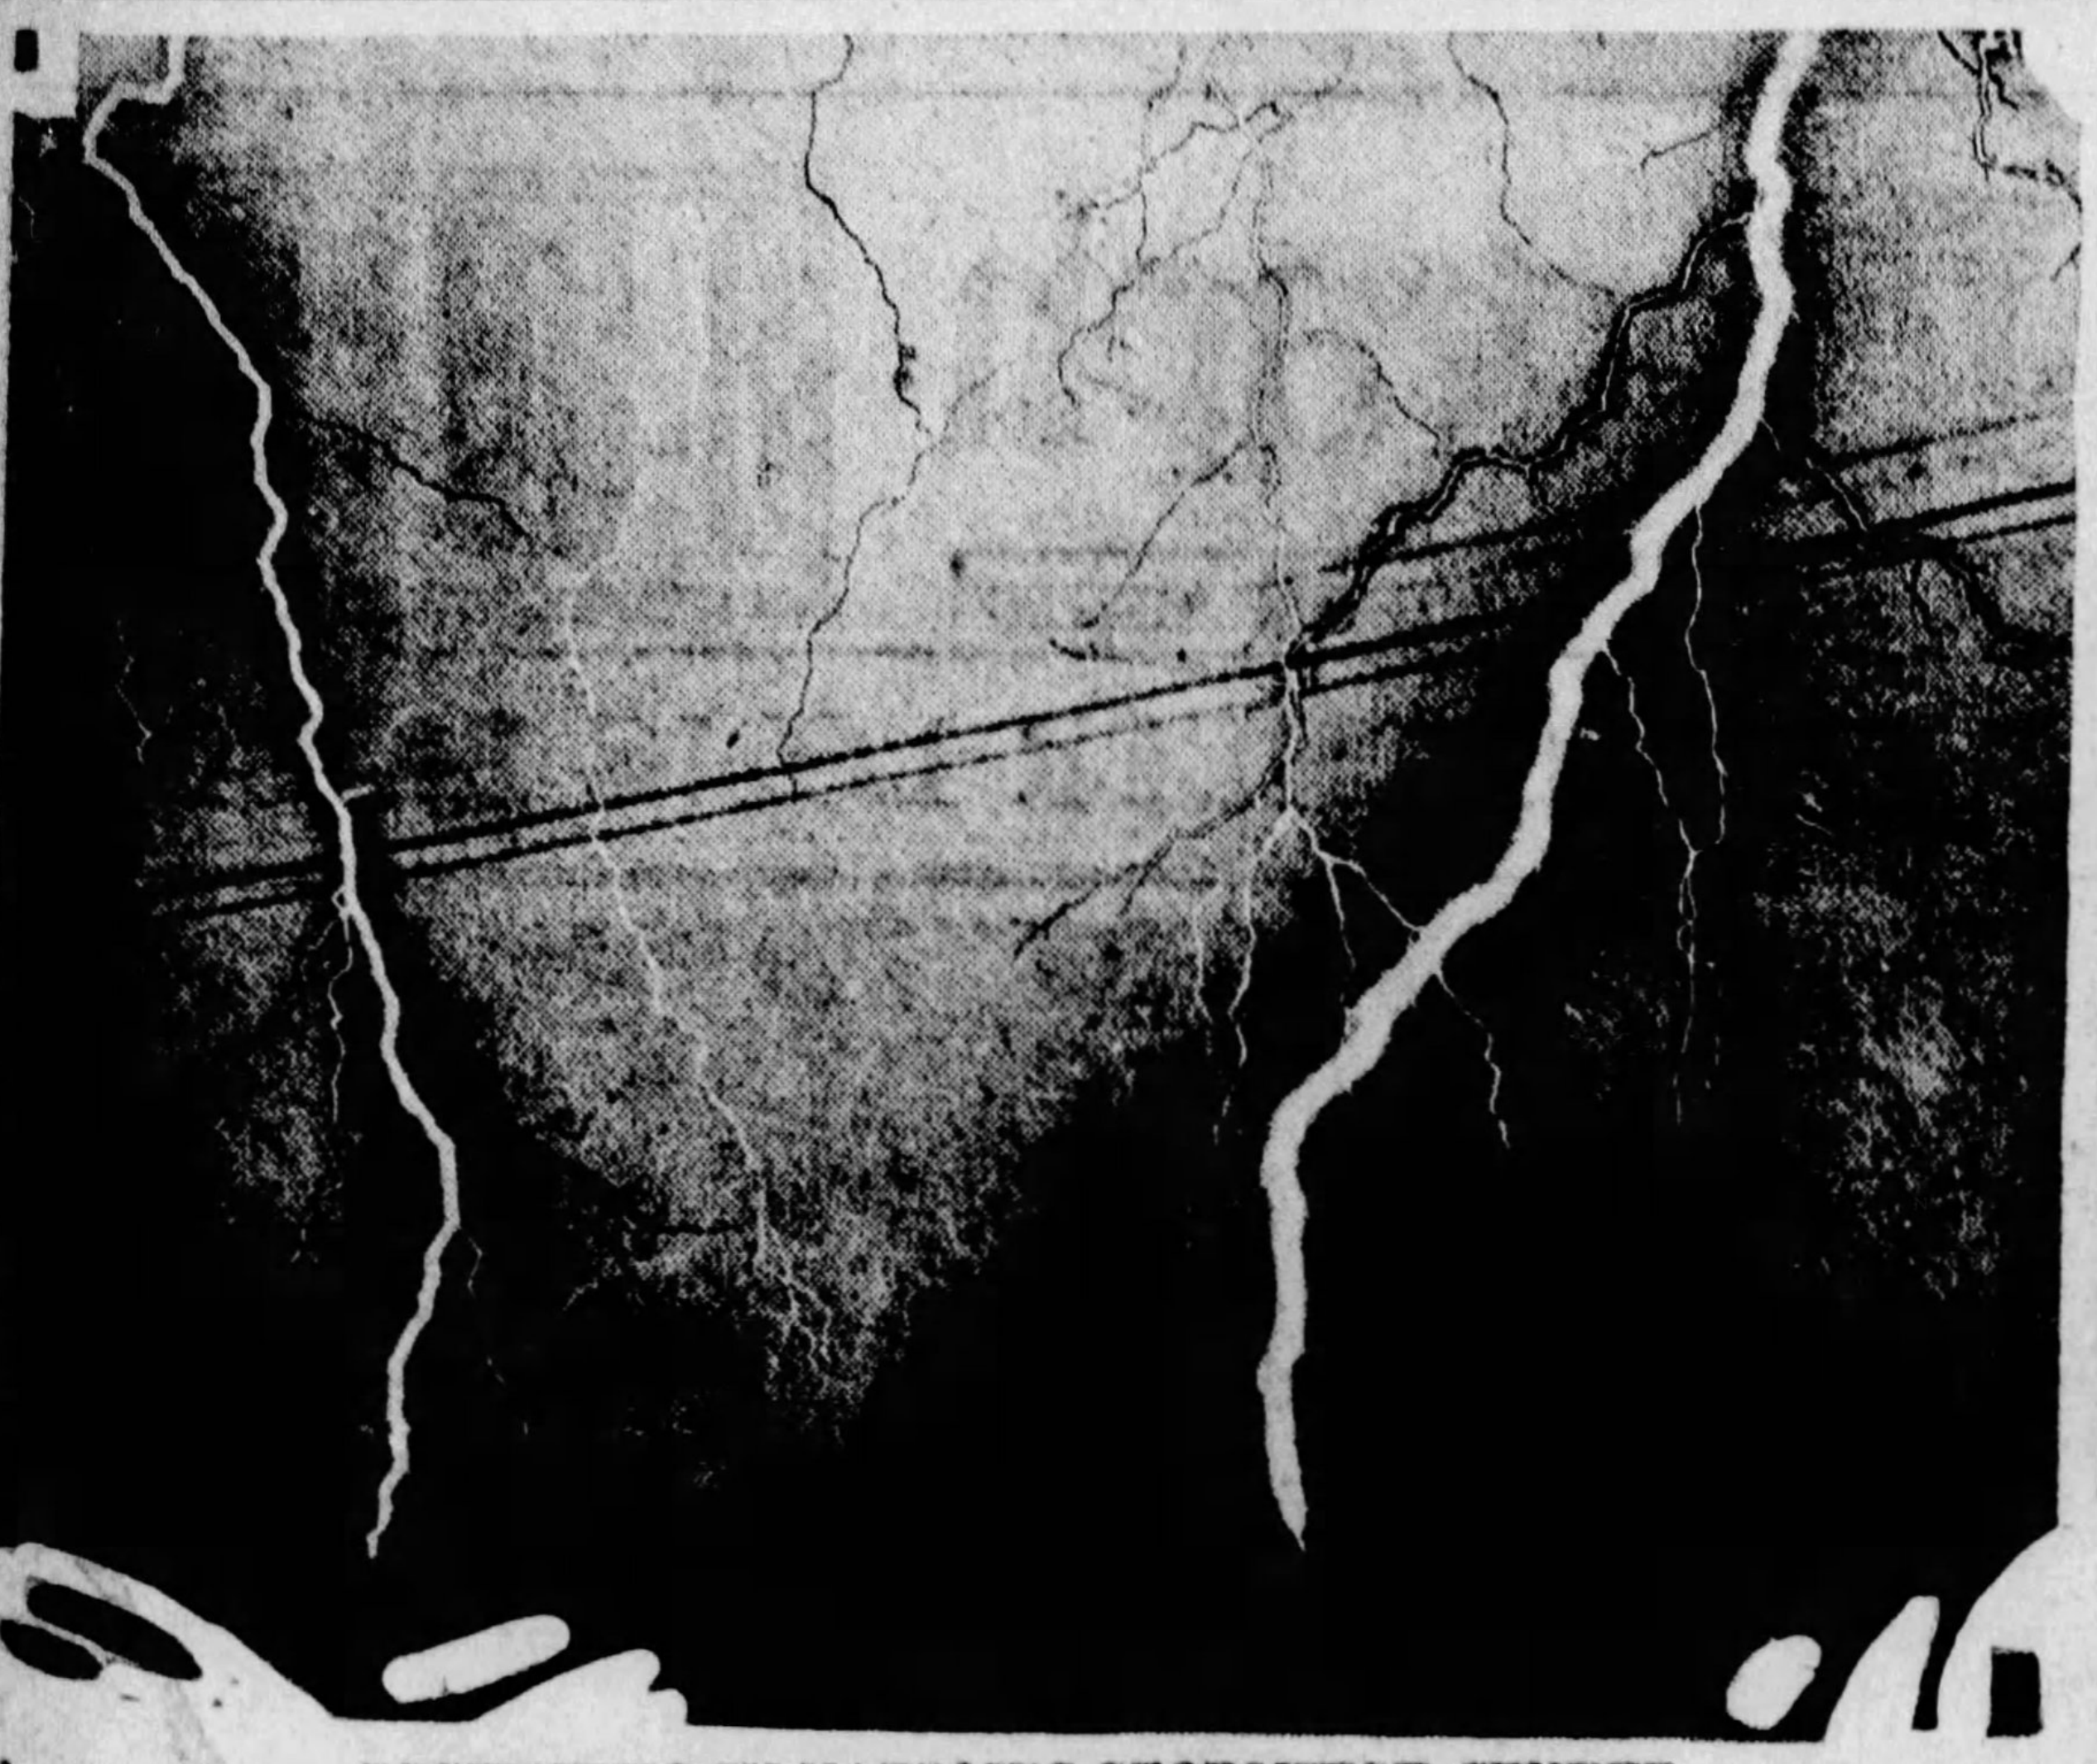
FLAG POLE BALL CRASHES ONTO PARADE SPECTATORS

Loosened by the wind, a copper ball surmounting the flagpole on top of the First National Bank Building, dropped into the crowd watching the Armistice Day parade at Fifth avenue and Wood street today. Two persons were injured.

Mrs. Margaret McCarthy, 621 Orchard avenue, Avalon, was struck on the right arm after the ball had struck David Croff, of Woodruff avenue, on the head. Croff was taken to Allegheny General Hospital and the woman to Mercy Hospital. After their injuries were dressed both went home.

SCIENCE, SEEKING KNOWLEDGE, WARS WITH LIGHTNING



LIGHTNING IN NATION'S STORMIEST CENTER

Science, seeking knowledge, wars with lightning, foe of many for centuries. Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing companies have locked with Jove in lonely Tennessee mountain fastnesses, called the stormiest center in the nation, and are spending months studying his actions. To combat lightning, they say, they first must know it intimately and time its actions and habits.

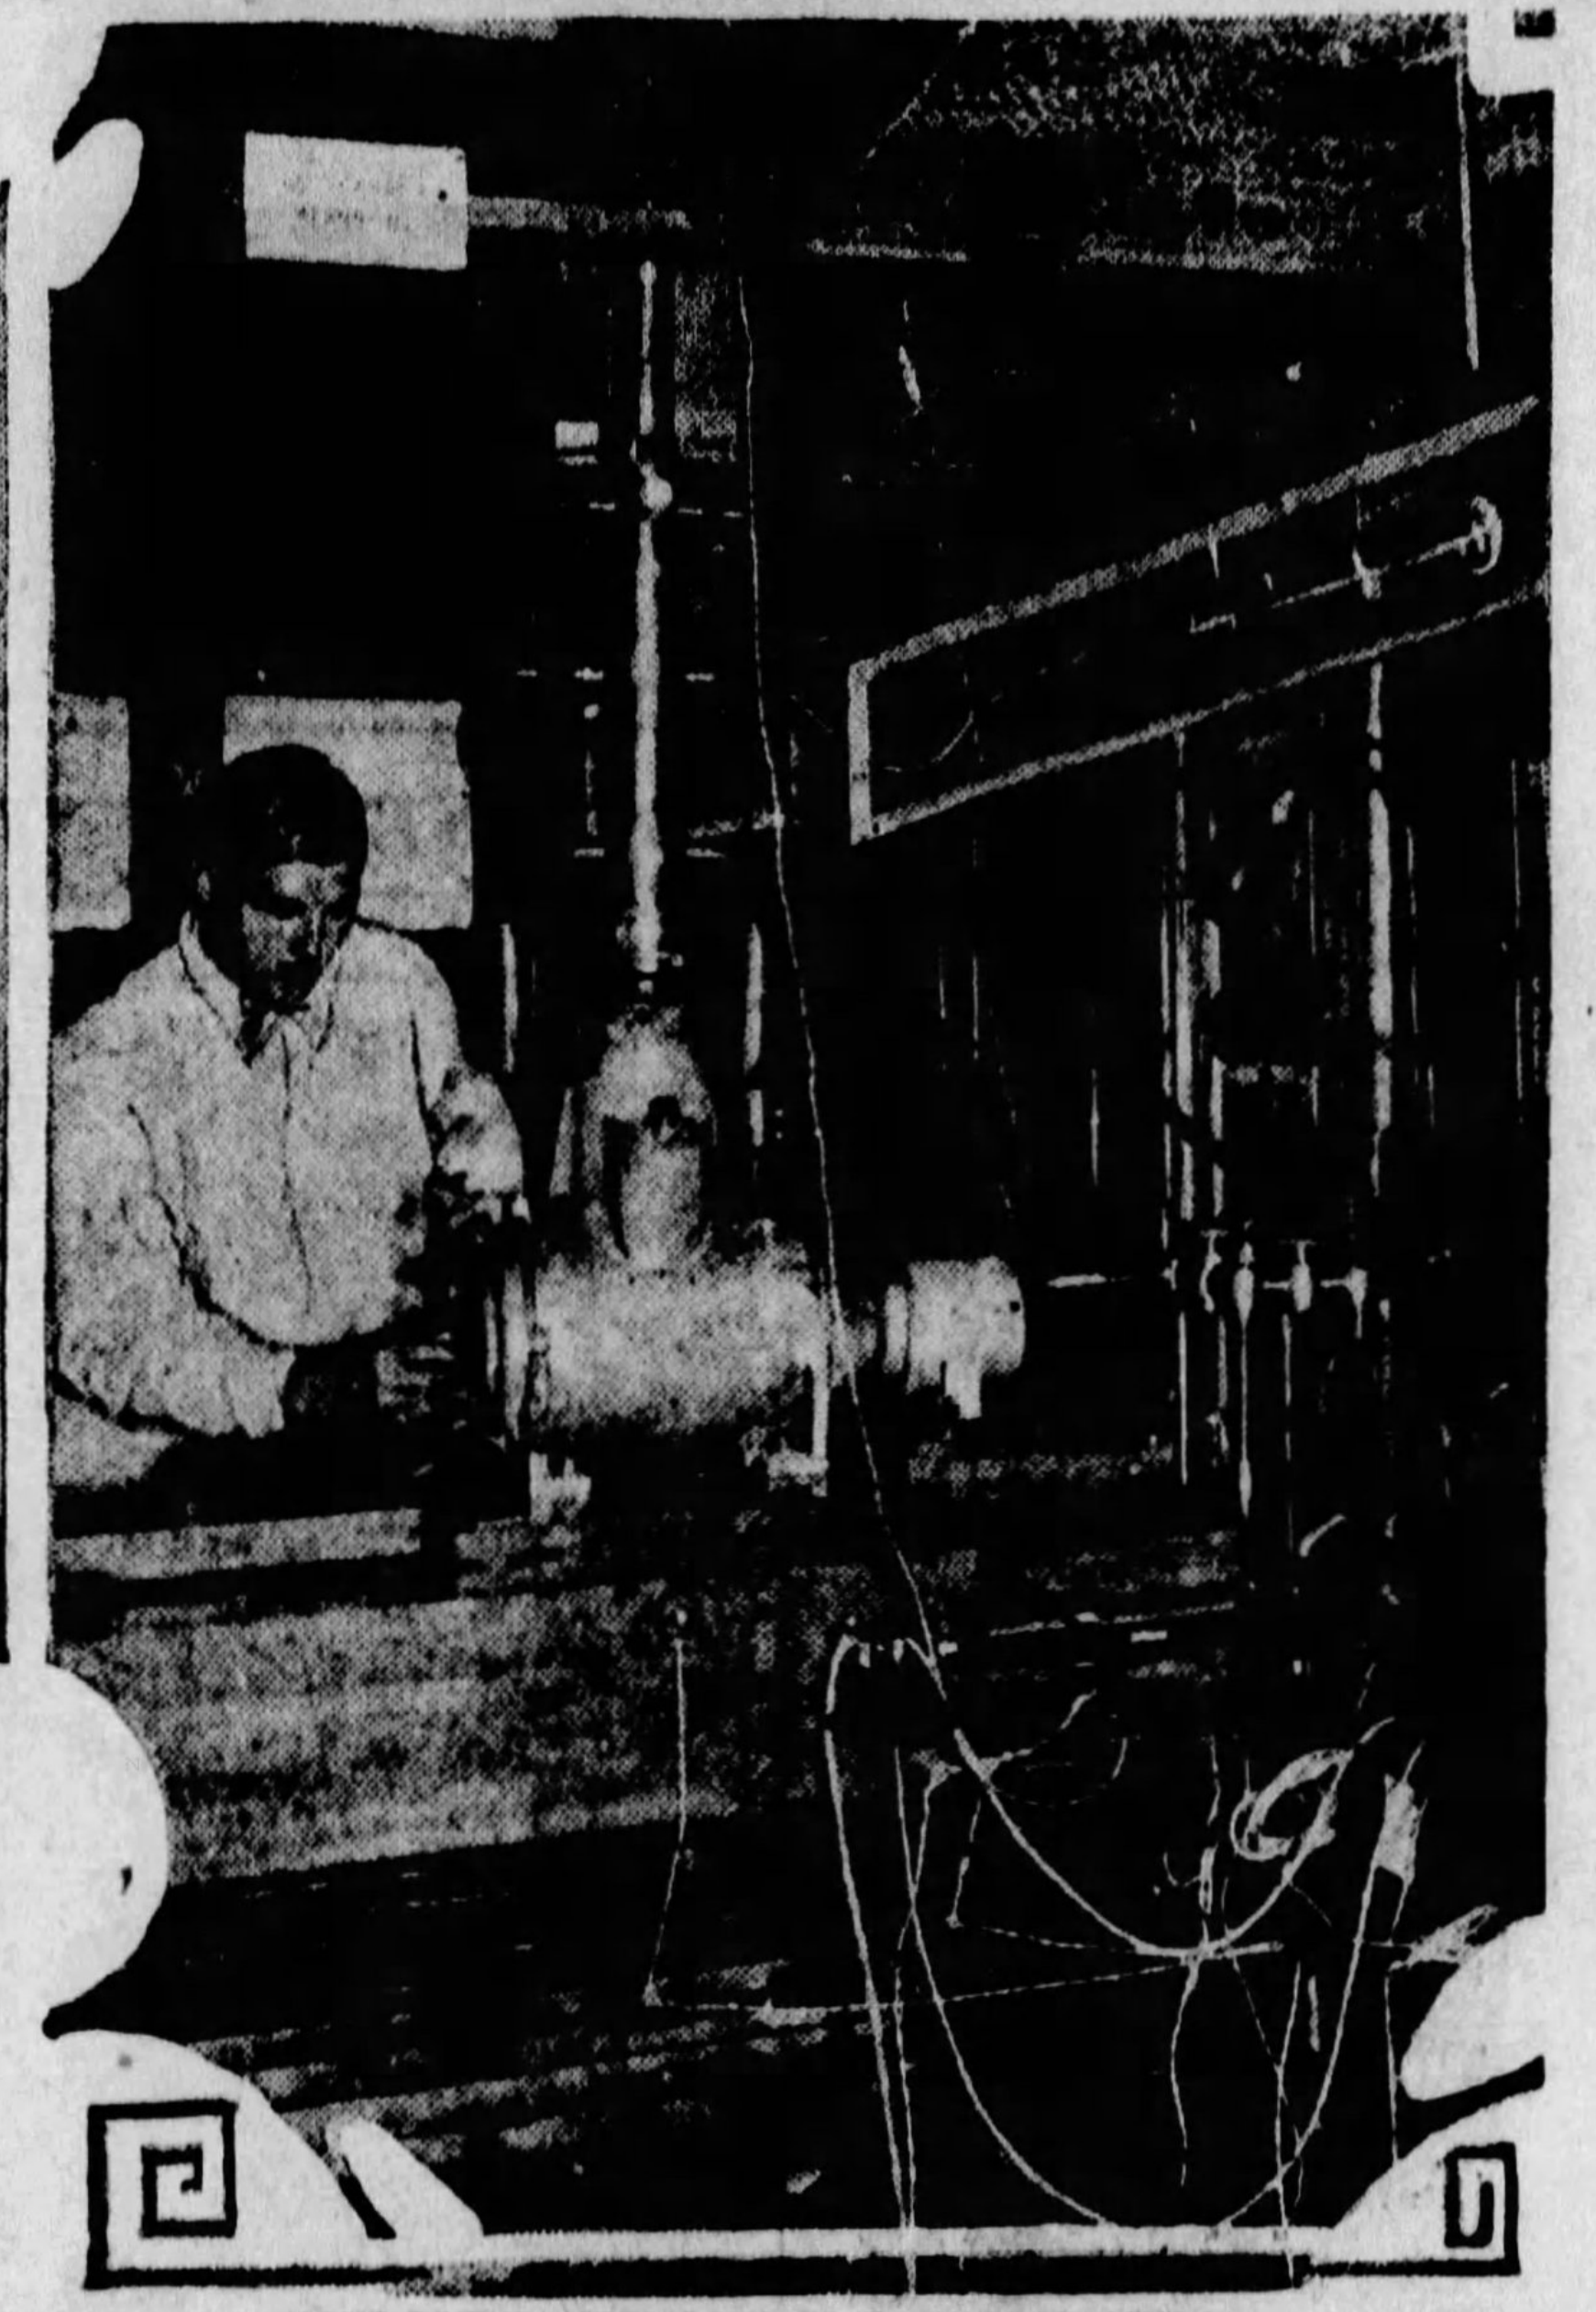
OSCILLOGRAPH TO DISPEL IGNORANCE OF MANY YEARS

For centuries man has sought to know something of lightning. His chances have never been better, Westinghouse engineers say, than now, for this instrument, Dr. Harold Norinder's oscillograph, will reveal in time all its characteristics. Any intensity of lightning leaves its autograph on this instrument, brought from Sweden, which measures rate of voltage surge rise, maximum voltage attainment, duration of charge and rate of decrease. In a vacuum, the oscillograph's only moving parts are cathode rays, bent by electrical impulses to leave records on a drum of photographic film spinning at 100 revolutions per second. No mechanical device could act so quickly.



WOULD MUZZLE LIGHTNING

Dr. Norinder, now consulting engineer for Westinghouse, is the inventor of the oscillograph and is working with other engineers in trying to measure Jove for a muzzle.

COOLIDGE IN BLUNT SPEECH REBUKES EUROPE FOR ANTI-U. S. INTRIGUES

By GEORGE E. DURNO,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The United States is quite well aware of all the intriguing going on between the capitals of the old world in connection with matters affecting America, according to President Coolidge, and he believes that a little co-operation would be helpful all around.

The President drew these conclusions last night in a speech delivered at a monster Armistice Day celebration of the American Legion at the Washington auditorium, and broadcast over a nation-wide hook-up.

Specifically, Mr. Coolidge dealt with limitation of armaments, liquidation of the war debt, and the anti-American spirit which prevails abroad.

SPEECH IS BLUNT

He minced no words. His speech was almost unparalleled for bluntness.

"If we could secure a more complete reciprocity in good will, the final liqidation of the balance of our foreign debts, and such further limitation of armaments as would be commensurate with the treaty renouncing war," the executive observed, "our confidence in the effectiveness of any additional efforts on our part to assist in the further progress of Europe would be greatly increased."

It is all very well for Europeans, because of age-old animosities, to distrust each other, Mr. Coolidge continued, but they need not think "we are going to do exactly what they would do if they had our chance."

Declaring that the question of America's duty to Europe had received a wide discussion on both sides of the Atlantic, Mr. Coolidge asserted that America had acknowledged the existence of such duties and had tried to meet them.

"They are not all on one side, however," he said; "they are mutual. We have sometimes been reproached for lecturing Europe, but probably ours are not the only people who sometimes engage in gratuitous criticism and advice. We have also been charged with pursuing a policy of isolation. We are not the only people either who desire to give their attention to their own affairs. It is quite evident that both of these claims can not be true. I think no informed person at home or abroad would blame us for not intervening in affairs which are peculiarly the concern of others to adjust, or, when we are asked for help, for stating clearly the terms on which we are willing to respond."

The prevention of war, in Mr. Coolidge's opinion, merits every precaution and every honorable sacrifice. Military preparation, he said, had never proved sufficient, but he accompanied this statement with an assertion that if the nations of Europe had neglected their defenses the war probably would have come much sooner.

"We can have military preparation without assumnig a military spirit," he said. "It is our duty to ourselves and to the cause of civilization, to the preservation of domestic tranquility, to our orderly and lawful relations with foreign people, to maintain an adequate army and navy."

Falls Down Stairs, Becomes Speechless

For an hour Joseph Dettra, 37, lay in the cellar of his home at 208 Henning way today speechless and with a serious wound in his skull.

Police, who suspected he had been attacked, tried to force him to talk. He couldn't.

The hour passed and Dettra recovered his speech. He had, he said, fallen down the stairs. At the Passavant Hospital it was reported his skull may be fractured.

Pulls Rifle's Trigger With Toe To Kill Self

CUMBERLAND, Md., Nov. 12.—Placing the end of a rifle barrel in his mouth and working the trigger with his toe, Cyrus G. Scribner, 65, ended his life here today. He had been despondent over loss of his job as a street car conductor, police learned. His wife took a razor from him yesterday which he threatened to use to end his life.

Shoots His Rival, Then Takes Wife To Baptism

LAKEWORTH, Fla., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Shortly after the arrest of D. S. Hough, charged with shooting and wounding S. B. Cook for alleged intimacy with Mrs. Hough, the couple, reconciled, were baptized together at the First Baptist Church here yesterday as a deputy sheriff stood by as a guard.

Hough told police he had forced Mrs. Hough to accompany him to a house where Cook was visiting, and after summoning the latter and accusing him in the presence of his wife, proceeded to fire four shots, all of which took effect.

Cook's injuries are believed to be serious.

MINER STABS 2 OTHERS

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 12.—R. S. Haley and Nicholas Margie, coal miners, were sent to the Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh, in a critical condition with knife wounds near their hearts and state and county officers are hunting J. R. Stevens, also a miner, alleged to have inflicted the wounds at a wild drinking party at Bertha in the northern part of the county late last night.

According to information received here Stevens crazed with drink ran amuck and began slashing and cutting with a long knife.

Haley and Margie received their wounds attempting to disarm him and a third man whose name has not been obtained was cut on the hand. Others escaped by fleeing from the house.

Stevens fled immediately after the cutting. Rumor that he had crossed into Allegheny county.

AIMEE M'PHERSON CASE BEGINS TO SIMMER AGAIN

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 12.—Long dormant, the so-called Aimee Semple McPherson case was simmering today, with the possibility that it may boil over before the present grand jury investigation is concluded.

When the grand jury resumes its deliberations Tuesday, Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio operator at Angelus Temple, will probably be called as a witness. It was also learned that several former officials and present executives of Angelus Temple would go before the jurors in an effort to clarify certain angles of Mrs. McPherson's court appearance here. She and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, were acquitted of charges of obstructing justice when District Attorney Asa Keyes found there was lack of evidence against them.

Ormiston and the temple officials will be interrogated, it was reported, concerning purported documentary evidence of transactions in the McPherson case reputed to have totaled more than $100,000.

Keyes and seven other defendants, under indictment in connection with alleged bribery in the Julian Petroleum Corporation case, are also scheduled to enter pleas tomorrow. All have announced their pleas would be "not guilty."

Former Pittsburgher Re-elected in Kansas

Friends of Judge Grover C. Pierpont, former Pittsburgh newspaperman, now district judge in Wichita, Kan., have received word that he was re-elected on the Democratic ticket, receiving a majority of 7,862 in the same territory that gave Hoover a lead of 20,225.

Organist's Rifle Stolen Right in Own Church!

Pgh. Driver Gets 50 Days for Drinking

SOMERSET, Pa., Nov. 12.—Fred Fogle, of Pittsburgh, pleaded guilty in court here today to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated and was sentenced to pay the costs, a fine of six cents and to serve 50 days in the Allegheny County workhouse. He already has served 10 days in the county jail here.

PEACETIME BATTLE WAGED AGAINST LIGHTNING BY ENGINEERS

One of the major battles of peacetime, that of the technical mind against lighnting, is under way in a lonely mountain spot in Tennessee. Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company electrical engineers, armed with every scientific device obtainable, are recording each bolt and quirk of every thunderstorm that plays around the crest of Chilhowee mountain, located at Chota, Tenn., which has an average of 20 thunderstorms each month.

The "heavy artillery" consists of Norinder oscillographs, osisos, klydonographs, cameras and other apparatus, not only to record but to diagnose the effect of each lightning flash. Of supreme interest to scientists is the Norinder oscillograph, which will reveal, according to engineers, characteristics of lightning which scientists have sought to discover for centuries.

Dr. Harold Norinder, Westinghouse consulting engineer and inventor of the apparatus, ranks today as the foremost authority on lightning. He personally brought his oscillograph to East Pittsburgh. Impressed, Westinghouse executives arranged that the apparatus be made available for American engineering work. The oscillograph operates much like hidden automatic cameras, by which wild animals take their own pictures. Installed on a power line, it keeps watch for hours without attention. Any sort of lightning, from the smallest spark to a 100-million-volt flash a half-mile long, leaves an extact record of its performance with the Norinder instrument. The device measures the rate of rise of the voltage surge, the maximum voltage attained, the duration of the charge and the rate of decrease. It is so sensitive that it records surges which have an ephemeral life of only a ten-millionth of a second—the time taken for a high-powered rifle bullet to travel the thickness of two hairs.

No mechanical device could be made to act so quickly, so the moving parts consist of a beam of cathode rays, which are bent here and there by electric attraction to leave their mark on a drum of photographic film spinning at 100 revolutions per second. The entire apparatus is in a vacuum.

Klydonographs record the maximum shock received by the transmission line and, supplementing oscillograph records. Osisos function as a part of distance finders to tell operators how far distant from the power line the bolt of lightning flashed. Cameras record any lightning within range.

All the devices are automatic. For example, oncoming thunderstorms automatically give warnings of approach by ringing bells, thus summoning observers.

That the needed facts about lightning can now be obtained is attested by the great success the Westinghouse Company has had in its Chilnowee Mountain investigation, which is still progressing. Early in the investigation there was obtained for the first time in history a complete authentic autograph of a lightning flash on an operating high voltage line. The records show when it occurred, how long it lasted, how far distant the lightning was, its voltage, its effect on the power lines—in fact, everything necessary for full analysis.

It was found that the overvoltage on the line continued for 5½ millionths of a second.

While mortals struggle to generate and distribute what seems to us enormous amounts of electricity, Old Jove, seated on his ethreal throne, laughs up his sleeve. We raise hundreds of towers into the air, string thousands of miles of metallic conductors along them, send 220,000-volt current through the wires and then stand back and think how wonderful it is. But Jove, with a contemptuous snicker, spits out a bolt of a half million or 20 million volts, and blows our lines galley west.

The big problem, then, is to tame lightning to build a trap which will transform it from a wild, destructive beast into a docile pet.

Lightning, to date, has been the unknown quantity that prevented designing engineers from producing apparatus that would function despite, what in legal terminology, is spoken of as an "act of God."

Now, engineers are going to measure Jove for a muzzle, it is thought, for the first time in history.

$12,000 Seized as Guardsmen Raid "Grocery Store"

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Two alleged gambling establishments in Jefferson Parish, just outside the New Orleans city limits, were raided by national guardsmen acting under orders from Gov. Huey P. Long, early today and a number of arrests were made and gambling paraphernalia seized.

Forty guardsmen, commanded by Adjt. Gen. Ray Fleming, raided Beverly Gardens and Fargo's grocery store simultaneously.

Forty persons were found at the grocery store, officers said. Their names were taken and $12,000 in currency was seized along with the gambling equipment.

TRAIN PLOUGHS INTO GRID FAN CROWD; ONE KILLED

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—A University of Notre Dame sophomore was killed and two women and two other students were seriously injured last night when a westbound New York Central freight train ploughed into a crowd of students and townspeople waiting at the railroad station to welcome home the Notre Dame football team.

More than 20 other persons were slightly injured, but were sent to thier homes after their injuries were treated.

About 4,000 persons had jammed about the station to greet the football eleven which defeated the Army in a game at New York yesterday. About half an hour before the football special train was due, some of the students pushed a baggage truck out onto one of the tracks and on the truck five or six girls climbed.

When the freight train struck the truck, the girls were tossed into the crowd and the truck itself went hurtling into the crowd of students.

Gleason, whose skull was crushed, was believed to have been hit by the iron-covered tongue of the truck.

Armistice Day 1928

Soldiers,

On Armistice Day,
A City salutes you,
A City is proud of you—
For you said to the Iron Man, War:
"Here we are" . . .
And you dared Death to come
And take you.

Women,
Thinking ten years after
On Armistice Day,
A City should salute you,
A City should be proud of you—
For you said to the Iron Man, War:
"Here are our men"
And you were brave when Death came
And took them.

VOLCANO SPITS FIRE

Today Sicilian villages about the foot of fearful Mt. Etna, ancient volcano, are in ruins. Damage is estimated at about $10,000,000 and much of the fertile countryside has been devastated. Here is the smoking crater.

PEASANTS PRAY

The simple peasants invoke heaven to stop the dreadful stream of lava and their priests implore Divine compassion. Crops have been estimated as total losses over a wide area.

12,000 LEAVE HOMES

More than 12,000 from the peaceful villages near the base of Etna have been forced to flee their homes and left even personal effects to the fury of the monster's molten stream. Here is how residents fled when the crater first became active at Catania.

STREAM OF LAVA

STORM SWEEPS SICILY ADDING TO HORRORS OF MT. ETNA REFUGEES

RIPOSTO, Sicily, Nov. 12.—(INS.)—A storm, which swept Southeastern Sicily today, added to the misery of the thousands of refugees who have been driven from their homes by the avalanche of molten lava from the crater of Mt. Etna.

Heavy rain fell, throwing up vast clouds of steam as it came in contact with the rivers of fire flowing down the side of the volcano and over the plains west of the Ionian sea. This moisture formed a great curtain of murk and fog through which shafts of lightning struck with terrifying sharpness. The thunder of the sky blended with the dull, thudding rumblings from the interior of the burning mountain.

MAY LAST ANOTHER WEEK

Thick atmosphere prevented the wind from carying off the cinders and dust and clouds of these particles settled down over the refugee camps.

The streams of lava continue to widen and it is now feared that the eruption may continue for another week. At times the flow dies down only to belch forth in renewed fury.

LAVA FLOOD NEARS SEA

Although Nunziata was nearly destroyed a lone Fascist soldier volunteered to remain behind to "guard" the memorial of the war dead, which was to have been unveiled this week.

5,000 HOMELESS

ROME, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Five thousand people are homeless, 700 houses have been destroyed and nearly 3,000 acres of farm land have been laid waste in the Mount Etna region, said a report issued today by Signor Giuriati, minister of public works, who returned from the danger zone over the week-end.

JOLSON'S ILLNESS CALLS BRIDE OUT OF 'WHOOPEE'

Flo Ziegfeld, producer of "Whoopee," at the Nixon Theater, today said he will not protest to the Actors' Equity Association the desertion of Ruby Keeler, the dancing bride of Al Jolson, who quit the show Saturday night. Ruby is en route to Los Angeles where her husband is ill, according to a telegram received by Ziegfeld yesterday.

Ziegfeld said that, although he hates to lose Ruby, it will not be difficult to replace her in the cast. He denied there had been any trouble and said her desertion was quite a surprise.

There were rumors of Ruby leaving because of trouble with other stars in the show. Eddie Cantor uses the Keeler-Jolson marriage as the basis of a joke in one scene. It is understood this was objected to by the dancer and as a result was eliminated in Saturday's performance.

POINCARE FIXES FIFTH CABINET IN 16 YRS.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Having formed his fifth cabinet, Premier Raymond Poincare today was ready to take an active part in the coming reparations negotiations looking to a revision of the Dawes plan.

M. Poincare became premier without portfolio, giving the post of finance minister, which he held in the cabinet that resigned on Tuesday, to Senator Henri Cheron. He said that he would devote all his time to "the solution of financial questions and negotiations with Germany and the Allied countries in the settlement of the reparations and inter-Allied debts."

This announcement and his declaration that he was likely to leave Paris soon was understood by newspapermen to mean that he intended to represent France on the committee of experts which will take up final revision of the Dawes plan. The commission is expected to meet in Berlin.

To the last the radical party refused to let its members take part in the cabinet and the Premier solved the six-day crisis without them. The composition of the new cabinet is:

Premier, Raymond Poincare; finance, Henri Cheron; interior, Andre Tardieu; foreign, Aristide Briand; war, Paul Painleve, marine, Georges Leygues, colonies, Andre Maginot; pensions, Louis Andteriou; commerce, Georges Bonnefous; public works, Pierre Forgeot; labor, Louis Loucheur; public instruction, Pierre Marraud; agriculture, Jean Hennessey; air, Laurent-Eynac. Undersecretaries are: Labor, Alfred Oberkirch; physical education, Henri Pate; technical education, Francois Poncet.

Those who held the same posts in the former Poincare cabinet are Tardieu, Briand, Painleve, Leygues, Loucheur, and Laurent-Eynac. M. Poincare has been premier in 1912 from January 15, 1922 to March 26, 1914; from March to June, 1924, and from July 23, 1926, to November 6, 1928.

HOOVER'S SOUTH AMERICAN TOUR IS BID FOR EXPORT MARKET

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The real purpose of Herbert Hoover's proposed tour of South and Central American countries is to insure American prosperity for another four years by opening fresh markets for American goods in the nations south of the Rio Gande, it was learned today.

The President-elect believes a personal visit would tend to promote a new era of friendship between the United States and the nations to the south, thus laying a proper basis for the development of new trade channels on the American continent.

SEES OPPORTUNITY

Hoover always has thought that American merchants were losing a golden opportunity in South America.

The President-elect incidentally has first-hand knowledge of commercial conditions and national affairs on every continent, save South America. He has worked in Australia and the Orient; he spent years in Europe and Asia, but he had never visited South America.

Early in his campaign for the presidency, Hoover announced that "the outlook for the world today is for the greatest era of commercial expansion in history." He pointed out, however, that "these other great nations (that engaged in the war) are now emerging from the destruction of war. The rest of the world will become better customers. They will have larger demands but they also will become stronger competitors."

Consequently, Hoover plans to meet European competition in South America and endeavor, one and for all time, to establish American trade firmly in the Southern Hemisphere.

As for Central America, Hoover always has declared the United States depended on its imports of raw materials from the tropics. On one recent occasion, he declared: "Without continued interchange of tropical products with those of the temperate zone, whole sections of the world, including our own country, must stagnate and degenerate in civilization. We could not run an automobile, we could not operate a dynamo or use a telephone were we without imported raw materials from the tropics."

BIG FACTOR

Hoover has believed foreign trade to be the life of America. Our exports alone he once translated into "employment of 2,400,000 families." Millions more, he said, were employed in manufacturing products from imported raw materials. Finally, he added, the farmer's home market depends upon the steady employment of that great army of workers engaged in foreign trade.

Hoover has pledged his administration to the task of finding new markets for American surpluses.

D. A. R. EXPELS MRS. MACFARLAND, FOE OF BLACKLIST

ACTIONS HELD INJURIOUS TO SOCIETY

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mary P. MacFarland, of Hanover, N. J., who opposed the so-called black listing of prominent liberals by the Daughters of the American Revolution, announced that she had received notice of her expulsion from membership in the national society of that organization.

Mrs. MacFarland is New Jersey state president of the American Association of University Women and an officer in the League of Women Voters. She was charged by the Daughters with "conducting herself in a way calculated to disturb the harmony and injure the good name of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution," and was informed that the national board of management, at its meeting on October 31, had voted to expel her.

The society contended, according to the announcement made in Mrs. MacFarland's behalf, that she wrote and circulated letters, pamphlets and other material to various chapters and to a number of individuals in which she charged the president general and other officers with violating the constitution of the United States by endeavoring to suppress free speech, by blacklisting prominent citizens and by otherwise spreading propaganda "derogatory to the institution." Mrs. MacFarland declined a summons to appear before the board, but submitted sworn evidence in support of the charges.

In a statement issued today, Mrs. MacFarland said she declined to make any appeal from the board's decision to expel her, since she was quite content."

She said:

"The action of the Society of the D. A. R. has no effect on me and I remain, as I was born, a daughter of the American Revolution. My future will be given to the blacklisted women's organizations devoted to constructive work."

by the Federal Radio commission. They have not taken advantage of this increased power yet, because of delay in obtaining equipment, but within a few days WJAS programs will boom out over the ether with twice as much fervor as heretofore and it is thought likely will drown out the two other stations, authorized to use only 500 watts.

COMPLAINTS FLOCK IN

Officials at KQV today said they had received complaints from a number of radio fans. "The old sets can not get us at all," it was stated at the studio.

At WJAS, Studio Manager H. E. Clark declared he had received almost as many telephone calls yesterday in favor of the new wave length as he had complaints. "We like our new wave length pretty well," he said, "but it is just a little too early to say exactly how it will work out."

WCAE officials had nothing to say. "Reports are too confusing just now," was the only statement given out.

KDKA seemed to be the only station without complaint. "We have no kick at all. Everything worked out splendidly yesterday. There was no interference with our programs and we are well satisfied with the new assignment."

Out of today's chaos, however, will come a new order and almost general satisfaction among radio fans of the air when they realize the real benefits to be derived from the wave length revision, is the opinion of radio engineers here. Christian Science Church.

City officials have declared their intention of ignoring the order until they have an opportunity to plead their case before the commission.

Chairman Robinson was the only member of the commission who disapproved the reallocation plan. All the others are confident that when the new system has been given an adequate trial it will bring about the desired result and appreciably improve reception.

clothing, open necks, bare legs on the beach admitting violet rays that build strength are leading women toward their ultimate destiny which is to rule creation.

WOMEN live longer than men. Once they pass the dangerous child-bearing age, their lives are far safer than men's. Women know how to relax, men do not. Women can stand exposure to icy waters and endure pain, far beyond man's endurance.

AMONG insect peoples, ants are instances that began their evolution in organized societies millions of years before us, the males amount to little. Female workers among ants and bees rule the community and let the males starve or sting them to death. After the queen has selected one of them for a short time.

Hundreds In London Armistice Pilgrimage

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Hundreds of quiet pilgrimages were made throughout the night and today to the Cenotaph in Whitehall by mothers, wives and sisters who sought to pay their little meed of homage to Great Britain's war dead.

While London slept under a blanket of November rain, these mourners made their way through the deserted streets to the Cenotaph in continuance of yesterday's armistice solemnities.

15,000 WAR VETERANS IN ARMISTICE PARADE

street bridge, and at that same moment a cottony puff of smoke went up from Monument Hill, across the river, where National guardsmen were firing a salute of 21 guns.

The American Legion posts led in Division 1, and close behind them came the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The Third division was comprised by smaller units of miscellaneous veterans organizations. Welfare workers of the war—the Salvation Army, the Y. M. C. A., the Knights of Columbus and the nurses followed, and in the fifth and last division the National Guard and reserve units marched behind Col. Eric Fisher Wood.

Automobiles bore veterans of the Civil War—a very few from that conflict—and the Spanish American War. There were little bursts of handclapping far more expressive than any cheers as the blue of Antietam and Fort Fisher and the darker hues of San Juan and El Caney went by.

The various divisions split into groups and held luncheons downtown following the parade.

The chief event tonight will be the annual military ball at the William Penn Hotel under the auspices of the American Legion. A thousand persons are expected.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars were to hold a banquet in Hotel Chatham, and the vets of the One Hundred and Eleventh had a rally scheduled for the Logan Armory. In the Morrowfield there was to be a soldiers' dance.

The city's guests were at the luncheon in the William Penn Hotel sponsored by the Armistice Day committee, the Legion and Vets joined for the luncheon in the Nixon Restaurant, and in the Union Restaurant Company E, One Hundred and Eleventh Infantry, met in reunion.

Members of Homestead Post, No. 60, American Legion, held a brief memorial service this morning in Frick park, Homestead, and placed a wreath on the monument bearing names of those who gave their lives in the World War. Burgess J. J Cavanaugh presided at a meeting in Elks temple which was addressed by Judge Frank P. Patterson.

Today it was not a day for recollections of glory for the veterans; for they knew—these men who remembered—that there is little glory in modern war, but chiefly filth and fear and weariness. And they remembered not great victories, but only little things—an estaminet behind the lines, a cigaret shared with a buddy, a miraculous dugout with real beds, cooties, dirt—and you may be sure—vin rouge. But chiefly these men remembered the rest of them, who are only memories now.

Ten years!

Feet that once went clumping wearily into the little towns of Alsace and Lorraine on the heels of a retreating German host went tramping dutifully to church yesterday. And men through whose ears the shrill voice of war had passed painfully into history sat quietly through sermons while ministers told of a torch that dead hands had flung to living ones that still must hold it high.

And how often through the pastoral eloquence must there have come whispering down the winds of memory another watchword of that other time:

"Now, where did that one go"

It was the Sabbath, but it was November 11, too; and it was not the least irreverent that a man should keep remembering:

"Mademoiselle from Armentierre, parlez vous, Mademoiselle from—"

PEACE LEAGUE MEETS

An Armistice Day memorial meeting was held yesterday in the Davis Theater under auspices of the Women's Internal League for Peace and Freedom. Speakers were the Rev. Dr. W. I. Wishart of the Council of Churches of Christ; the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, of the Christ Methodist Episcopal Church; the Rev. Dr. H. Boyd Edwards, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, and Dr. William Davidson, superintendent of public schools.

Rabbi Lichter, of B'nai Israel Synagogue, asked the invocation and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Dr. James K. Carroll, of Duquesne University. Charles P. Lang presided and Mrs. Joseph Schutzman was general chairman. Following the speaking motion pictures were shown.

An exemplification of the patriotic fourth degree and a banquet featured the Armistice Day celebration of the Knights of Columbus from 16 counties in Western Pennsylvania held yesterday in Duquesne Garden. Councilman P. J. McArdle was toastmaster at the banquet. Thomas J. Duffy, supreme director of the organization, was the principle speaker. Others who spoke were the Rev. Jerome D. Hannan and Edward J. Byrnes.

WELFARE FUND CAMPAIGN STARTS

With the united efforts of thousands of workers, the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh today started its county-wide campaign to raise $965,679 for the 1929 budgets of 25 important local philanthropic organizations. Closing the first day's tasks, William S. Moorhead, chairman of the committee, which directed a social service survey of Pittsburgh prior to the launching of the Welfare Fund, will speak over radio station WCAE at 7:45 tonight on "Why Co-Operation Is Proposed in Pittsburgh."

Mr. Moorhead will sound the keynote of the campaign and his remarks will be directed to the workers in the canvass as well as to the general public. His narrative of civic events, which led to the incorporation of the Welfare Fund, and the plans for the present campaign, will be an answer to questions as to its plans and purposes and the needs which resulted in the adoption of central financing for Pittsburgh. It was on Mr. Moorhead's report to the Committee of 50 a year ago that the Welfare Fund was organized.

Welfare Fund workers have turned the observance of the holiday into an effort for the consecration of effort toward relieving suffering humanity, providing aid for the suffering, better living conditions for the poor, the aged and infirm and more inviting environment for little children. The results of today's canvass will be announced at a luncheon of the workers tomorrow in the William Penn Hotel. A. K. Oliver, president of the Welfare Fund, has announced that these meetings will be held daily except Saturday until the end of the campaign. The campaign will continue until November 26.

PROBE DEATH OF BOY, 8

An investigation is under way today into the death of Tony Bogucki, 8, of 1124 Franklin street, North Braddock, who died last night in Braddock General Hospital an hour after he was admitted. Suffering a fractured skull, the lad was found lying beneath the Verona Street Bridge between Braddock and North Braddock.

Braddock police say they learned the lad was crushed by stones he had loosened while playing near the base of a derrick near the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks. The heavy stones had been placed at the base of the derrick as ballast. Morgue attaches say they were informed by hospital authorities that the boy fell from a barn near the bridge.

MORE PITT MEN THAN GIRLS WOULD "PET," QUIZ SHOWS

Would you "pet" the first time you went out with someone? Would you vote in favor of Judge Ben Lindsay's proposal of companionate marriage? Do you favor the unrestricted knowledge of birth control? Would you cheat on an unfair examination? Would you enter a common law marriage agreement? Do you favor prohibition? Do you accept God as a personality?

These are only a few of 100 questions which have been asked of students at Ohio State University and the University of Pittsburgh in order to ascertain their true moral and social codes and their religious attitudes, as compared with those commonly ascribed to them by others.

The experiment is being conducted at Pitt by C. W. Gleason, professor of psychology, who was formerly of Ohio State. After the final statistics have been compiled, Dr. Gleason plans to give the information to clergymen and social workers for the purpose of showing a profile of the students' true beliefs so that they may be aided in their work with them.

WEIGHED BY HAPPINESS

Sixty-four per cent of upperclassmen and 38 of lower, declared that any act is good or otherwise according to the amount of happiness or unhappiness it produces.

Students from cities, it was discovered, more frequently favor companionate marriage than students from the country. Also, men are more generally in favor of companionate marriage than women. Twenty-five per cent of the men and 21 per cent of women voted for companionate marriage. With 12 per cent Catholics, 49 per cent Jews and 20 per cent Protestants and 14 per cent no religious preference voting in favor of the proposal, significant religious differences were noted.

Concerning the dissemination of knowledge of birth control, 65 per cent of women in cities and 68 of men voted affirmatively, and 64 per cent of men on farms and 55 per cent of women. Of these 41 per cent of men and 45 of women of Catholic faith voted affirmatively; 62 per cent and 71 per cent respectively of Protestant men and women, favored the proposal.

In answer to the question, "If you were attracted by someone whom you had met for the first time, and if circumstances were favorable, would you be willing to take part in demonstration of affection, called 'petting,' which involve kissing as the chief expression?" results indicated that men look more favorably upon the idea than women.

Protestants appeared, under certain circumstances, to favor more than students of other faiths, the substitution of a common law agreement for marriage. Forty per cent of Protestants voted "yes," and 38 of Catholics.

FAVOR LIQUOR

Questions relating to liquor were divided into three divisions—those who would drink, those who would make liquor and those who would vote for an amendment to the Volstead act, which would permit the sale of light wines and beer. Regarding the change in law, 84 per cent of Catholics, 86 of Jews and 46 per cent of Protestants voted favorably. Of all of the students 66 would drink and 42 would make liquor.

BECK WINS BY 73 VOTES

The complete unofficial tabulation had given Rooney a plurality of 101, but after a re-check, police returns from the district showed a plurality of 16 for Beck.

Judge Edwin O. Lewis, one of the judges who presided over the election count, explained that while the final figures—45,715 for Beck and 45,642 for Rooney—represented the official computation, they would not be certified until the whole election result had been compiled.

Mr. Rooney announced that a complete recount for the district would be asked on the basis of alleged errors in the Seventh Ward. He gave no intimation, however, that he planned to contest the election.

Common Pleas Court judges have issued an order restraining the count commissioners from destroying the unused ballots until permission to do so is granted by the court. The order was issued on petition of Richard T. McSorley, councel of the Democratic city committee, in behalf of Mr. Rooney.

Should Beck be declared elected, John J. Casey, of Luzerne County, would be Pennsylvania's sole Democratic representative in the next Congress, while the Republicans would have 35.

Fighter Does Not Succumb to Cold!

Army men learn to take care of themselves, and they don't pamper colds like many civilians. They knock them out between morning and night; with a compound that comes in plain, pleasant-tasting tablets. No trouble to carry, and so easy to take; but amazingly efficient, as you'll find out!

Pape's Cold Compound works so quickly you'll think it luck the first time. And stops grippe or "flu" if you give it time and take several tablets. Pape's way of stopping colds is worth remembering, so remember the name; 35c at druggists—they all have it.

BAKERY TRUCK KILLS 1; PGH. DRIVER HELD

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 12.—J. A. Robinson, aged about 35, railroader of Richeyville, south of here, died in Washington Hospital yesterday of injudies suffered in a collison between a truck of the United Baking Company, of Pittsburgh, driven by Herman Glantz, and an automobile being operated by Robinson.

The crash occurred under the traffic light at Beallsville, one driver going through it on the wrong signal. Robinson suffered a fractured skull.

Mrs. L. F. Nicholas, of Findley, W. Va., who had been visiting in the Robinson home and was being brought to Washington to return to her own home, is in a critical condition. Her daughter, Ruther, 13, escaped with minor hurts.

Glantz was placed under arrest and released under bail for a hearing.

FIRES HOME TO 'COURT' GIRL

CUMBERLAND, Md., Nov. 12.—David P. Lewis, a youth of 18, son of J. M. Lewis, Williams road, is in jail here, the result of his confession, authorities say, that he attempted to set fire to the house of Francis Screen, Williams road, on the night of October 28.

According to his signed confession, the youth did not intend to burn the house, but he wanted to cause excitement which would bring his sweetheart, Bernetta Wilson, out of the house that he might talk to her.

The cellar is entered from a door in the front of the outside of the house. Mrs. Wilson had forbidden young Lewis to see her daughter on account of her tender age. Young Lewis denies that he threatened once to burn his father's barn following a dispute with him.

NEXT THURSDAY IS DEAD LINE FOR CONTESTANTS

The $15,000 Zain Ad-Writing Test for amateur writers is now on the home stretch, with the winner of the $1,000 grand prize soon to be determined.

A thousand dollars is worth working for, especially when the work to be done is an enjoyable game.

There is not a vast amount of work to be done to put you in the race, for your ads can be brief. A few words will suffice if you have a good idea. Brevity, you know, is the soul of wit.

And if you should fail to win the grand prize, there are numerous other special prizes offered by some of the 39 local business concerns that are co-operating in the test.

Look over the list of special prizes, some of them worth $1,000 each. They should stimulate your interest.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph publishes today specimens of the ads that won the 586 prizes given by this paper for the best ads submitted in the sixth period of the test. Study them. Note how effective the writers of some have been telling their story in a few words.

You have four days in which to submit your ads. They must be in the office of the Sun-Telegraph not later than midnight next Thursday.

STUDY YOUR SUBJECT

Before you write your ads make sure that you know your subject. That can be done by visiting the stores of the co-operating concerns and asking questions. They will be glad to help you with suggestions.

The children's department of Laird's shoe store at 622 Liberty avenue will provide interesting material for a powerful ad.

Visit the store of the B. K. Elliott Co., 126 Sixth street, or 4010 Fifth avenue, and you will get pointers for a thousand good ads. They handle "everything optical."

Don't forget, in writing about Sam's Umbrella Shop, 635 Penn avenue, that Sam's not only sell new umbrellas, but repair old ones.

The men's wear and furnishings of the J. G. Bennett Co., 443 Wood street, are the best that can be bought. Emphasize that.

Do you admire beautiful, clean, careful printing? You can become enthusiastic about the work done by the Stevenson & Foster Co., 421-27 Seventh avenue.

The stationery business of the Stevenson & Foster Co. should be treated in a separate ad. Their office supplies deserve your attention

You cannot do justice to Sully's, Inc., dealers in auto accessories at 420 Wood street and 5900 Penn avenue, without visiting one of their stores and seeing for yourself the great variety of their stocks and the low prices.

And the best way to get inspiration for your ad about Tech Ice Cream is to eat some and gain personal experience of its incomparable deliciousness.

You should write at least one ad about each of the 39 firms.

Write each ad on a separate sheet of paper, which should be at least as large as a postal card, and preferably commercial letter size. Put your name and address on the back of each sheet, and also on the flap of the envelope in which you mail them. SEND THE ADS TO THE ZAIN AD-WRITING TEST, CARE OF THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH, PITTSBURGH.

A COUPLE OF "BOY SCOUTS"
FAY KING

By FAY KING

THROUGH the ages woman's chief goal in life has been to charm and please men. Women have accomplished more good and more evil in the world through their power over men than they will ever accomplish with careers.

This instinct to rule through her charm comes early to the consciousness of a girl child.

We see the pretty little school girl casting shy glances and wide-eyed worship at her hero.

We have all seen a group of happy boys come into a train with skates or in football togs so interested and happy in their boyish sports they never noticed girls already giggling and casting flirtatious little glances at them.

CHURCH BLAZE FOILED

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Although he started a blaze at three separated spots, an incendiary last night failed in his effort to set fire to the local Methodist Episcopal Church.

Burned matches found scattered about the building added to the evidence of incendiarism.

The attempt followed just 10 days after the burning of the St. James Luthern Church, and state police are working on the theory that both places were visited by the same man.

Stomach Trouble Caused By Acidity

A Safe, Speedy, Lasting Relief From Acid Indigestion.

Stomach trouble, gas, indigestion, bloating and sourness are in probably nine cases in ten caused by "too much acid" in the stomach. For safe, quick, certain relief, the stomach needs an alkali to neutralize the acid, sweeten its food contents and make digestion easy and painless.

A wonderful help in such cases is Bisurated Magnesia—powder or tablets. One teaspoonful of powder or three or four tablets in a little water instantly neutralizes the excess stomach acid and so speedily stops the pain, sourness, gas and bloating.

Bisurated Magnesia is the standard Magnesia treatment for Acid Stomach purposes, because it is so pleasant and convenient to use and gives such wonderfully quick results that May Drug Company and druggists everywhere sell it on a positive guarantee of satisfactory results or money back. Try a test package on this plan and enjoy your future meals with no more fear of indigestion.

KLINE, VERONA CONFER— "EVERYTHING ALL RIGHT"

Alderman John J. Verona, the Third Ward boss who was fired as Center Avenue Police magistrate by Mayor Kline after he had charged graft to Kline's police force, today verified reports that he and the Mayor had a quiet little meeting a few days ago.

"We got together in a restaurant at Sixth and Wylie," Verona said.

"Did you bury the hatchet? Are you friends again?"

GROOMING STABILE?

"Is there anything to that report that you're pushing Nick Stabile for your old magistrate's job?"

"Well, I'd like to see Stabile get it. He's a friend of mine. I'd rather see McManus or Flanigan get it." The former is Owen McManus, Republican chairman of the Second Ward, the latter is Alderman Thomas Flanigan, chairman of the First, who have allied themselves with Verona, apparently, against the regular organization.

VERONA "BOSS"

A reporter asked Flanigan to arrange for a picture of the three. He answered, "See the boss."

A reporter asked McManus to arrange for a pisture of the three. He answered, "See the boss."

"Boss" Verona joked, "You don't want to hang it in the rogue's gallery, do you?"

CRASH TIES UP P. R. R. LINE

ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. 12.—Traffic on all four of the main line tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad was resumed at 1 o'clock this morning following a three-hour tieup caused by the deraliment of three cars of a 40-car train here. The cars left the rails and spread across all tracks at 10 p. m., directly in front of the South Elizabeth station, where the four-track line from Newark diverges into a six-track system.

The eastbound freight was swinging from one of the center freight tracks of the six-track line to the inside rails of the four-track system when the truck of a box car left the track, throwing off the two following cars. The three cars were badly damaged. Both east and westbound trains were halted and a general demoralization of schedules resulted.

None of the train crew was injured.

BRINGS INVALID TO GLORY BARN FROM MO.

Having heard of the wonderful cures brought about at Glory Barn, Carson stret, Mrs. Roy Preston of Carrollton, Mo., came all the way to Pittsburgh in hope that her son Cecil, 7, might also be cured of physical ills. His throat swollen so badly he cannot swallow, the boy was anointed last night at the Glory Barn by Evangelist John W. Sproul. The child swallowed lye several years ago. A similar case was cured here recently.

Evangelist Sproul broadcast his sermon for the first time here last night but had poor success. He had been on the air 20 minutes when his set went out of commission. He hopes to have it in working order again by this afternoon when he will broadcast a concert by A. W. Roper, pianist of Winona Lake, Ind., who is playing at the barn.

On hundred and fifty persons professed acceptance of Christianity last night, coming forward out of the audience estimated at 5,000 people. Many also were anointed in hope of being cured of their ailments. The subject last night was, "Jesus, the Bread of Life." A large crowd also attended the afternoon meeting.

ANOTHER OIL CONTRACT DEAD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(INS.)—Another of ex-Secretary of Interrior Albert B. Fall's oil contracts was canceled today.

Attorney General Sargent ruled that the royalty oil contract in the Cat Creek (Montana) field with the Lewistown Oil and Refining Company, of Detroit, was not binding upon the government because it contained a secret renewal clause which Fall had no authority to negotiate.

A similar opinion was delivered by Sargent on the royalty oil contract of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company in the Salt Creek (Wyo.) field, and the contract was canceled.

Admits Drowning Boy In River Year Ago

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Haunted by the memory of his part in the drowning of a 19-year-old boy a year ago, Henry Stevens, 32, blurted out the story of the boy's death to the bereaved father. He was in jail today charged with homicide. In July, 1927, the body of William Fritz was fished from the Harlem River. The father was convinced the boy had met with foul play, but he could not unravel the mystery of his death. Yesterday, Stevens, who said he had tried to drown his remorse in drink, confessed to his part in the drowning.

Fisher today accepted the honorary chairmanship of the 1928 Christmas seal sale in Pennsylvania and called upon citizens of the commonwealth to observe tuberculosis Sunday on December 9 and tuberculosis day, December 14. On December 9 the Governor suggested that proper services be held in the churches and that the following Friday schools arrange special exercises to stress the sale of the seals.

POPULAR STAR :-: AND GOWNS SHE WEARS :-: IN NEW FILM

Marion Davies in two camera studies, the second being in a costume for a period picture-making sequence in "Show People," photoplay which will be on view in the Penn next week.

William Haines is co-starred with Miss Davies in "Show People," written by Agnes Christine Johnson and Laurence Stallings.

MARIE PREVOST TO BE WITH BOYD-HALE COMBINATION IN "HIGH VOLTAGE"

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 12.

MARIE PREVOST will return to the old home studio again when she moves the make-up kit back to the Pathe lot to play the leading feminine role in "High Voltage." This is one of the pictures featuring that popular team composed of Alan Hale and Bill Boyd. The boys have been pleasing the public mightily since they have been appearing together, and with Marie as the girl in the case they'll surely continue to do so.

The picture is to be directed by Tay Garnett, a comparatively new megaphone artist who seems to be satisfying the bosses with his films. Production of "High Voltage" will begin shortly. This despite the fact that Garnett has just sustained an injured shoulder in a fall which he took while his yacht was bucking a rough sea out Catalina way.

As soon as Erich Von Stroheim completes Gloria Swanson's picture, "Queen Kelly," he is to return to the Paramount lot to shoot an ending for "Honeymoon." "Honeymoon" is the other half of "The Wedding March." Originally the two were one. But by cutting and splicing two pictures were made of one. So the further adventures of "Von" and Fay Wray and Zazu Pitts and Matthew Betz will be seen in "Honeymoon." All that is needful to make it a complete photoplay is a new ending. Joseph P. Kennedy has handed "Von" a 10 weeks' shooting schedule on "Kelley." This, on the face of it, would indicate that "Honeymoon" will be shown soon. But then you never can tell with Von Stroheim.

Pola to Star In French Film

POLA NEGRI may never return to America. But that doesn't apply to Pola's prince, Serge M'Divani. In fact, the prince is in Hollywood now, attending to the various business interests which still form a link in the chain tying Pola to California. Pola is fine, says the prince, and completely recovered from the horseback accident which nearly cost her life. According to M'Divani, Pola is now preparing to play a star role in a French production. The couple plan to spend Christmas in Paris together.

Believe it or not, when Al Santell singned Robert Montgomery to play opposite Vilma Banky in her next picture, the transaction took place in a third floor dressing room in the Henry Miller Theater in New York. And that dressing room was and is the identical one occupied by Ronald Colman when Henry King discovered him and engaged his services for "The White Sister," through Samuel Goldwyn. Ronald Colman found fame in filmdom. May Montgomery have the same luck.

As soon as Director Jim Cruze completes "The Duke Steps Out," he and Betty Compston plan a New York vacation. And after that, a trip to Europe. Of course, you never can tell, but it wouldn't be surprising if Jimmy shot a picture abroad in which Betty starred. By the way, the latest addition to the cast of the William Haines picture is none other than Karl Dane. The gigantic actor is to have the part of a trainer of prize fighters.

Talkies Cause New Relations

"No voice doubles in talking pictures" is one of the clauses in a new form of contract under discussion by committees representing producers and players. B. P. Schulberg, Mike Levee, Conrad Nagel and Hallam Cooley are the individuals on the committee. Another question is whether or not the players are to be paid for the time they spend studying their lines for sound films. The advent of talking pictures forecasts many changes in the relations and rules between producer and player. For instance, Sally Eilers' contract with Pathe to appear in "The Missing Man" seems to be conditional. She has merely signed to rehearse the part. If at the end of the week she isn't satisfactory, Pathe has the right to cancel the contract upon payment of one week's salary. "It was not like that in the olden days."

The biggest contrast at a recent opening was afforded by the immaculate and monocled Lowell Sherman and the slouch-hatted Willard Mack, who hadn't condescended to wear a dinner jacket. There was a lady with them, and Lowell was heard to whisper, "Ride in my car, don't ride in Mack's. Mine has a motor in it, his hasn't." She walked.

Dancer Steps Into Stardom

"THE MELANCHOLY DANE" is the title of a Christie all-talkie two-reeler which will star Carolyn Snowden, whose dancing has provided a sort of stepping stone to pictures. Carolyn may be remembered as the colored maid in "The First Year." The Christie brothers plan a series of short films based on the darktown tales of Octavus Roy Cohen.

Turn about is fair play, it seems. In the local stage play, "Nightstick," Patsy Ruth Miller, a movie actress, stars. In the screen version of "Nightstick," Eleanor Griffith, a stage player, acts the same role Patsy Ruth has on the stage. Try to figure it out.

On very excellent authority, it is understood that Mary Pickford has arranged to appear in the stage version of "Coquette" before starring in the picture. To this end she is said to have engaged the Hollywood Music Box Theater, on a percentage basis, and is reported to be assembling a cast to put on the show.

Colleen Moore and John McCormick are planning to spend the Christmas holidays on their yacht in South Seas waters, providing "That's A Bad Girl" is completed in time.

Washington Man Shot in Argument

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 12.—Russell Welch, aged 29, 6 Buena Vista street, was wounded in the left side in a shooting here early this morning. E. R. Coran, aged 40, employed locally as a salesman but whose home is near Bentleyville, is being sought.

Welch and Coran had been drinking together. An argument is blamed.

Stanley Company To Open New House Soon

Around Christmas the Stanley Company of America will open the Enright Theater, East Liberty, named in memory of Thomas Francis Enright. The new house, largest in Pittsburgh outside of the downtown district, will be the third largest in Western Pennsylvania.

Elaborate plans for the opening will have the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce co-operating with the Stanley Company, through a special committee headed by Magistrate A. D. Brandon, and including A. C. MacCumbee, Henry Bluestone, John B. Golden, F. G. Conley, John A. Scott, Jr., Maj. C. B. Shaffer, Jack Watson, Harold E. Heimert, George M. Dowler, Samuel L. King, Jr., A. Patrick Flood and Percy Trump.

At a meeting of this committee various sub-committees were appointed, including one to have charge of plans for a parade, this committee being headed by Maj. C. B. Shaffer.

STAGE BILLS HAVE FUN, MUSIC

"The Desert Song," with Alexander Gray and Bernice Claire in the leading roles, will begin its second week in the Alvin tonight.

"Bringing Up Father," a comedy with music, based on the George McManus comic strip, will be presented in the Pitt tonight, opening a week's engagement.

"Whoopee," Ziegfeld's latest musical production, starring Eddie Cantor, will open its second and last week in the Nixon tonight.

"The Little Spitfire," to be presented for the first time tonight in the Gayety by the Gayety Players, will have Mary Ann Dentler in the role of a chorus girl.

"The Age of Innocence" is the title of a new play in which Katharine Cornell comes to the Pitt next week. It is a dramatization of Edith Wharton's novel of the same name by Margaret Ayer Barnes. Arnold Korff and Rollo Peters are in the cast.

Th score of "Golden Dawn," returning to the Alvin next week, is by Emerich Kalman, the Viennese composer, and Herbert Stothart. Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein II wrote the book. Joseph Urban painted the scenes. The cast includes Paul Gregory, Bonnie Emerie, Robert Chisholm, Nellie Breen, Gil Squires, Paula Ayres and others.

"Hit the Deck," musical comedy, will return to the Nixon for one week, beginning Monday, November 19, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. Queenie Smith and Charles Purcell head a company of 75.

PARROT SAVED; FIRE PROBED

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Nov. 12.—A fire, featured by rescue of a parrot, was being investigated today by State Fire Marshall Elmer Faber and local authorities. Flames swept the frame business structure and dwelling of Adam Typinski, 1149 Fourth avenue, early Saturday, and spread to the German Beneficial Union's three-story frame building and Harry Massy's barber shop, causing $4,800 loss. Half an hour after the blaze apparently had been extinguished the flames flared anew and required combined efforts of New Kensington and Parnassus firemen to subdue them. The firemen, attracted by cries of the parrot, when they were fighting the fire on the second floor of the Typinski dwelling, carried it to safety.

BUGS BAER Says

RETURNS coming in from Nova Scotia and Cicero, Ill., indicate that Hoover is still President.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Last week was the greatest week in the history of the shock market, otherwise known as Wall street.

The shock exchange is enjoying a spasmodic tremor known as a Hoover market. Last Thursday 5,000,000 shares of different styles of fancy certificates were bought and sold.

The Hoover market is a result of the present great wave of prosperity that is sweeping over those who guess right.

It is the aftermath of the glorious Republican victory of last Tuesday when Florida finally shook off the autocratic rule of the Seminole Indians and joined the G. O. P.

It looks as if the country intended to remain prosperous in spite of the efforts of the reformers to save it.

Industrials, rails and by-products all showed immense strength in the soiree of trading which breaks loose every time a nervous broker gets near a loose ticker.

The jump of railroad securities is logical when you figure the grand total of Democrats who will buy one-way tickets from Washington to Kansas City, Denver and points worse.

This exodus of crippled goslings will be augmented by the influx of happy Republicans headed to the capital city to pick up the scattered threads and knit themselves some warm winter sox.

The Democratic party has received some fine election shellackings. But this is the first time they ever got three coats of paint.

The Republicans have now won three straight elections. It is fortunate for the Democrats that the political racket in America is not an elimination contest.

We do not know whether the third victory entitles the Repubs to permanent possession of the trophy. But, if the Demmies are smart in 1932, they will allow their dues to clapse and join the winners.

Taking it all in all we would say that politics isn't a bad game. There was a little mud slung by both sides. But not enough to make a pie.

A man going into public life can expect the life of an oyster. He is sure to get fried, boiled or panned.

The healthy reaction in Wall street indicates that these United States of America will continue to flourish for many centuries with the aid of mustard plasters, hot applications and requests to join the League of Nations.

ROME FLIGHT CALLED OFF

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—The proposed flight to Rome of Charles A. Levine's trans-Atlantic monoplane Columbia has been postponed for the rest of this year, Roger Q. Williams, the pilot, has announced.

Williams said he and his navigator, Piero Bonelli, had decided to cancel the flight for this year at the suggestion of the United States Weather Bureau, which predicted bad weather for transocean flying during the next few months.

Charles A. Levine, owner, agreed with the pilots that it was wiser to call the Rome fiflight off.

Adolph Bolm Ballet In Program Tonight

The Adolph Bolm Ballet will appear as the second attraction in the Bortz Concerts in Carnegie Music Hall tonight. In 22 numbers it will present interpretations of various composers, including Chopin, Selig, Delibes Mondonville, Strauss, Debussey and others. Featured dancers in a company of 28 will be Vera Mirova, Agnes De Mille, Adolph Bolm and Bernice Holmes.

Philadelphia Plans Pa. Democrat Club

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Philadelphia is to have a Democratic club which is to be made the central point for the entire Democratic movement in Pennsylvanal, party leaders have announced. Under present plans the new organization is to function somewhat along the lines of the Union League, although on a less elaborate scale, and it is to be "progressive democracy" that the league is to the Republican party. The idea has been approved by the national and state committees, it was said, and organization plans are already under way.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE "PLASTIC" AGE

By MARTIN ROSS JEFFERSON

CHARLES JORDAN grinned in the mirror. Then he squinted and pulled down the corners of his mouth. Then he turned sideways and raised his chin haughtily. "No matter which way you look at it," he mused, "it's o. k. I'm not the same guy—and maybe I'm not glad."

He picked up a strange steel object and flung it joyously to the other end of the well-appointed room.

"There, little nose clamp, I'm through with you," he almost shouted. "And through with football, too." This latter ruefully. Then he slipped into a heavy topcoat, adjusted a dark green felt hat casually on a well-molded head and left the house. house.

He wandered idly up and down the block wondering what to do. Should he phone her, call on her or write her? Should he explain why he hadn't communicated with her for four weeks? Would she be angry with him? His heart beat as fast as if he were about to step out upon the gridiron again every time he thought of Janet Marsh. He remembered the last evening they had spent together, before his operation. She had been so quiet, so small, as they drove through the park after the dance. When he had told her, she had cried a little and through her tears, murmured, "I love you, too."

"Rats!" he exclaimed aloud, as the scene came back to him. "If she loved me she should certainly understand that I would have seen her if I could. Anyway, I'll try."

He phoned her house. "May I speak to Miss Janet Marsh?" he asked, his voice doing a Charleston.

"This is she."

He knew. He knew it was she from the way she had of saying "hello"—hanging onto the last syllable as though she were singing. "Janet, this is Charley Jordan," he managed to say at last.

"Really? You mean the football player who invited me to dances occasionally?"

"The same. The football player who told you he loved you."

"And didn't mean it."

Her voice was a bit unsteady as she said that. Then, "It's good to hear from you again, Charley."

Charles wondered at her tone. It wasn't sarcastic or indignant. She didn't seem to mind that he hadn't phoned or written. She just seemed indifferent. She even laughed and called him a flatterer when he said he had missed seeing her. Then he asked, "Has anything exciting happened to you, Janet in the lost month?"

"Nothing to cable you about," she said lightly. "Remember Jack Davies who was on the team with you?"

"Yes, I certainly do. Fine chap," he said. "Has he made Phi Beta?"

She hesitated a moment. "Yes—Phi Beta and—and—me. That is, we're engaged."

After that Charles didn't say much of any importance. He remembered later having muttered something about "best wishes" and "lucky guy" and "hope you're happy." All the things you say automatically—and don't really mean.

He left the telephone booth and walked around the block again. So she had forgotten all about him in a month, and fallen for the other fellow. Couldn't have been in love with him, then. Girls don't fall out of love so quickly. He couldn't. He knew he'd remember her always.

Distractely he got into a cab. "Drive anywhere," he told the man. "Just keep on driving until I say when." He sat forward in the car and buried his head. The driver sped up the avenue noiselessly, swiftly. Suddenly Jordan found himself jolted forward violently. The driver had jammed on the emergency brakes just in time to avoid a crash with another taxi. The ex-football player whose heart had been broken a month after his nose had been smashed, sat up and looked into the other taxi. Then he rubbed his eyes. What the dickens!

The occupant of the other taxi looked startled for a moment. Then she smiled, in evident relief at the narrow escape. Charles lifted his hat and wondered whether he should get out and say "hello." He hardly knew what to do. What would the etiquette books advise? When you met the lady who had smashed your heart into tiny bits were you expected to greet her cordially?

The lady didn't seem to be in much of a quandary, though. She smiled again, and suddenly it dawned upon Jordan that she didn't recognize him. Had the nose made such a difference, he wondered? Then an idea struck him. He pretended that she, too, was a stranger. And he pretended very well. For within 15 minutes he had persuaded Janet Marsh that nothing would be lost, and perhaps something gained if she had dinner with him that evening.

Nothing was lost. During dinner Charley Jordan so ingratiated himself with the young lady that she treated him like a long-lost friend and unburdened herself of her troubles. She had been ill, she told him, over a disappointment in love. The man had practically asked her to marry him. Then he had gone away. He had not so much as sent her a post-card. For a few days she feared he was ill—that an accident had befallen him. Then she told herself that he was probably trifling with her and had never cared. That afternoon he had phoned her, but had offered no explanation.

"Did you give him an opportunity?" Charley asked.

"Well, you see, I thought I did. I told him I was engaged to someone else, hoping he would show some signs of disappointment." A tear rolled down Janet's cheek, but it didn't seem to bother Charley, for he was busy telling her a story.

"My nose was broken in a football skirmish," he said, "and somehow I didn't want to tell my friends I was having a prastic operation. You know how boys are—they think that sort of thing's effeminate. And I couldn't bear their comments. So I went away, without telling—"

Janet searched his face. "You mean you're—" Then she covered her eyes. "Oh, what a fool I've been!" she cried. "Now you know everything and you won't—"

"Yes, now I know everything, Janet—and I'm terribly glad. And you will forgive me for deceiving you, won't you? That is, if you can't bring yourself to do that right away, will you try after we're married?"

"I'll try," she said, as she reached for his hand.

MOTHER

When the baby gets on its feet and essays the first step, it is time for Mother to give serious thought to the foundation it is to have for its walk through life.

Mother has a real responsibility in the kind of shoes she buys and where she buys them for that first step.

Laird's conscientious shoe fitting service is second to none. We provide shoes that are made in strict conformity to nature's own plan. They are flexible, absolutely smooth inside, and shaped to give support and inspire confidence in the youngster learning to walk.

We can conceive of no more important personal service than the proper fitting of a child's foot at that age when the beginning stands for the whole and on which so much depends during later life.

Westminster Abbey of Pittsburgh

Mount Royal Memorial Mausoleum

"Boast not thyself of tomorrow, for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth."

The coming of the Grim Reaper into every home is inevitable. When that time comes we are compelled to perform life's saddest duty—laying away in that long, last sleep some dear one to await God's day.

No more beautiful place of repose could be found than Pittsburgh's Westminster Abbey, a stately Mausoleum of granite, marble and bronze, where the loved one rests in sunlight mellowed by cathedral windows, and there is eliminated that hardest part of funeral rites, the commitment to earth.

This ideal, modern method of entombment above ground costs no more than an ordinary earth burial and is immeasurably more comforting to the bereaved.

We are always pleased to have you consult us and to answer any inquiries without imposing an obligation.

IN THIS DAY OF SPEED AND TRAFFIC CONGESTION

The car that has been built to stand up under the strain of quick stopping, speedy getaway, smooth performance under most trying driving conditions, day in and day out, in addition to the quality of high speed on the highway, is the car of the hour.

When that car adds to these qualifications every latest development known to science in the motor car field, to insure its mechanical perfection and to guarantee, through the use of ingenious appliances, the convenience and comfort of its occupants, no matter how long the ride—

When its graceful beauty tells vividly of perfect balance, of nice precision of design, of smooth riding ease—

When to all of these is added the attractive quality of a surprisingly low initial cost and minimized upkeep expense—

That car must naturally take its place at the head of a long procession of good automobiles—the mature development of two groups of engineers combined in one who have been long at the game and through wide experience "know their motor car."

To the practical person, the desirability of an automobile lies in its use. To own one, means a large initial cost, expense of upkeep and loss of use when out of repair.

Our service affords you all the advantages of use, without the disadvantages of ownership. Modern cars, of any make or model, are available to all; may be driven anywhere, at any time; and the expense is moderate and based upon mileage covered.

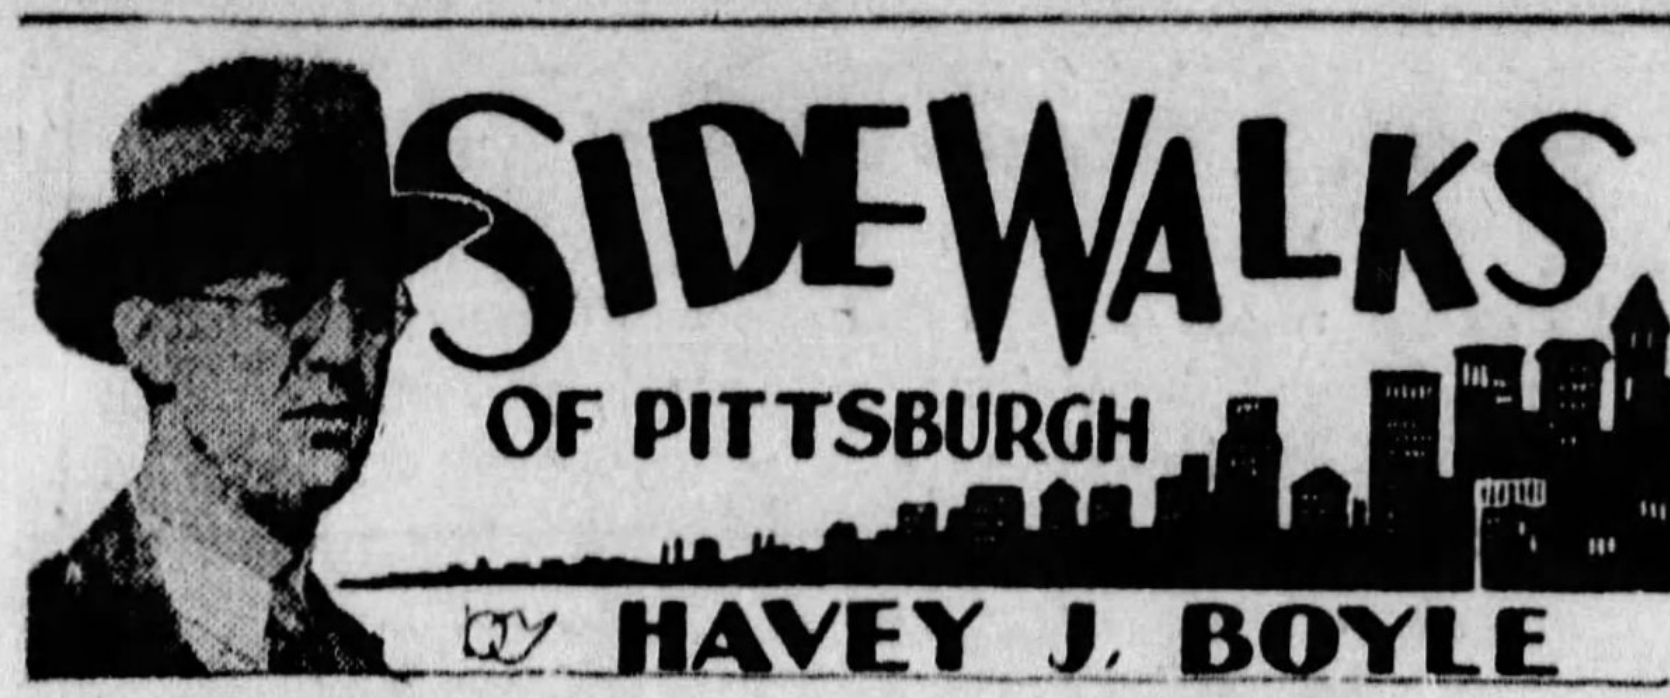
Need for Peace Stressed by Pastor



SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

ARMISTICE DAY. The soldiers are celebrating today. A little more than 10 years ago quite a few of the boys hadn't much hope of seeing their native Pittsburgh again. Pittsburgh in the war days: Soldiers every place. Four-minute speakers. Liberty Loan drives. Men and women on prominent street corners exhorting citizens to buy enough rope to hang the kaiser. Germans were considered pretty bad people 10 years ago. Propaganda stories said they bombed hospitals and killed innocent children. A lot of people believed those stories, too.

DON'T NOTICE HIM--HIS GRANDFATHER LIVED IN GERMANY FOR TWO YEARS!
HOWDY MEN!

Newspapers had columns and columns of draftees' names summoned through the various local boards. Every time a detachment of draftees left there was a parade from draft headquarters to the train. A band played martial music, and the soon-to-be soldiers carried a large American flag, spread out. Into that flag watchers along the route threw money—to buy tobacco and chocolate for the boys . . . Once in a while a future private would be feeling hilarious through a last moment sup before being inducted into the service. Comrades would smile as he made whoopee along the line of march. In the congested districts old women, sitting on their doorsteps, would brush away a tear with an immaculate apron. At the station, mothers, wives and sweethearts gathered to make fond farewell. Cameras clicked as soldiers, leaning out of windows, reached the hand of his fair one for a last embrace.

"WORK OR FIGHT," said one order from a man named Crowder. Government agents were busy gathering up draft evaders. Bergdoll, a Philadelphia millionaire, was a special villain. He made his way to Germany. Editorials thundered for his scalp.

The "flu" epidemic came along. It mowed down soldiers and citizens. Local hospitals were so crowded that patients were given cots in the corridors. Doctors and nurses worked day and night, wearily, hardly able to make any check on the disease that respected no medicine. In the camps it was so bad that soldiers wore masks and no one was allowed to leave or enter the camps. Pitt and Tech students, all in uniforms, members of the S. A. T. C. Their campuses were guarded. Theaters were closed. A football game was called off. Public assemblage gave the "flu" germ too much opportunity. "Over There" was the best musical piece coming out of those days. Such songs, created before Uncle Sam entered the war, as "I Didn't Raise My Boy To Be a Soldier," evinced solemn articles in the magazines, with emphasis on the perverted philosophy of such a song.

Soldiers have a right to make whoopee today.

A SOLDIER objects to a recent story here about a Chinese cook at St. Aignan, France, in the war days. "You got the name wrong, too," he says. "That was St. Agony. And there was no cook there. We got rice in the morning, canned salmon at noon, and corn-beef at night. I'll shoot the guy that says there was a cook in that camp."

Ten years ago two soldiers were coming back from the front a day before the Armistice was declared. Last Saturday, again a day before Armistice Day, the two soldiers, who hadn't seen each other since, met up in Oakland. Steve Doyle, of Sharon, and Tom Kenny, of Pittsburgh, cracked each other's back after such a long time. Kenny has exchanged the khaki for the blue of the local gendarmes. Steve is still telling the folks in Sharon that a particular lot is only a five-minute walk from the car line.

ROSS TWP. TAKES ON CITY AIRS, PLANS ZONING LAW

Transformed in the last few years from a farming district into a populous suburban area, Ross township has shaken off the last rustic vestige by adopting a building code.

A comprehensive set of regulations drafted by Herbert Hentzel, a member of the board of township commissioners, and Attorney John E. Winner, solicitor, has been approved and will be put into operation with appointment of a building inspector. A zoning law has been prepared and will be submitted to the residents of the different districts prior to being enacted by the commissioners.

Under the code all permits will be issued by a building inspector who shall be a practical architect or builder. He will be paid by fee, receiving $3 for permits for buildings costing $1,000; 5 for those between $1,000 and $5,000 and $1 additional for each $1,000 in excess of that sum.

Restrictions are provided to insure fireproof structures, especially in the more thickly populated districts adjoining Pittsburgh on the north and Bellevue on the east. The proposed zoning law protects residential districts from objectionable buildings, business and manufacturing encroachments.

Serving on the zoning board are H. G. Ruehl, T. C. Ivory, William Forbes, John Winner and George Englert.

"It is a step that we should have taken long ago," said Attorney Winner. "Ross township has an estimated population of 6,500 and an assessed property value of $9,000,000, which is more than many boroughs. The building and zoning codes will serve to make the township an even more desirable residential district."

E. A. Brethauer is president of the township board of commissioners.

Thompson, on behalf of his daughter, Rose Thompson, has filed suit for $15,000 damages against Stanley Stewski, 112 Merchant street, Ambridge, as a result of an automobile collision in which Miss Thompson was hurt. BELLEVUE POST DRIVES FOR MEMBERS

Come on, Buddy, let's join.

The North Boroughs Post No. 116, American Legion, has begun a drive for new members. The 100 ex-service men now comprising the unit hope to have at least as many more names on the roll when the campaign closes. More than 450 prospects have been found who are not attached to any post. All ex-service men of the World War, whether of the Army, Navy or Marine Corps, are eligible.

Before long the officers expect to have completed arrangements for a permanent post home. Their plans recently were frustrated temporarily by a decision of the Bellevue zoning board refusing a permit for a building as planned in South Balph avenue, the second floor of which was to be used as a post headquarters. At present the organization meets in the Bellevue borough hall.

Any one of the officers or men of the unit will receive applications for membership in the post. The officers are:

Reno Divorce Does Not Go in Butler

BUTLER, Pa., Nov. 12.—Divorce secured in another state will not be recognized in the Butler County Court unless the charges had their origin in that state, Judge James M. Galbreath ruled today. The case was that of Ralph O. Saylor, of Petersville, former desk seargent of the Butler police bureau, who presented a divorce decree obtained in Reno, Nev., as a defense to non-support charges made by his wife, Mary Saylor. Judge Galbreath ordered Saylor to pay his wife $40 a months and give bond for $500 to insure payment. Saylor obtained a leave of absence last summer, presumably on account of his health, went to Reno and returned with the divorce after a few months. He was arrested for non-support when he reached Butler.

STEPS TAKEN TO OUTLAW WAR ARE LAUDED IN MT. LEBANON CHURCH

Prompted by the proximity of Armistice Day and inspired by the object of the great World War, terminated 10 years ago, that war might be outlawed and peace come to Democracy, the Rev. Edward C. McCown, pastor of the Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church, yesterday morning delivered a sermon to his congregation, setting forth peace as the greatest thing to be desired.

The Rev. McCown took his text from Phil 4, 7: "And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall garrison your hearts and your thoughts in Christ Jesus."

He said in part:

Ten years ago today the orders went over the world battlefields, "Cease firing." For four long years men had been facing one another upon the field of carnage and slaughter. The greatest war of all history was brought to a close on that eventful "Armistice Day."

This announcement was welcomed by the entire nation, because it meant that her sons would no longer be compelled to fight their way across "no man's land," and to sacrifice their lives in the interest of peace.

1. We need the garrison of peace.

A great general of the dark days of the 60s said, "War is hell." When we measure the destruction which war brings, the hatred it awakens, and the heartaches it causes we feel that the distinguished military leader was not far wrong in his much quoted definition.

PROTECTION NEEDED

We need protection from the inroads of such a power, and this protection will come not by way of armies and navies, but by the way of peace. The greatest preparedness that we can boast is a preparedness of peace.

National life is so interwoven today that we cannot afford to be in conflict one with the other. The news of the election a few days ago was known throughout the world before the dawn of the next day. There is no country in the world that can possibly live to itself.

Thus our national interests have been broadened until we must have something that will take the place of war as our defense.

2. We must construct that garrison of peace.

A garrison is a place of refuge. It does not provide itself, but plans are made and forts or dugouts are built.

Peace is a garrison which will come by way of definite plan and effort. The steps which have been taken in recent years in the interest of peace led up gradually to the signing of the Kellogg peace pact in Paris during the month of August of this year.

WAR IS OUTLAWED

Never before have nations openly declared that war is an outlaw This is a great step, and it should have the support of public sentiment everywhere until it becomes a reality in the practice of nations as well as in the purpose of nations as declared in this peace pact.

The League of Nations, the World Court, and other definite organizations and efforts have led up to this great declaration recently signed by 15 of our largest countries and by others since that time. It is the privilege of the church to encourage the thought of peace and to support the statesmen who struggle for peace between the nations of the world.

Just so far as we enlarge the interests of Jesus Christ, just so far will we enlarge the possibilities of peace. Our text encourages us to fill our thoughts and hearts with the ideals of peace as they are given by our Lord. He came as the herald of "peace and good will." To his disciples he said, "My peace I leave with you." This peace is for individuals and for nations. It is the greatest defense that we can ever possess.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 12, 1928.

Arkansaw voted last Tuesday against evolution and Republicans. They don't want anything taught about either subject in their schools.

Houghton goes back to London as Ambassador. It seems his resignation was lost in the mails and didn't reach Mr. Coolidge till just as they had finished counting the votes in New York. So Mr. Houghton owes the salvaging of his job to the inefficiency of the Republican postal system, and not as some "catty" ones thought to Mr. Coolidge favoritism.

Many a guy wishes he hadn't resigned by being misled by the promises of a lot of "dumb" party leaders. You never saw a smart fellow like Joe Robinson resigning did you?

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

Aunt Evvie Disgraces Joan At a Dinner Given by Curtis' Mother

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Joan Hastings, seventeen and beautiful, lives with two old maiden aunts and one of them, Aunt Evvie, tells her of her unmarried mother's tragic love affair and death. Joan falls in love with Bill Martin, a penniless young man, and she is sent away to school. Bill, an innocent victim of a bootlegging gang, is sent to jail and Joan, begging for bail money from the aunts, confesses everything to them. She is put on a train for school in charge of a woman friend of Aunt Evvie's. Bill, freed, bids goodby to his mother, leaving no address and befriending Rollo Keyes, a rich young spender, is given a job by his father. Joan, escaping from the train, reaches his home just after he has gone. Concealing her presence from her aunts she gets a position in a department store and later works as a model in a smart shop. There Mrs. Barstow, a rich society woman, sees her, likes her and asks her to tea. She meets Curtis Barstow who immediately becomes interested in her. Joan goes to see Mrs. Martin and learns that Bill has written but has not asked for her. She thinks he no longer cares. Bill comes home and discovers that Joan is close at hand. Joan meets Bill again and discovers Ruth Gillespie, one of the girls at the shop, is deeply in love with him. Mrs. Barstow puts herself out to be nice to Joan for her son's sake. Joan becomes hysterical when Bill visits her and offers to marry her. Mrs. Barstow invites her to spend a week-end at her cottage in the mountains. When she returns, Ruth questions her about her love affair with Bill. Bill disappears after he has an argument with Rollo's dad. Joan refuses to accept Curtis after he proposes to her. Later, however, she becomes engaged to him. Curtis' mother visits Aunt Evvie and questions her about Joan. Joan constantly thinks of Bill and plans to break her engagement, but changes her mind. Curtis' mother arranges a dinner in honor of Joan and invites her Aunt Evvie.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"I'LL try . . .!" If only Aunt Evvie and Aunt Babe stay away . . . don't let them come . . . don't let them come. . . .

The dinner was to be on a Thursday, and all the four days before, Joan spent with Aunt Evvie and Aunt Babe on her mind. She couldn't forget them. Joan wore the pale blue dress that Francine couldn't sell, with a great spray of gardenias from Curtis, on her shoulder. She looked very young and appealing. Mrs. Barstow could find nothing to criticize, and Curtis was radiant with pride.

The Farleys, middle-aged and shriveled, came first. Then the Mosses, very magnificient in coat-tails and black velvet, faintly smelling of moth balls. Mrs. Thompson bent and kissed Joan, a hard little peck of a kiss. "So this is Curtis' bride-to-be! And I remember him when he was that high, and Lyla cried when she had to cut his hair . . . do you remember, Benjamin?" But Benjamin was too busy appraising Joan. He was a very fat man with a little goatee, and brown liver spots on his sallow face. He kissed her, too. Greedily. "I'm your Uncle Benjie!" he wheezed.

At last Aunt Evvie came.

Joan felt her coming, though her back was turned. Heard her manly rumble, the polite murmurings of people being introduced. "Miss Van Fleet, Joan's aunt."

"Joan, dear," Curtis was at her elbow, to bring her to Aunt Evvie. She had to go.

"Well, well, so this is the young man!" Aunt Evvie boomed. She was shaking his hand, he was laughing and talking, so naturally, so easily . . .

Joan lifted her eyes to look at Aunt Evvie. Shoes first, the familiar broad, black kid ones. The black brocade dress with the funny lace frills . . . the diamond brooch with the zigzags of sunburst shooting out in all directions . . . then higher . . . Aunt Evvy's beady black eyes boring into hers, the flash of her big white teeth . . . click, click (they didn't fit very well) . . . "How are you, Joan?" The big hand shaking hers, heartily, like a man. That was all. "How are you, Joan?" And Joan's knees knocking, knocking.

Aunt Evvie knew it. Knew she was afraid. Her big, square head nodded reassuringly, almost kindly. The onyx and gold earrings were shaking to and fro and trembled in her big red ears . . . "Do not be afraid, Joan . . . do not tremble . . . what do we Van Fleets care for these people?"

She even made Mrs. Barstow nervous. Joan could feel it, all through the long dinner. She drank her soup with a dreadful sucking noise . . . the false teeth again. She ate steadily through all the courses that most of the others hardly touched. They had to sit and wait for her.

She might have been the Empress of China, dining alone.

Only once did she speak and that was when Mrs. Farley asked about Babe.

"I know Cornelia—you used to call her Babe, didn't you?—when she was a girl. I'm sorry she couldn't come tonight."

Evvie chased a pea around her nearly empty plate, and swallowed it before she answered. "Oh, she never goes out. She's one of those nervous women. I hope Joan doesn't turn out that way!"

Joan knew they were all looking at her. She twisted her napkin under the tablecloth.

"She used to be a high strung, spirited little thing," Aunt Evvie went on, speaking to Mrs. Farley and booming so that she could be heard a mile, "but she looks kind of peaked and washed out tonight.

"I used to think she'd turn out more like me."

It was an endless and uncomfortable dinner.

At last they were going. The Farleys and the Mosses and the Giddings last. Then only Aunt Evvie was left.

She beckoned Joan to accompany her upstairs while Curtis went to summon Roberts and the car to take her to the ferry.

Slyly she closed the door of the guest room where she had left her black silk cape with the brownish sealskin collar and the stiff black lace hat with the wobbly red rose.

"Sh-hhh," she whispered, "are these walls good? Can they hear?"

"No, I don't think so. What—what is it, Aunt Evvie?"

Aunt Evvie leaned against the door to make sure. "Come closer; I don't want the whole house to hear."

(Copright, 1928, Kings Features Syn., Inc.)

CHAPTER XXVI.

AUNT EVVIE, having closed the door, advanced to the mirror with the stiff black lace hat, with its wobbly wired up rose. "Just like the young men of today. No patience. Want you to be on the move. Well, he's all right, Joan. You've done well for yourself."

Aunt Evvie studied her in the mirror, deliberately and thoroughly. "You have changed, Joan," she said at last. "I hope you aren't going to get nerves, like Babe."

"No—oh no—I'm not nervous, Aunt Evvie."

"Oh yes, you are. Do you take me for a fool? What is it, Joan—you haven't been fool enough to blab about that mechanic to anybody, have you?"

"No, I—I—never told — anybody—"

"I thought you might. Girls tell all they know sometimes. Well, don't. Do you hear me?"

"Don't what, Aunt Evvie?" Joan's voice was just a whisper, a shamed, thin whisper.

"Don't let that young man know. Above all, keep that mewing old cat of a mother of his off the track." The deep old voice dropped to a rumbling stage whisper. "Don't trust her. I could say more, but the less you know the better off you'll be."

Joan clutched her arm. "What do you mean, Aunt Evvie?"

"Nothing. Humph. Nothing. Now you mark my words, you're safe as long as you use your head. But let that boy get wind of it, and he'd drop you quicker than a hotcake—just like that—"

"No—Aunt Evvie—no—"

"Oh, yes. I know his kind. Now don't look at me like that, Joan Hastings! I declare you never got that soft streak from the Van Fleets. Brace up! What's the matter with you? What do you care for these Barstows? Bah! He ought to be proud to marry a Van Fleet — under any circumstances."

She patted Joan's shoulder. "I'm ashamed of you. Bunch of nerves. No excuse for it. Well, I must be going. I think there is a little seed pearl bracelet in the bank I'll send you. I'm sorry there isn't much left. I intend you shall have some of the silver and linens for a wedding present. Your third of what Mama had."

And still Joan hung her head.

Aunt Evvie was tolerant, she had had a good dinner, the visit had amused her. She took Joan's small cold hands in her big warm ones. "Don't be a fool," she said, almost affectionately. "I was always fond of you, girl. I missed you. Well—"

She reached for the door. "Goodby. Brace up. Keep your head!"

"I do hope Joan isn't going to be sickly," Mrs. Barstow said when Curtis returned, after taking Joan home. She had waited up for him.

"Oh, she's all right," he said easily. "Little tired, that's all."

"Yes, but I don't like her pallor. It's unnatural. And you heard what Miss Van Fleet said about nerves. Curtis, you don't know what it would mean to have to live with a nervous woman. There's nothing worse. They're always imagining things, brooding—"

"You never imagine anything," he smiled, a little coldly.

She came and put her white hand on his arm. The old, fluttering movement. "I wish you wouldn't speak to mother that way. I don't like it, dear. You aren't yourself lately. Whenever I try to speak of Joan—"

The Man in the Moon -:- By Madge Geyer

© 1928, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved.

TO EVERY girl in love, the man in the moon is a perfect picture of her adored one. Whenever she gazes at Mr. Man-in-the-Moon she sees the dear features of her very own beloved and therefore she gazes long and soulfully at his picture, suspended in the sky for all to see.

Ah, if she could but reach him and take his dear face between her hands and give him the kiss which is ever trembling on her lips for him alone. Even though he has left her but a short hour before, it seems ages and ages ago—and longer still to wait until tomorrow. So she watches the moon and plays her "pretended" game and kisses her beloved "goodnight." And that's why they call the moon the friend of all lovers.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A Continuation of Love's Embers

Junior's Accident Presents an Unexpected Complication

MINDFUL of Katherine's admonition, I at first did not speak when Junior said "Mother!" the first word he uttered after rallying from the slight concussion he had received in his fall from the big apple tree. But I put all my heart into the smile I gave him.

"Mother!" he said again, this time with a querulous note which I welcomed. I would have been glad to see him go into one of his childish tempers, to make me doubly sure that he had come back to me unchanged.

I glanced at Katherine, and she nodded. Her lips framed the words, "Answer him," although no sound issued from them.

"Yes, darling. Mother's right here," I said, and he gave a little relieved sigh. Patently he had not been quite sure until that assurance that he was really in his own sphere of things.

"Have I been asleep?" he asked next, but I hardly had answered him with a "yes," before his eyes widened with remembrance, and he put his hand up to his head with a little cry of pain, which twisted my heart strings.

"Oh, my head hurts," he said. "And I remember now. I fell out of the apple tree."

He tried to raise himself and winced again.

"I'm hurt all over," he wailed. "But I won't cry. You'll see."

From his babyhood both Dicky and I have taught him that it is unmanly to cry at trivial hurts. But to see him apply that teaching in this time of real suffering, nearly made me disgrace my own teaching before him. I knew, however, that I must help Katherine to keep him quiet, so I fought the tears back and smiled brightly at him.

"That's Mother's own brave boy!" I told him. "And now, I want you to lie very still until the doctor comes. If you do not move those bruised places will not hurt. And you mustn't talk much, either."

"All right! Will you stay right here and hold my hand, you and Dad? Hello! Dad! I didn't see you, before."

"Hello! old fellow! I'm right here. Mother and I won't leave you if you'll keep quiet."

"All right," he sighed again, and Katherine deftly saw to it that the hand he extended was not the one belonging to the dislocated shoulder, so recently put in place by Mr. Underwood. I drew a low chair close to the side of the bed and covered the little brown hand with my own. Dicky put some cushions on the floor beside me and knelt upon them, his hand tightly closed over mine and our boy's. And so we waited until the arrival of the physician, whom Mr. Underwood smuggled up the back way that Mother Graham might not see him if she awakened from the slight sleep into which she had fallen, according to the report Marion sent upstairs to us.

Dr. Havens, who had come to us because of Dr. Pettit's accident while hastening to the farmhouse, is not a particularly prepossessing man, and his voice is hoarse, somewhat raucous. But his face to me was handsomer than any movie sheik's, his voice more musical than any opera tenor's when he turned away from the bed after a thorough examination of our little lad and announced that there were no serious results of the fall.

"He must stay in bed for two or three days and be careful about too strenuous play until these sore muscles and that shoulder are perfectly restored," he said, and I felt as if a crushing weight had been lifted from my heart. But a little later out of Junior's hearing he added a sentence which suddenly presented a troublesome problem for my immediate solution.

"It's lucky you're out here in the country," he said. "A fall like that affects the nerves and also lowers the general resistance. I should not like to have him in the city. But out here he cannot help coming steadily back to normal. He'll be in splendid shape by spring."

I looked at Dicky with dismay. His work and mine were waiting in New York and only a few hours before he had told me that I must immediately plan the removal of the family to the city for the winter.

Veal and Ham Pie

Slice thinly a pound and a half of veal and a half pound of ham. Mix on a plate a tablespoonful of flour, a little pepper, salt and mace, powdered sweet herbs, and a little grated lemon rind. Roll the meats in this seasoning. Line a casserole dish with good pastry and lay in a layer of the sliced meats, then a sliced hard-boiled egg, then more meat, then another sliced egg, add a little chopped parsley and onion, a cupful of light stock and cover with the upper crust having a vent in the center. Bake one and a quarter hours. Serve hot.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Thorough Cleansing of Face Is Essential

EVERY mother is eager to have her young folks as attractive in appearance as it is possible for them to be. She is unhappy if the boy or girl has an unsightly skin.

DR. COPELAND

I shall say little about girls today, but it won't hurt for them to ponder these statements. For the boys, however, I'm sure it will be worth while to listen.

The average boy who has a pimply face does not wash himself clean. Please do not misunderstand me. He may use more soap and water than his brother or friend who has a clear skin. But some faces require far more water, soap and scrubbing than do others.

If the skin has large pores and is inclined to be greasy, it takes a lot of care to cleanse it thoroughly. Hard water and a slapdash bathing won't do.

As a matter of fact, it is surprising how much dirt may be left on the skin after what may be regarded as pretty thorough washing. Wet the corner of the towel with a little alcohol and after you think the face is clean, rub it over the neck or forehead—you will be embarrassed to see how black the cloth becomes.

In most cities the water supply is very hard. The solvent powers are low. Consequently, this water does not cleanse the skin, as soft water does.

To have a clean skin, the first essential is to use an abundance of suitable water. There are salts which can be purchased at the drug store, salts which have the property of softening water.

Not every soap is suited to hard water. There can be bought what are called "hard-water" soaps. They combine more readily with the chemical elements of the water and, consequently are more useful for cleansing the skin.

It is a fact, too, that a given soap may not agree with a particular skin. You must try one after another until an acceptable soap is found.

I am sorry to say that many persons fear to scrub the skin with a coarse wash-cloth. They are afraid it may damage the body covering, as a wire mat might damage the piano veneer. This is a mistake. The rubbing and scrubbing, if not too roughly done, will do the skin good.

There are various cleansing creams and lotions, too, that have positive merit in "cleansing the pores" and adding to the real cleanliness of the skin. Some other time we will discuss them.

Many boys eat too much fat, too much pastry, too much candy. Boys sneer at salads and often think they are too big to drink milk.

If boys want to have clear skins, they must eat the right foods; they must avoid the wrong ones. The lad with the greasy skin and big pores must dodge the fats, such as an excess of butter. When taken into the system in excess they add an undesirable quantity of a substance which the skin does not need. If the skin is too greasy it catches and holds the dust and dirt.

The green leaves used in salads and good milk carry minerals and vitamins, substances which the boys must take if they are to have clear skins. They must drink plenty of water and make sure that the eliminative organs do their work completely.

These are suggestions which if acted upon will make for the clear skin of any boy or girl.

Answers to Health Queries

N. K. Q.—I have to use crutches, due to an injury, and suffer from a gall-bladder condition. What will relieve the pain? Is there any hope of discarding the crutches? The trouble is in the spine.

A.—Careful diet and elimination should help the gall bladder condition. Why not consult your own doctor about the spinal condition? Without examination it would be impossible to advise you along these lines.

D. N. Q.—What causes the joints to crack? What is a good remedy?

2.—What causes the veins to show plainly in the feet and legs?

A.—This is due to the lack of synovial fluid. Massage the parts with warm cod-liver oil before retiring.

2.—Probably varicose veins which are caused by increased tension in the veins, due to either constant external pressure, some obstruction of the deep veins, or, as in many cases, to habitual overexertion, such as long standing.

J. E. S. Q.—What foods are the hardest on the teath?

2.—Does it do the eyes good to roll them?

A.—If you keep your teeth clean no food will hurt them.

2.—Yes, this exercise is helpful to practice once a week.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, November 13

THE astral forces for this day incite to whirlwind changes of a far-reaching and radical nature. It is a time for quick decisions and readiness to grasp preferred opportunities, but withal with sound judgment and wise counsel, since there is a menace of duplicity, as well as financial hazard. With discretion and acumen there are splendid advantages in sight.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of sudden change of whirlwind and unexpected nature, and these should lead to great benefits if cool judgment and clear business acumen be observed, together with wariness against subtlety, trickery and misunderstandings.

A child born on this day may be original, independent, ingenious and adventurous and may make a success of its affairs providing it be alert as to duplicity and fraud and exercise providence and caution with its funds.

Let the great world spin forever down the ringing grooves of change.—Tennyson.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The "Thank You" Note

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

For doing a favor for a person who works in the same building, we received some candy and a letter of thanks in appreciation of that favor.

Is it proper for us to send a return letter of thanks for the candy we received? C. S.

YOU should write a letter of thanks for the candy that was sent to you. First, thank for the kind thought of the person who sent the candy, and then thank for the candy itself. It need not, of course, be a long note, just a short note of appreciation.

An Evening of Cards

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

In giving a little informal evening of cards is it proper for me to invite as our guests couples whom my husband has not met? Also, I have not met the husbands, but admire the wives very much and am very frequently associated with them.

MARY LOU.

YES, this kind of invitation is correct for this informal kind of party.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Old Love Game

THEY say that the only difference between spooning and petting is that Mother used to lie about it, and Daughter brags about it—that the only real difference in the love-game today and the love-game of yesterday is that then we called it romance, and now we call it sex-appeal.

* * *

But I think that something has gone out of it, with the beautiful lost art of flirtation.

* * *

Flirtation went out of fashion along with petticoats, table manners—and marrying-men; and with it went a lot of life's flavor.

HELEN ROWLAND

Flirtation was the gentle art of leading a man on by holding him off. It was to "petting" what waltzing was to jazz; what a half-promise is to a positive threat.

* * *

Flirtation was a guessing game, in which a woman kept a man wondering whether or not he could kiss her. Nowadays he merely wonders whether or not he's GOT to kiss her.

* * *

Flirtation was the hors d'oeuvres to love; "petting" is more like a quick lunch at a cafeteria. Cheap and satisfying for the moment—but apt to leave you with a dull feeling of sentimental indigestion.

* * *

Flirtation was like a Christmas stocking. A man never knew what there was in it—but it was always a surprise. It piqued the curiosity and stimulated the imagination.

* * *

Flirtation was the red tape through which a man had to go in order to kiss a girl. A girl may have been kissed just as often then as now; but flirtation made the kiss more like a privilege and less like an obligation—more like a KISS and less like a handshake.

* * *

Flirtation filled the course of true love with hazards, which made the game infinitely more exciting. It made a woman something to be won, like a golf trophy, instead of something to be dodged, like a tax-collector.

* * *

There were more real thrills in the magnetic meeting of the eyes, the electric touch of finger-tips, than there are in today's "intensive love-making," which appears to consist of a pat on the back and the assurance that you are "a good little scout."

* * *

Times may change, but human nature never changes; and now, as always, a man feels cheated of his sport when "the fish not only swallows the bait, but tries to climb up the line."

* * *

Now, as always, the sweetest part of a kiss is the moment just before taking—and most of the zest of the love-chase consists in not knowing just WHEN that moment will come!

* * *

Now, as always, "the longest way 'round" is the shortest cut to matrimony.

* * *

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Two Braddock Sisters To Make Bows Dec. 10 In Baltimore

WAS there ever a season more full of surprises? When society first came straggling home from summer resorts it looked as though Pittsburgh were going to have what it had not experienced for a long, long time—a winter marked by very few entertainments. But one event after another has been announced, until now no one could ask for a gayer November and December.

And just as everyone had decided that all there would be left to do would be to carry out the calendar of social events, some unexpected debut or entertainment was made known. Now I'm going to tell you about two debutantes who have not been mentioned before, and who might well be included with the Pittsburgh group. Two girls from Braddock, Mary and Martha Maccoun, daughters of the Andrew Ellicott Maccouns, will make their bow this year. But not in Pittsburgh. The girls' father and mother and grandparents, the junior James Pareys, of Baltimore, will give a ball on the evening of December 10 in the Alcazar, Baltimore, to present them. Another daughter of the Maccouns, Carolyn, announced her engagement to John Hanson Croker, of Baltimore, just yesterday.

A number of the Pittsburgh buds and other members of the younger set are planning to attend the debut party. Jane Allderdice and her sister, Nancy, are planning to go. And Mary Marshall and her brother, Charles Donald Marshall, Jr., will attend this Baltimore event, too.

SPEAKING of that popular debutante, Mary Marshall, daughter of the Charles Donald Marshalls, I recall hearing about an entertainment planned for her. Mrs. Grant Dibert, of Penn avenue, will give a luncheon in honor of Mary on December 13. And the affair will be in Mrs. Dibert's home, I believe.

* * *

THE deb's engagement book cannot have a free day left for weeks and weeks, I'm sure, for the list of debutante entertainments is growing longer and longer. Mrs. Harry A. Sipe will give a lunheon in her home on Elgin avenue Wednesday afternoon, November 28. Sharing honors will be Bettie McCullough, daughter of the William T. McCulloughs, Louise Evans, daughter of the Henry Oliver Evanses, and Elizabeth Guiler, daughter of the Leonard Kent Guilers.

DANCES, of course, figure largely in entertainment for debutantes. A new ball date has just been taken—December 5. Ernest Hillman on that evening will give a dinner dance in the Longue Vue Country Club for Bettie McCullough.

* * *

ON December 4, Mrs. John V. Kimerer, of Severn street, will give a luncheon in her home for 'de, have you heard?

* * *

THE Allison R. Maxwells, of Bennington drive, will give a dinner and dance for Louise Latimer Reed, who is their niece, you know, later in the season. The date, I understand, has not yet been definitely set.

* * *

AUGUST R. EISERT, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Eisert, of Washington, accompanied by his bride, the former Elena Artioli, of the Castel San Angelo at Rome, is expected to return to this country on Friday, having sailed from Naples last Thursday. Mr. Eisert has been studying piano in Rome for the last three years.

MEMBERS of the University of Pittsburgh Reserve Officers' Training School will hold their annual military ball Friday night in the Hotel Schenley, when honorary commissions as captains will be presented to six women students. Those who will receive awards are Miss Mary Ray, Miss Mabel DeForrest, Miss Beatrice Crippen, Miss Isabelle Lohr, Miss Dorothy Davis and Miss Margaret McKown. Irving H. Marshall is chairman of the committee in charge.

* * *

MRS. GERTRUDE SCANDRETT, of Ben Avon Heights, announces the engagement of her sister, Miss Elizabeth Rea Webb, to Herbert W. Weidenthal, of Cleveland.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the marriage of Miss Thelma May Smeltz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Smeltz, of Hill avenue, Wilkinsburg, and Theodore Lynch, of Erie, which was solemnized October 31 in the Smeltz home by the Rev. A. C. Busch. Miss Lucille Kromer, of Wilkinsburg, was maid of honor. A dinner followed the ceremony and later, Mr. and Mrs. Lynch left for an eastern trip. They will make their home in Erie.

* * *

THE Woman's Club of Library will visit the international art exhibit on Tuesday and will follow luncheon in the institute cafeteria with a business meeting in the Children's Museum.

Recover Man's Body From Ohio River

BRIDGEPORT, O., Nov. 12.—The body of a man, wearing clothing with an East Liberty, Pa., mark, was taken from the Ohio River at West Wheeling. On a slip of paper in his pocket was the name "Jerome Jockman, Alabama County," no state being given. Coroner J. W. Neal, of Belmont County, believes the man may have fallen from a train while crossing the bridge. The hat was tied on as though the victim had been riding freights.

GUARDIAN TO MEET ZEP STOWAWAY TOMORROW

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—When Clarence Terhune, Zeppelin towaway, arrives in New York tomorrow on the Ile de France, he will be met by his sister, Mrs. Edna Hall, of St. Louis, who is now his legal guardian and his new business counselor, Frank E. McCambridge, also of St. Louis.

McCambridge said today:

"There have been offers of contracts for the boy in this country as there were in Europe, but most of them call for mature judgment. I have offers from firms in t. Louis, and some of them would mean merely temporary exploitation for the publicity that has been gained.

"What Clarence needs now is an education that will enable him to make good use of the future.

"His relatives are in moderate circumstances, and if there is an opportunity which will enable him to finance himself it should be considered."

THE TRAGEDY OF MANY LIVES IS CONSTIPATION

Guard against it in time

This evil scourge ruins thousands of promising men and women. It saps vigor. It kills initiative. It wrecks health and happiness. Sleepless nights, dragging feet, headaches, pain-dulled eyes, follow in its wake. Frequently it leads to lasting and serious disease.

Yet there is safe, prompt relief. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. To surely prevent it. ALL-BRAN is 100% bran—100% effective. Doctors recommend it. Two tablespoonfuls daily — chronic cases, with every meal.

Don't you agree it is better to cure constipation with this healthful cereal than to try dangerous pills and drugs? Or uncertain part-bran products? Delicious with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Use it in cooking too. Sprinkle it into soups. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

EISTEDDFOD CLOSES

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—The National Eisteddfod of America came to a close yesterday with three gymanfa ganns, or musical festivals held at the First Welsh Presbyterian Church of this city, Edwards Memorial Church at Edwardsville, and Capital Theater at Scranton.

Saturday's final session of the Eisteddfod was long drawn out, it being within a few minutes of 2 o'clock Sunday morning before the program had been completed.

The feature of the final session was the male choir competition. This was won by Scranton male chorus, an organization of 150 voices. Other choruses competing were Cleveland, O., male chorus; Falls of Schuylkill; Philadelphia, St. Thomas male chorus; St. Thomas, Canada, St. Davis male chorus, Utica, N. Y.; Orpheus Glee Club, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Prof. Protheroe in awarding the laurels to the Scranton singers, also paid a splendid tribute to the other organizations.

An interesting feature of the Eisteddfod was the acclaiming of Owen D. Hughes of Vancouver, B. C., as bard. Mr. Hughes won on the adjudication of an ode, "The Conquest of the West."

McCoy in appreciation for his successful supervision of the Presidential election last Sunday. Fireworks Blast Ends Armistice Day Parade

WAVERLY, N. Y., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—An Armistice Day celebration started last midnight with a huge parade ended 40 minutes later when a truck, heading the marching column and loaded with fireworks, mostly of the aerial bomb variety, became ignited and blew up. The driver, Jesse Becker, was badly injured and was taken to his home.

The fireworks were to have been used in connection with the celebration. The top of the truck was blown off and landed atop telephone and light wires, plunging that section of the city in darkness.

VARIETY CLUB BANQUET DONE IN CIRCUS STYLE

"See the world's fattest man! See the world's fattest woman! See the world's tallest giant! See the world's hungriest fire eater! See the man who walks on his hands because he has no legs! See the man who writes with his legs because he has no hands! See the half-man, half-woman! All for the price of a thin dime, tenth of a dollar, two slim nickels!"

That was the barked invitation to one and all who happened to be on the seventeenth floor of the William Penn Hotel last night. In the lobby were the mustached barker, the balloon peddler, Joe, the organ grinder, and pictures of freaks.

Inside the ballroom you found yourself in a tent, freaks to one side, clowns to another and sawdust on the floor.

It was the first annual banquet of the Variety Club, a young organization of persons connected with the theater. Its president, John H. Harris, was toastmaster, or rather ringmaster. It was all done in circus fashion.

The speakers were Mayor Kline, the Rev. L. A. O'Connell, Rabbi B. B. Glazer, Dean M. E. Friesell, Judge Frank P. Patterson, the Rev. Homer A. Flint, Rosy Roswell and John J. Maloney. The one woman introduced from the speakers' platform was Mrs. Harris, mother of the toastmaster, and introduced by him as the only honorary member of the club. Club members presented Harris with a tablet in which they expressed their appreciation of his services.

DOWNTOWN FIRE TIES TRAFFIC

Rush hour traffic was tied up and a large crowd gathered when fire Saturday night damaged the smokehouse of the Kingan Provision Company, 1121 Penn avenue. Hams valued at $500 were destroyed in the blaze. Battalion Fire Chief George Sparr estimated there had been $1,000 loss in the fire, which originated on the second floor of the building and spread to the floor above, where the hams were stored for curing.

100 Stitches For Cutting Victim; Woman Held

One hundred stitches were required to close lacerations on the face, neck and arms of Ed Trice, 32, Negro, of 84 Crawford street, after Essie Tessley, 30, Negro, wielded a razor at Trice in his home last night, police say. Trice and the woman were involved in an argument when she whipped out a razor and began slashing him, the police report states.

Center avenue police arrested the Tessley woman, along with the victim's wife, Bessie Trice, 28, and Nixon Willis, 34, who resides at the address.

Police conveyed Trice to the Passavant Hospital, where his condition is regarded as critical.

He said that the old type of religion has no appeal for the great majority of thoughtful people today.

KELLY BACKING HENDERSHOT MOTOR

Lester J. Hendershot, West Elizabeth inventor, whose "fuelless motor" created considerable comment a few months ago, has gained the support of Congressman Clyde Kelly.

Kelly, it is said, is planning to introduce a bill asking that Hendershot be given the opportunity to demonstrate his invention before government scientists. If the scientists approve, Hendershot will be given patent rights.

Congressman Kelly said in Washington that his bill has alredy been prepared, with the exception of the names of the scientists who are to be named later. They will be selected from the staff of the Department of Commerce and Bureau of Standards. Congressman Kelly has seen a demonstration of the invention and declares that it did produce power and light.

Four of the motors already have been built and two of them have been crated and shipped to Washington for the demonstration, if such an opportunity is presented.

STUDENT SHOT BY GUNMAN

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—John C. Acher, 21, football star and senior at Northwestern University, was shot and probably fatally wounded yesterday following an argument that climaxed a celebration of football victories.

Acher, who is an all-around athlete, was attacked by gunmen after the fenders of their automobile scraped at a street intersection. One bullet entered his spine and will paralyze him if he lives, physicians said. Another bullet entered his leg.

One of the gunmen stood on the running board of his car and fired at the boys when they went by," Chester said. Police squads gave chase to the assailants, but failed to catch them.

Woman Slayer to Go Free On $25,000 Bail

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Bonds of $25,000 were set Saturday for release of Mrs. Catherine Cassler, pending her new trial for murder. If this bail is provided, Mrs. Cassler will be given her liberty after 23 months in jail. She was sentenced to hang for the slaying of William Lindstrom two years ago. The Supreme Court recently granted her a new trial.

Dog Heads Aid to Woman, 82, Stricken

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 12. —(AP.)—Led by the incessant barking of the woman's pet collie dog, neighbors found Miss Flora Hartzell, 82, of Ardentsville, unconscious in the yard of her home after an attack of paralysis. The aged woman lived alone with her dog. Physicians held little hope for her recovery.

3,089 IN PA. PAID MILLIONAIRES' INCOME TAX

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Pennsylvania last year had 3,089 persons within her borders who paid the Federal government sufficiently high income taxes to place them in the category of American millionaires.

This was revealed today in a formal statement from the Treasury Department reporting in detail on Federal revenue collections in 1927 received in payment of 1926 taxes.

Of the more than 3,000 Pennsylvania men of millions, 37 actually reported net incomes in excess of $1,000,000, the bulk of those coming under the classification showing incomes of $50,000 and upwards, representing a yield of 5 per cent on an investment of $1,000,000, which is the accepted basis for arriving at the rating.

THREE OVER $5,000,000

Three taxpayers in the state, identities not disclosed, reported net incomes of $5,000,000 and over; three others reported incomes of $4,000,000 to $5,000,000, one from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000, five from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000, six from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 and 19 from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000.

In the bracket of $50,000 to $60,000 a total of 801 filed returns. The largest number of returns from the state came from persons reporting incomes of $2,000 to $3,000, there being some 50,000 of these.

The total number of individual returns filed in the state for the year was 397,575, representing a total net income of $2,138,168,000, and the total tax paid the Federal government from this source was $76,887,315, which was more than 10 per cent of the total collected in the nation.

In addition to this, corporations of the state paid Federal taxes in the sum of $122,361,366, with 24,173 returns filed. Slightly more than 57 per cent of the corporations filing returns reported net incomes, which in the aggregate amounted to nearly a billion dollars, or $941,818,000.

The total gross income of corporations of the state reporting net incomes was $10,157,000,000.

On the other hand the total gross income of corporations reporting no net incomes came to $1,730,695,000, with $1,881,002,000 reported as deductions, leaving a deficit of approximately $150,000,000.

GREATEST IN PA. HISTORY

One phase of the Treasury report showed that Pennsylvania industrial activity, measured in the gross income of reporting corporations, was greater than ever before in the state's history. Total gross income of all corporations in the state for 1926 was in excess of $10,000,000,000, compared with approximately $4,000,000,000 in 1916, $9,980,000,000 in 1923, the previous high mark. At the same time net income of the state's corporations was fifty millions more shown the previous year of 1925 and was higher than any year since 1920.

Pittsburgh and Allegheny county furnished 100,545 of the total individual returns filed in the state, no classification being given as to the amount reported.

THERE are three trying periods in a woman's life: when the girl matures to womanhood; when a woman gives birth to her first child; when a woman reaches middle age. At these times Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps to restore normal health and vigor. Countless thousands testify to its worth.

FLORENCE BURNETT
12 Withington Street, Dorchester, Mass.

"My daughter Florence is 14 years old and has been very sick for the last two years, able to attend school only half of the time. I saw an ad. in the Boston Post and decided to give her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She has taken four bottles and is so much better. She is rather tall for her age and her appetite has improved and she is better in every way. I thought I would let you hear from us as we are nearer than those who live in the West. I shall be glad to help any mother who writes to me."—Mrs. Burnett, 12 Withington Street, Dorchester, Massachusetts.

MRS. CORA CALAHAN
216 E. Ashton Ave., Grand Island, Neb.

"I am a married woman going through the Change of Life. At times I thought I would lose my mind. I would cry for hours. I got so tired of going to the doctor so I thought 'So many women have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I will try some.' Before I had taken the first bottle I began to get better. I have taken eight bottles now. I feel that it has saved my life, also doctor's bills. I work for a family of six, washing, cooking and do all my own work. People say I look like I am 25 years old."—Mrs. Cora Calahan, 216 E. Ashton Ave., Grand Island, Nebraska.

MRS. F. C. HELMING
822 E. Harrison St., Portland, Oregon

"Lydia E. Pinkham did for me what doctors failed to do. When the Change of Life began I was very poorly. Now at fifty-five years of age I do all my own work, attend two dances a week and it is hard to make people believe I am over forty. I never see a woman in ill health but I advocate your medicine because I know its value. Every woman should take it at the critical age, not just for a month or two but until they know they have passed the critical period."—Mrs. F. C. Helming, 822 E. Harrison St., Portland, Oregon.

PA PITT MAY LEAD SECOND YEAR

WITH his gridiron glory undimmed as another season nears its finish, Father Pitt continues to hold his place as the outstanding figure in the Eastern division of intercollegiate football.

John Karcis

For the second year in succession this city may gain the distinction of having produced the champion team of the East. In 1927 the consensus of expert opinion awarded that title to the University of Pittsburgh, the only rival claim being that made for Yale, which was defeated by the University of Georgia, whereas the Panthers, playing nine games against the Blue's eight, suffered nothing worse than one tie prior to the post-season contest with Stanford on the Pacific coast.

AND now Carnegie Tech is almost riding out in front for the Eastern championship of 1928, rivaled only by Boston college. The Skibos, mainly through the brilliant work of Ted Rosencweig and John Karcis, eliminated Georgetown from the running by their splendid 13-to-0 victory over Lou Little's machine in Albany last Saturday, and as the Army's hitherto clean slate was marred on the same afternoon by Notre Dame's sensational 12-to-6 triumph, the Schenley Park boys will unquestionably be entitled to be recognized as the titular leaders if Fordham beats Boston College today.

The Tartans have not been defeated nor tied, and have not been scored against by a major opponent up to date, having held W. & J., Pitt and Georgetown pointless in a row. They are not yet out of the woods, by any means, as formidable obstacles remain to be cleared in their closing two games with Notre Dame and New York U., but if they can maintain for two more weeks the form they have displayed thus far, they must be conceded more than a fighting chance to hold their own, at least, with those powerful opponents and to finish the campaign without a reverse.

CARNEGIE is not alone in keeping Pittsburgh in the public football eye, as the Panthers continue to sweep along at the terrific pace that makes them, in their remarkably improved November state, one of the greatest teams in any part of the land.

Toby Uansa

The Blue and Gold gridders exceeded the expectations of their most optimistic supporters in rolling up so many as 25 points against W. & J. Saturday, the largest score made by a Pitt team against the Presidents since 1918, and the third highest total ever amassed by the Panthers in this annual fixture.

DR. SUTHERLAND'S athletes did not get going under full steam until the second half, but after that it was only a question of how many points they would score. The locals' wide margin of superiority is to be seen in the fact that before the game ended Coach Sutherland found it safe to replace every starting regular with a second-string man. At that, and even though it was the fourth straight game in which W. & J. failed to score against Pitt, the Presidents were not disgraced. There wasn't an earthly chance in the cards for them to escape defeat, but in spite of the hopeless odds against them they battled courageously to the end and played out their string like real soldiers, with the spirit for which the Washington college is noted. It is just a case of a great school having an off-year, merely the changing fortunes of football war. W. & J. is to be honored as much in defeat as in victory.

TOBY UANSA, as usual, was among the outstanding Panther players Saturday. In the opinion of many, the McKees Rocks resident is one of the best open field runners Pitt has had since Tommy Davies. Give this flashing, intelligent lad the weight and strength of a Welch and he would be as great a ball carrier as the mighty Gib. Williams is a wonderful ground-gainer, but lacks Uansa's smoothness and perfection of play.

Pitt gives Williams the very best of its always splendid interference, partly because Uansa usually does more to shield his mate than Josh is able to do in return for him. When Williams makes full use of his interference he is sure of a long gain, for he is unstoppable once he's away. But Uansa is the better all-around player, even without reckoning his uncanny skill at returning kicks.

THE officials in the Pitt-W. & J. game were the best seen at the Stadium this year. The average has been lower than usual, a particular weakness being the inability of preceding referees to get the point of farthest advance of the ball, thus cheating the ball-carrier out of a yard or two on many plays.

Taggert was a big improvement in this respect, and it was also refreshing to see a set of officials who felt it unnecessary to inflict many technical penalties.

MANY spectators at the Stadium again voted Mike Getto, Pitt's sensational tackle, the best player on the field, just as he has been for the Panthers in every game thus far on the 1928 schedule. Getto has a great mate at the other tackle position in the Pitt line in the person of Charley Tully, of Wheeling, W. Va. Barring only Getto himself, Tully is the most improved player on the Panther team, and he stood out against Wash-Jeff even more impressively than in previous games.

CHARLEY EDWARDS is showing kickers how to get away from the practice of aimless punting that sends the ball over the goal line or into the waiting hands of an enemy safety man. Edwards did some punting against the Presidents that was reminiscent of Jimmy Hagan, Jess Brown and other great Panther kickers of recent years, when the Blue and Gold usually had the best punter in this section.

Charley Tully

Five times Edwards placed the ball out of bounds inside the Wash-Jeff 15-yard line. Never did he give the President's back a chance for a run-back, never did he fail to get his punt off to a spot where it would be hardest to handle.

INCIDENTALLY, while Baker looked like a better quarterback than Edwards against Syracuse, the reverse was true last Saturday. Pitt didn't start to do things until Charley took the reins.

Baker made one of the few obvious errors either Panther signal-caller has committed this season when he called for a line buck on the fourth down with the ball near midfield and three yards to go, in the first quarter.

CAPT. CARL ASCHMAN, of W. & J., crippled, and for that reason of much less value to his team than heretofore, didn't let his injured leg interfere with his passing to his backs. He far outclassed the Panther center in feeding the ball either to runner or kicker, though Montgomery did fairly well, considering the condition of the spheroid.

PASSING is the one weakness of Montgomery, a sterling player otherwise, and it has cost Pitt dearly this year. It should be borne in mind that this is Montgomery's first season at the position.

Carnegie won the game, 13-0.

Young Rudy, Charleroi lightweight, makes his first Pittsburgh appearance in a windup in the Motor Square feature event, facing Eddie (Kid) Wagner, a seasoned Jewish boxer of Philadelphia, over the 10-round route. Despite the fact that Wagner will enter the ring with material advantages in experience and height and reach, Rudy's admirers—and they are many, who have been clamoring for recognition for him for a long time—are confident he will pull through on top and earn the right to go on to more lucrative engagements. The fans like Rudy for his excellent fighting condition at all times and his constant forcing tactics in the ring. Outside the ring he is retiring almost to a fault.

Wagner arrived in the city yesterday with his new manager, Billy McCarney, one of the veterans in the ranks of the big-time pilots. Eddie formerly boxed under the management of Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, of Philadelphia.

Two out-of-town middleweights make their local debut in the eight-round semi-final. They are Henry Firpo, of Louisville, and Frankie Palmo, of Cincinnati. Both have been boxing windups in other cities, but have consented to a lesser position on tonight's card to break in here.

In a six-round preliminary, Tug Phillips, Fayette City lightweight, meets a young Negro opponent named Young Flowers, who also is a newcomer here. There will be two four-round preliminaries, with Young Guido, of Sharon, meeting Georgie Pack, of the North Side, and

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Ken Strong, backfield flash of the New York University, virtually has clinched Eastern college individual football scoring honors. Romping through and around Alfred's line for four touchdowns and kicking three points after touchdown Saturday, Strong boosted his total for the season to 118. Gulick, of Hobart, the runner-up, was unable to tally against Colgate and held firm at 72 points. Langmaid, of Williams, kicked two extra points against Wesleyan and holds third place with 70 points. Bienstock, of City College of New York, is fourth with 55 points; tied for fifth are Paul Scull, of Pennsylvania, and Keefer, of West Virginia. Scull scored all of Pennsylvania's seven points against Harvard, and Keefer crashed through for three touchdowns against the Oklahoma Aggies. Heidelberg Defeats Dunlevy, 2-0

By TOM BIRKS.

WITH large crowds lining the fields, Sunday's soccer schedule fully came up to expectations, and very few reverses marked the play. In the American League, Heidelberg defeated its rival from Dunlevy, 2 goals to 0, and it is understood that the game is being protested.

The National Tube-East Pittsburgh Magyar game finished in a victory for the Tube City eleven, 4 goals to 0, and this might be the turning point of the up-river aggregations' fortunes.

The charity game, staged at Chambers Field, Turtle Creek, for the benefit of the family of Willie Patterson, was attended by a large crowd, and the finish of a real fight found the District League all-stars holding the Westinghouse soccer outfit to a 1-1 tie.

Of course the muddy fields stopped most attempts at carpet weaving and in most of the games the kick and rush style seemed to be most popular.

As a preliminary to the American League game at Heidelberg, the Eagles and the Juniors met in the first round of the West Penn cup. The Eagles plastered the Juniors, 6 goals to 2, and plenty of good-natured rivalry was on tap.

Glendale	2	Cuddy	0
Primrose	3	Canonsburg	1
Shannon	4	Cretestone	2
Marianna	4	Mather	3
Dunlevy Rovers	3	Curry	1
Owls	3	Bethel	0
Eagles	6	Juniors	2

Bridgeville Owls downed Bethel, 3 goals to 0, and from the looks of things, it seems as though the Owls are going good again this season. Of course, Bethel has not had the experience that has come to Bridgeville, and experience counts heavily in the big games.

Glendale had little difficulty dropping the Cuddy eleven out of the Junior cup, the Glens winning, 2 goals to 0. Dunlevy defeated Curry, 3 goals to 1.

SKIBOS CLASH WITH IRISH SATURDAY

By JESS CARVER.

HAVING demonstrated how brains in the backfield may offset inexperience on the line, Carnegie Tech's varsity football team is ready to carry on in its chase for the national intercollegiate football title, and today will forsake the pleasures of Armistice Day and begin preparation for the setto at South Bend this week-end with Notre Dame.

Last Saturday was a stunning day in football. There were plenty of the boys stunned—if you don't think so, glance over this list:

Army.
Wash-Jeff.
Yale.
Dartmouth.
Ohio State.
The Albany Baseball Club.

Pittsburgh fans who missed the trip to Albany to see the Skibos clamber to the top of the Eastern gridiron heap missed seeing the Plaid eleven "click" for the first time this season. Howard Harpster out-thought the entire Georgetown team, coaching staff and the experts, who had picked the Hilltoppers to take the Scotch when he presented a cleverly assorted running attack to batter out a 13-0 triumph.

Georgetown, prior to Saturday's tussle in Albany, thought it had a ball club. You could buy Georgetown ball players for a dime a dozen about six bells Saturday eve.

ROSENCWEIG GOOD END

For the first time since Mefort left Tech, the Tartans uncovered a wingman who can work the end-around play and work it right. This kid, Ted Rosencweig, carried the ball 13 times against the Washington Irish for a total gain of 68 yards. He scored the second Tech touchdown and on the defense, smeared all but one attempt made to run his end.

Tech's general deportment was so much improved over previous showings that the chances of the Plaid against rampaging Notre Dame may be considered close to even.

Pitt demonstrated increased power by smashing poor Wash-Jeff for a 25-0 licking. Plug Parkinson, who had been on the shelf since the Allegheny game, went into the fray in the second period and demonstrated that his enforced layoff has done him no harm. The way he ripped through the President line was a shame.

W. and J. was not disgraced in the defeat, but lost to a better team. These November Pitt teams are not to be trifled with. Nebraska may beat the Panthers at Lincoln next Saturday, but you can bet your shirt that it won't be by any large score. Brains, you know, and speed will oft-times throw beef and misdirected power for a loss.

Did you see what happened to Army? Ho,ho! What a kick in the trousers it was to the Cadets. Notre Dame was on the short end of the betting, too, and the boys were beginning to get the idea that 'ole Knute was slipping. He is—slipping 'em over. Now Pop Warner's Stanford team won't have an unbeaten eleven to knock off in New York December 1.

Yale took things easy against Maryland and Maryland took the ball game. The Eli had an idea that the Eastern title might come around New Haven way again this year, but having been whipped by the Soldiers and by the Calverts, even the Blue cannot claim any championship laurels without blushing.

Ohio State had a place cleared in its trophy case for the Western Conference title and was even eyeing the national championship before the meeting with Iowa last

NAVY TO MEET OHIO STATE

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Ohio State and Navy will meet at Columbus on next year's Navy football schedule, Com. J. H. Ingram, director of athletics, at the Naval Academy, announced today.

The November 30 date on next year's schedule will be held open for a possible game with West Point and while Com. Ingram expressed hope that a service game might be played he said it rested with Army to accept or reject the date.

Michigan State will not be on the schedule next year but there is a possibility it may appear again on the Navy's 1930 program.

PIRATES-BRUINS TO TEST NEW ICE RULES

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Two of the three major changes in the National Hockey League playing rules, made last summer, probably will be tested at Duquesne Garden Thursday night when the Pirates and Boston Bruins pry the lid off for the 1928-29 campaign.

The first of these has to do with "ragging the puck" or stalling, while one or more members of a team are in the penalty box. This rule was adopted with the intention of keeping the play at high speed throughout, and it is certain to be enforced here.

The second revised rule has to do with the breaking of deadlocks. This rule might not be tested Thursday were the Pirates playing foemen other than the Bruins, but last season the Bucs played more ties with the Hub skaters than with any other club, and it was not until the last weeks of the race that either was able to gain a decision over the other. It will not be surprising, then, if the new ruling on ties gets a trial in the very first battle. The new rule provides for 10 minutes of overtime play, and does away with the old "sudden death" rule which gave victory to the first club to tally.

The third new rule deals with the Stanley Cup playoffs, and the Stanley Cup jousts are one long and full season away.

While J. F. Callahan, Pittsburgh club president, was in Toronto to attend a league meeting today, Manager Odie Cleghorn had his skaters out on Duquesne Garden ice for the first of their tapering-off drills. Johnny McKinnon was slightly injured in a scrimmage Saturday, and Pilot Odie will not permit any more rough play until the opener Thursday.

Callahan, in Toronto, hoped to close deals which will bring McKay, of Chicago, and Thompson, of the Rangers, into the Pirate fold. Both are speedy young forwards.

GROVE CITY, Pa., Nov. 12.—First call for basketball practice has been made at Grove City College, and the initial drill has been set for tomorrow afternoon. Coach Bob Thorn plans to work a large squad until after Thanksgiving, at least, when the football men will be available for practice.

JINX FOR TECH LURKS IN N. Y. U. TILT

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

A WEEK ago, New York University and Georgetown met in New York for the "championship" of the East and New York U., the favorite, took one on the chin and was counted out. Last Saturday, Georgetown and Carnegie Tech battled in Albany, N. Y., for the same title and Georgetown and the promoters took the same sort of a nose dive, while the redoubtable Army eleven was bowing to Notre Dame in New York.

Now, then, Carnegie Tech today stands out as the champion of the East, and, if it can sock Notre Dame at South Bend next Saturday, it will be the champion of the East, the Irish and the Army and Navy, both of which have bowed to Notre Dame, which has been sunk a couple of times itself, at least until it winds up the season against N. Y. U. at Forbes Field Saturday of next week.

There's a tough time ahead for the Skibos in that N. Y. U. battle. If the dope continues to be hashed as it has been steadily so far, Tech should lose to N. Y. U. on general principles. Let's declare a closed season on the dope and try to wish away the jinx.

A clean sweep for Tech will mean two things. One is that, as the champions of the East, the Tartans will get the bid to represent this Republican stronghold in the Tournament of Roses game with some eleven that hasn't been walloped more than a half dozen times on the coast, and the other is that Howard Harpster, sterling quarterback of the Tartans, will make that mythical all-America team. You can't vote for one without voting for the other.

Turning to Paul G. Sullivan, a co-worker in the press box at the Pitt-W. & J. battle before a small but select gathering at the Stadium Saturday, I asked him how he'd like to be a Wash-Jeff rooter these days, with the Red and Black having lost three and tied one of its last four games.

Imagine my embarrassment when he knocked me for a loop with this snappy comeback:

"That wouldn't be such a novelty. I've had experience along those lines, having been a Duke student and rooter for many years up to the present era of Coolidge and Hoover prosperity."

I FEEL I owe an apology to Tom Parkinson, the well-known fullback with ribs of a sort, who entered the Pitt-W. & J. battle Saturday for a period or so and put an end to the foolishness of exchanging kicks, as he personally conducted two touchdown drives and showed his teammates how it should be done.

For some time I have been laboring under the delusion that this same young Mr. Parkinson is a greatly overrated fullback. I have seen him gain miles of yardage in the middle of the field and then fade away to a whisper near the goal lines of opponents and have formed the opinion that he is not a great man in a pinch. In the course of a debate or two on the grand American pastime with friends I have popped off to this extent.

It seems that some of these friends must have gone to Tom and tipped him off to the effect that I did not think he was so hot. Perhaps they didn't, but it seemed, at any rate, that he was playing his head off for my especial benefit in that W. & J. battle on Saturday when he broke loose for a 48-yard run soon after he entered the fray and put the ball in position for Josh Williams to tote it over the goal line, and, shortly thereafter, carried it in five successive line plunges from the nine-yard line for another touchdown. I could imagine him muttering as he left the field with his yeoman service completed:

"Well, I hope that guy Keck up there in the press box saw me smack 'em this afternoon. He WILL say I can't bust through there, will he—the blank, blank, blank!"

It was Tom's first appearance in three games, and during his absence Edwards, the transformed quarterback, had been performing nobly in his place. The team had been going places and doing things. But Tom was the main gazabo Saturday, and don't let anybody tell you anything different. And, as I said before, he seemed to be playing for my especial benefit (that's how a guilty conscience saw it, anyway). And did he rub it in? And how! My chapeau is doffed to him. I didn't think he had that sort of a game in him, and I'm as glad as he is that he got it out of his system. My apologies, ol' chap, for ever doubting your ability to fullback as you fullbacked on this occasion—and may you go twice as well against Nebraska and Penn State. And how are those ribs coming along?

SPEAKING of busted ribs, our own Jim Long tells a story. It is about a foreigner who went to a hospital to visit a friend. He was told the friend was convalescing.

"All right," he said. "I'll wait."

Kid football player intercepts a forward pass and runs 140 yards for a touchdown. He ran 40 yards and discovered he had sprinted in the wrong direction and reversed his field and raced the length of the gridiron to cross his opponents' goal. That's a good story, but what I want to know is, who was the far-seeing coach who had a man posted there to tell him he was over the wrong goal line? I believe in giving credit where credit is due.

CHALK up another big day for the members of the old Big Three. Harvard and Yale beaten and two touchdowns scored on Princeton.

Kid Chocolate, the Negro bantamweight boxing sensation, is growing and soon will be a featherweight. His real name is Eligio Sardinas. What a swell natural bout he would make paired with that other fish, Benny Bass!

BIG BILL TILDEN has been barred in 35 nations. Must belong to the National Boxing Association, which bars 'em in almost all of the states and provinces.

Midget Wolgast is more than the state flyweight champion. He's an election bet. His manager, Al Lippe, bet his contract against $10,000 on Al Smith and lost him to Jimmy Kelly, of New York.

CALIFORNIA voted to save 10-round boxing bouts. But who is going to save California?

The whisperers have it that Roy Worters knows his onions and will wind up being traded to the New York Americans. Benny Leonard, owner of the local club, has contended from the start that some other club has been behind the league's best goalie in the latter's holdout campaign and that this is the reason he refused to listen to reason.

THE football season is almost over and that brings up the anguished thought that next year's track season is rapidly advancing, and there's nothing that can be done about it.

Nor about the hockey season that opens next Thursday night.

O'DOWD VS. MAYBERRY

The McKeesport fans have a treat in store for them in the form of a 10-round battle between two seasoned bantamweight contenders in Howard Mayberry, of Donora, and Eddie O'Dowd, of Columbus, next Thursday night. Mayberry recently defeated Jackie Rodgers in the Tube City and Dan Billick at Motor Square Garden, registering a hit on each occasion, while O'Dowd never has appeared here before, but is well known by reputation. Like Mayberry, he has met the best men in his class in various parts of the country. Battling Gizzy, of Donora, and Jack O'Banyan, of Clairton, meet in the semi-final.

Benny Leonard, retired lightweight champion of the world, now owner of the Pittsburgh hockey club, which opens its league season at Duquesne Garden next Thursday night, is scheduled to give an exhibition in connection with an amateur boxing show and entertainment in his honor at the Y. M. H. A. Wednesday night of next week. Attorney Ben Giffen is arranging the card, Jack Henderson will referee and the committee in charge includes Art Scher, director of physical education at the Y.; Sanford Baer, assistant director, and Miss Edith Lazarus.

It fosters teams in various branches of sports. Dougherty has been president of the Lyceum since its reorganization; Dennis Collins, vice president; Thomas Callahan, secretary, and Father Gillen, chaplain.

SANDLOT GAMES END IN TIES

By TOM BIRKS

SUNDAY found three big games scheduled in the race for the mythical independent sandlot gridiron title, but sad to relate, all of the contestants finished just where they started, as all the games were scoreless ties. The only thing gained were some shekels, for all the battles were played to immense crowds. West View met McKeesport Olympics at West View Park, McChesneytown met East Pittsburgh Firemen at the Quarry grounds, and Ambridge Mystics, evidently as just as mystical as their name, held Port Vue Quakers at Romaine field.

The solution to the result is easy, all of the playing fields were ankle deep in mud and gaining through the line was out of the question, most of the coaches took the only course open, that of throwing forward passes, but on such fields even that was a dangerous procedure.

In fact, it was the interception of a forward pass by East Pittsburgh that nearly brought the downfall of the McChesneytown machine. One of the largest crowds of the season watched East Pittsburgh and McChesneytown. Johnson kicked off for the Red machine. Zoltac received and was downed on his 40-yard line. Gaining was fruitless and Wambaugh kicked. McChesneytown did the same thing at the other end. The only noticeable gain in the first half was a run around the ends by Clem Crowe.

East Pittsburgh then got the ball and Zoltac completed two forward passes in succession. With the ball on the McChesneytown 22-yard line East Pittsburgh faked a kick. Wambaugh seemed all set to try for the three points, but threw a forward pass, which was not completed.

Bill Johnson was the big gun for McChesneytown, although Watkins was making nice gains through the line. McChesneytown did not come within scoring distance. In the final quarter, another series of forward passes, hrown by Zoltac brought the ball to McChesneytown's 18-yard line. Gusan elected to kick for the points, but Brown cut in and the kick went wide. That finished the game.

The game at West View found the Olympics rather outplaying the Parkers in the matter of first downs, the McKeesporters having six and West View four. But the Olympics were never in scoring distance, while the home gridders were in sight of the Tube City goal line several times.

The first time, with ball on the seven-yard line, Kelsh missed a placement by inches. The second found West View with the ball on the 5-yard line, Kelsh standing on 15-yard line in placement kick formation threw a forward pass over the goal line, and the only thing wrong with the play was that there was no one there to receive it. McKeesport outplayed the Parkers in the first half, scoring four first downs, while West View did not get one. The second half found a reversal of form, and the Sweeney aggregation looked far better. In fact, the Tube City gridders could not get started.

W. VA. RETAINS GEORGETOWN

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—West Virginia University's football team will play Georgetown University at Washington, D. C., November 16 next year, H. A. Stansbury, director of athletics at the Mountaineer school, announced today.

The 1929 meeting will be the fourth in as many years, West Virginia being scheduled to play Georgetown at Washington this week. The Mountaineers won in 1926, but lost last year.

Five dates on West Virginia's 1929 card now have been filled. The schedule includes Pitt at Pittsburgh, October 12; Washington and Lee at Charleston, W. Va., October 19; Oklahoma Aggies at Stillwater, Okla., October 26, and Washington and Jefferson at Morgantown, Thanksgiving Day.

Greensburg Leader Of Cheers Back

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 12.—Paul Seaton, deposed senior cheer leader of Greensburg High School, was back on the job against New Castle Saturday after he had been ruled out as a leader earlier this year following an alleged vegetable episode between Greensburg and Youngwood followers.

The students refused to name a successor after Seaton had been barred from leading the yelling and faculty heads finally relented and permitted him to assume his old position.

Kinsey, Snodgrass Win in Exhibition

Howard Kinsey, of San Francisco, and Harvey Snodgrass, Los Angeles, defeated incent Richards, New York, former Davis Cup player, and Karel Kozeluh, Czecho-Slovakian champion of Europe, 6-2, 6-0, in the doubles.

Snodgrass defeated Kinsey, 6-1, 7-5. Kozeluh defeated Richards in three sets, the latter taking the first 6-3, and losing the other two.

EVERS, HORNSBY COMPARED AS SPORTSMEN

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

TWO great baseball names—both synonymous with second base—are in the headlines of the day's news. Johnny Evers and Rogers Hornsby claim the spotlight at the present time and they are likely to be there for many months.

Now that the gambling note resounds in baseball, it is at least a coincidence to point out the attitude of Johnny from Troy and the Rajah as regards betting, particularly on horse races.

Before comparing the views of the two stars, it might be coming to Hornsby to state that he is reported to have given the Cub owners a pledge to the effect that he is done with gambling. Provided this is true, the fans will rise up and cheer the move.

Consider the case of the high-strung Evers, who broke down his health during his long reign as a king of the keystone guardians. Let us go back a few years to the days when Johnny was manager of the Cubs.

Johnny strolls into Forbes Field and immediately goes to his clubhouse to prepare for the day's battle. Gathered around a table in the visiting clubhouse are six or seven Cubs, all of whom are studying some sort of a printed sheet.

EVERS DISGUSTED

Evers advances and quickly realizes that the athletes are deep in the study of a racetrack form sheet. Johnny from Troy immediately explodes all over the home for visiting players.

"That's a fine spectacle!" roared the so-called "crab." "Don't you fellows have any sense of appreciation for the game you are in? Can't you see you are hurting baseball by carrying on that way? Why don't you bring some sport sheets of the newspapers in the clubhouse if you want to read? No wonder things are not what they ought to be in baseball, with the active players engaged in placing bets on horse races!"

Johnny always had the interest of the game at heart. Hornsby, on the other hand, may have meant no harm as he allied himself with betting sharps, but certainly his actions in this direction did not redound to the credit of the game.

At a banquet held in Pittsburgh in honor of Honus Wagner about 12 years ago, Evers, as one of the principal speakers, sounded a warning. Johnny did not point with pride to the modern improvements that were slowly encompassing the sport.

"The present trend that takes the uniformed player away from the boy of today is not such a good sign," quoth John. "When I broke in we traveled to the ball parks in buses. Thus the youngsters were allowed to see the athletes often, and nearly every lad likes to rub shoulders with a big-leaguer. Now he has to pay a fancy price before he can get through the stark walls that house the players."

SPEAKER SIGNS WITH NEWARK FOR 2 YEARS

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Tris Speaker, famous major league outfielder for the past 22 years, yesterday signed a two-year contract to manage the Newark Internationals, James P. Sinnott, president of the club, announced. He succeeds Walter Johnson, who has taken over the reins of the Washington Americans.

Speaker came to terms with President Sinnott after a short conference. The terms were not disclosed, but it is understood "Spoke," in taking over his first minor league assignment since he was a rookie, will receive one of the largest salaries paid any Class AA club manager.

Speaker will be a playing manager, Sinnott announced, and expects to put in full time in the outfield. He left last night for Cleveland, after signing a contract for 1929-30, but will begin immediately the job of building the Newark team for next year's International League race. He will attend the minor league sessions at Toronto in December before marshaling his forces at training camp in St. Augustine, Fla., later.

Rudy Cedar Fights Todd Smith Tonight

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 12.—Matchmaker I. E. Goodridge has completed his Armistice night fight program for the Washington Gardens by signing Steve Billings, of Washington, and Jimmy Turk, of Canonsburg, for the first bout of six rounds and Red Ryan, of Washington, and Young Alermo, of Butler, for the second preliminary, also of six rounds.

The main bout of 10 rounds and the semi-final of eight rounds really constitute a double wind-up, as there is little to choose between the two fights. In the 10-round affair Rudy Cedar, of Tarentum, and Todd Smith, of Canton, will meet. Battling Gizzy, of Donora, and U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, will box eight rounds in the semi-final.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Boil Again | Local Market Closed

Forbes

Speculation Wildest Yet. Unloading Now Detected.

By B. C. FORBES

THE artificiality of current stock speculation was clearly demonstrated on Friday when, without any new developments whatsoever, buying activity was switched furiously to railroad issues which up till then had been lying dormant.

This stock market boom has the most powerful leadership ever witnessed by Wall Street. Those at the helm are not mere professional speculators, habitues of Wall Street. They include industrial leaders and capitalists—not bankers—of the very largest caliber, some of them having fortunes ranging from $10,000,000 to well over $100,000,000.

Never once has short selling been advised in this column. For outsiders to attempt to cross swords with manipulators possessing such resources has all along been regarded by the writer as altogether too hazardous. The day will come, of course, when money will be made by the shorts, but when that day will come, and what may happen before it does come, is beyond anyone to predict.

SUPERFICIALLY the stock market has had a delightfully merry time since Hoover's election. The bulls started celebrating next morning and before the end of the week average quotations had been marked up to new heights for all time. Not only so, but the volume of trading following the election has been heavier than anything ever experienced before.

Also, to add to the joyousness of the occasion, stock exchange seats went to a new peak price of $480,000, and the curb followed along by also lifting the quotation for its seats to the brand new price of $135,000.

BUT what was going on under cover of all this excitement? Although General Motors declared a $2.50 extra dividend and announced a 150 per cent stock dividend, the "good news" did not bring enough public buying to offset the selling by heavyweights. Nor was this the only boomed stock in which large scale profit-taking appeared to be in progress.

The very wildness of the fluctuations in several of the bellwether stocks looked ominous in the eyes of old timers. When stocks like Montgomery Ward and Radio, selling over $300 and $200 a share, respectively, shoot up 25 and even 35 points one moment and drop back nearly as hurriedly, it is wise for pygmies to get out of the way.

ALMOST everyone I talk with who is dabbling in the market confesses that he means to get out "before the break comes." Seldom has there been a time when so few people declared they were not buying for investment but solely in the hope of making a quick profit and getting out.

Nor is this unnatural when it is considered that money is worth far more than the average yield on the industrial stocks, now the chief favorites. Moreover, leading issues are selling more than 20 times their net earnings.

Under such conditions, the market obviously has a stronger appeal to speculators than to conservative investors.

BANKERS privately express themselves very emphatically and very tersely: "Stocks are multiplying in price much faster than our savings are multiplying and faster than our credit can go on multiplying," they declare. "If nothing else does it, money will call the halt by and by."

CALL money ended the week at 7 per cent and time funds continued to range from 6½ to 7 per cent. Brokers borrowing continue to expand and expand. They are now almost $1,600,000,000 above a year ago. Our high interest rates are acting as a magnet to attract somewhat more gold. Shipments and engagements have approximated $32,500,000 and everything points to additional imports.

But students of international economics declare unhesitatingly that these gold exports are bad for the countries exporting and that gold imports are not good for the importing country, meaning the United States—that the present international movement of gold is regrettable rather than gratifying.

There are hints that the Federal Reserve board may change its attitude toward credit expansion after he fall requirements of commerce and agriculture have been fully met.

TURNING to industry and business, the picture is much more satisfactory.

Activity in most, but not all, lines has substantially improved. The year will smash various "records." Even net profits are now faring distinctly better, especially in the case of the larger organizations.

Whether the decrease in railway traffic as compared with two years ago and the latest reports of shrinkage in new building figures will prove significant or insignificant remains to be seen. So far, optimism is the keynote.

WERE Wall Street acting rationally, the United States would be sitting pretty. The stock market's antics, however, raise a question mark.

MORE STOCKS WHIRLED TO NEW HIGHS

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—(AP.)—Speculation in stocks continued at a terrific pace in today's market, but there was increased irregularity in price movement. Operators for the rise maintained their advantage of the last fortnight, lifting 30 issues to record high prices on gains ranging from fractions to 15¾ points. The violent advances were used as a screen for heavy selling in some of the recent favorites, Montgomery-Ward breaking 13 points and a sprinkling of others falling 2 to 7 points under the weight of realizing sales.

Price movements apparently bore little relation to the day's news, although the reduction from 6½ to 6 per cent in the call money rate had a bullish effect on speculative sentiment. Several favorable dividend and earnings statements made their appearance during the day and talk of further stock split-ups helped to stimulate the demand for some of the high-praced specialties.

Radio was again the spectacular feature, soaring 15¾ points to a new high record at 278½. Case Threshing Machine ran up 13¼ points, Wright Aeronautical 6 and Adams Express, Brooklyn Union Gas, Greene-Cananea Copper, Owens Bottle and Booth Fisheries first preferred sold 5 to 6 points higher.

Coppers were again turned over in enormous volume at rising prices. American Smelting was marked up 4½ points to 280 and accompanied into new high ground by Anaconda, Cerro de Pasco, Kennecott, Inspiration, Chile and Miami. In the oil group, new highs were recorded by Sinclair, Phillips, Skelly, Mexican Seaboard and Standard Oil of California.

Other new highs included widely assorted issues as Vanadium Steel, Corn Products, Underwood-Elliott-Fisher, American Can, Associated Dry Goods, Westinghouse Electric and Coty.

General Motors old and new stocks ran into heavy selling after an early interval of strength. General Electric, Atlantic Refining, Victor Talking Machine and Gold Dust dropped 2 to 3½ points. Omnibus preferred broke 5 points to a new low at 85 and Midland Steel Products preferred, Eastman Kodak and Jersey Central sold 4 to 6½ points lower.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 11 to 17 points and sold 23 to 27 points above Saturday's closing quotations during the early trading with December advancing to 19.60c and May to 19.94c. There was some southern and local selling, but it was very readily absorbed by trade buying and covering which was evidently promoted by a private report estimating the consumption of cotton in this country for the month of October at 615,000 bales. The advance met a little more realizing but the buying continued fairly active and prices were within 4 or 5 points of the best at the end of the first half hour. Private cables reported local and continental buying in Liverpool with a scarcity of contracts but said that sales of cotton cloths and yarns were smaller.

The market became quieter late in the morning. There seemed enough cotton for sale to check the early advance and prices reacted some 7 or 8 points from the best, but the bullish view of the statistical position was reflected by a steady undertone. At midday the market was quiet at 19.54c for December and 19.49c for March, or about 17 to 19 points net higher.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Continued good inquiry from domestic refiners, principally for nearby supplies, kept the raw sugar market on the upward trend early today. Prices advanced 1-16c to the basis of 3.96c for spots duty paid. At this level about 140,000 bags of Cuban were sold from store and for prompt shipment.

The raw sugar futures market opened at advances of 1 to 4 points and soon sold 3 to 5 points above the previous close. The advance was due to active covering, against sales in the spot market, and buying by commission houses prompted by the firmer spot market and the favorable action of the London market. The near months showed the maximum gains, but the upturn appeared to attract considerable hedge selling of the later positions, and toward midday prices reacted partially with noon prices about net unchanged to 2 points higher.

All refiners continued to sell at 5.10c for fine granulated today, or unchanged from Saturday's prices, but several announced that effective at the opening tomorrow prices would be advanced 10 points to 5.20c basis. This announcement led to increased buying and a better business was reported.

DRY RAIDERS HIT ROADHOUSE

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 12—Sweeping down on the fashionable Henry Clay Tavern on the National highway midway between here and Wheeling early Sunday, a posse of officers headed by Chief County Detective William B. Dinsmore and Sergt. William Jones of the state police, placed the proprietor, Charles Amien, of Wheeling, under arrest and held under surveillance 13 couples found dancing and drinking in the roadhouse.

Highballs on the tables and liquor were confiscated. Amien was taken before Alderman A. A. Cummins, of this city, on a charge of unlawful sale and possession of liquor. He waived a hearing and gave bail in $2,000 for court.

Students Save Gym From Loss by Fire

SELINSGROVE, Pa., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Only valiant fighting by students with their campus apparatus, saved from destruction the gymnasium at Sesquehanna University here last night, when several thousand dollars damage was done. Several collegians were overcome by smoke and cut by broken glass in their successful efforts to hold the fire in check, until the town's fire company arrived.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Market Sets Record Pace.

The market got away to a fast start again at the opening today following Saturday's record session. In the first 15 minutes of trading the turnover was 500,000 shares of stock, equivalent to a 10,000,000-share day if maintained throughout the session. The enormous volume did not keep that pace, however, but it was apparent around noon that a new five-hour record was in prospect. Huge blocks of stocks were taken on the opening with prices showing overnight gains of from one to six points and more. Railroads joined the industrials in the jubilee and this factor was distinctly encouraging to the bulls, who have been hesitant about following their market too far while the rails were holding back and failing to confirm the industrial share movement by going into new high ground. With the rails up and going, the trading enthusiasm increased and little heed was given the warnings issued here and there by brokerage concerns. The more conservative traders were in some cases lightening their holdings of stocks in response to advices that such a course appeared advisable. Nevertheless, new highs were established in practically all sections of the list and the speculative favorites were pushed higher than ever. Copper stocks were prominent in the advance, reflecting huge gains in earnings by Utah and Nevada, two leading producers, and the oils worked up with Sinclair leading that division.

Local Stocks Strong in New York.

The Pittsburgh Stock Exchange was closed today, but Pittsburgh stocks in the New York markets made a good showing. Westinghouse Electric reached new high ground early in the day, reflecting the increasingly brighter outlook being built up for this company by the further development of electrification plans by leading railroads. Air Brake was steady, but its movements attracted no attention. Lone Star Gas, on the curb, was active on a fairly large turnover, but the fluctuations in the stock were comparatively narrow and it held close to the previous closing level. There was no further news in the Street to account for the sudden run-up in Lone Star at the close of last week, although traders continued to discuss the possibilities of a hookup of the gas businesses of Lone Star, Ohio Oil, Prairie Oil and Columbia Gas.

Radio Shorts Squeezed.

Radio shorts were given another severe trouncing today when the stock was forced up spectacularly and the harrassed bears groaned as they paid through the nose on the upturn, which carried the price up as much as 2 points between sales. Wall Street heard today that the short interest in Radio is close to 50,000 shares, which is comparatively heavy for a stock as closely held as this. The big electrical manufacturing companies and the powerful speculators in and out of Wall Street have practically locked up the 1,100,000 common shares of the stock outstanding, and the shorts have taken a terrific beating since Radio started to sky-rocket from the lower fifties. Skillful preparations of the market recently to reflect the "Hoover prosperity" was the work of a strong and powerful bull clique, fortified with millions and hundreds of millions of dollars in real money. Speculation has now reached its wildest stage, traders rushing in pell-mell to buy stocks with little or no regard to the swiftly changing panorama of values.

Atlantic Ignores Dividend Action.

Atlantic Refining met the disappointing 25-cent dividend action in admirable style. The stock receded slightly and in veiw of the fact that a yearly basis of only $1 a share was established by the directors at their meeting Saturday, the action of the stock was a distinct surprise to many of the traders expecting to see it slump back sharply on the news. In Saturday's market the stock had no opportunity to display its reaction to the dividend, as the news was not released until after the close. An additional piece of unfavorable news was also received in the announcement that the company had reduced the price of gasoline 1 cent a gallon in Pennsylvania and Delaware, but neither this nor the dividend appeared to have any noticeable influence on the price of the shares. Observers expressed the opinion that stockholders were standing pat with their holdings, anticipating better things in the dividend line after the first of the year.

Simmons Forecasts Greater Markets.

New stock exchange tickers capable of handling a 7,000,000-share day efficiently and accurately will be put in operation within a year, according to E. H. H. Simmons, president of the New York Stock Exchange. Mr. Simmons takes issue with commentators who attribute the present high volume of stock trading to "public hysteria. Such designation," he contends, "is hardly impressive as an instance of sound economic reasoning." Volume is bound to increase in the long run and the so-called speculative orgies are but incidental to the steady growth of national wealth and of the security investing class. "We are in the presence of new economic forces arising out of our novel status as a creditor nation," Mr. Simmons says, "and few of us are as yet prepared to designate and anlayze those new casual economic forces in American business which are reflected in recent activity in the stock market." He is not disturbed by the expansion of the volume of call loans. "It is a matter of becoming accustomed to big figures," he says, pointing out that the call loan market is the most highly perfected loan organization in the world; not a penny ever having been lost on loans collateraled by stock exchange securities. Mr. Simmons calls attention to the fact that the number of shares listed on the New York Exchange has increased from 433,293,513 in 1925 to 705,667,121 in 1928. "It is a consistent principle that the volume of stock dealings increase in proportion as the prices and values of securities are subject to change. At the present time the vast economic changes occurring throughout American business are quite naturally reflected in a heightened volume of share dealings on the exchange."

Day's Prospects Uncertain.

Having tasted the thrill of several successive high-pressure days in which speculative activity hovered about the 5,000,000-share mark, stock exchange habitues went to the market today prepared for anything. In strictly bullish quarters confidence was expressed that there would be a repetition of Saturday's record-breaking strength and activity. Bearish traders, however, freely predicted a technical reaction. Brokerage houses were cautious, generally advising seasoned stocks exclusively and warning against profit taking.

National Cash Register.

National Cash Register came into the market with a splash this morning, when a block of 10,000 shares changed hands at 101, a new high recoed and an overnight gain of 1⅝ points. The jump was in response to announcement that the company has acquired an option on substantially all of the outstanding stock of Ellis Adding-Typewriter Company of Newark. Price would involve payment of 30,000 shares of common class A stock of National Cash Register Company and approximately $4,000,000 in cash. Meeting of stockholders of National Cash Register Company has been called for December 6 at Baltimore to authorize creation of 90,000 shares of class A stock to be applied to exercise of option. Of the 90,000 shares, 30,000 would be paid to Ellis Company and 60,000 would be offered to National Cash Register class A and B stockholders for subscription at $60 a share. As there are 1,500,000 shares of class A and B stock outstanding the offering would be in the ratio of one new share for every 25 held.

A report from Cozad, Neb., says that the Sinclair Pipe Line from Casper, Wyo., to Kansas City is being closed down, effective November 15. Employes at the Cozad pumping station have been discharged. The station is to be placed in charge of a caretaker. The pumping plant cost $500,000 and the pipe line $20,000,000.

New Records on Curb.

Old records in representative stocks went by the board as the session on the New York Curb progressed, and while some profit taking entered into activities offerings were easily taken and the general tone was buoyant throughout the entire list. Oils continued their forward march, led by Standard of Kentucky, which hit a new peak at 176 and was closely followed by the upward trend in Humble, Eureka Pipe, Continental and American Maracaibo. Radio stocks were in active demond with Hazeltine soaring to a new top. De Forest Radio, which has a large Pittsburgh following, had a sensational opening advance, starting with 26,000 shares at 34⅞, up 7⅛ points from Saturday's closing price.

Cat Creek Lease Held Invalid.

Attorney General Sargent has advised the Department of Interior that the Cat Creek, Mont., oil lease with the Lewistown Oil and Refining Company was invalid because it contained an option of renewal not provided for in the advertisement for bids and that the Secretary of the Interior had no authority to grant such an option of renewal. The Secretary of the Interior has advised the oil company that delivery of oil under the contract will be stopped at 7 a. m. November 19. Various lessees in the field have also been notified that the government will collect its royalties from them in cash, pending negotiation of a new contract.

Farm Machinery Sales Gain.

Sales of 83 farm equipment manufacturers in this country during the first nine months of 1928 showed an increase of 22.47 per cent over the corresponding period in 1927. If sales of these manufacturers in the last three months of the year are no larger than in 1927, they will close the year with sales about 18 per cent over 1927. In that year their sales increased 5.34 per cent over 1926, which had shown an increase of 13.36 per cent over 1925. Their sales for the first nine months of 1928 were slightly ahead of the entire year 1927.

Current Year May Beat 1926.

Prosperity in 1928 will surpass in some lines the record year 1926 in the opinion of the monthly review of business appearing in the current issue of American Bankers' Association Journal. The review says: "The expansion of business that started after the middle of the year has made further headway during the last month and gives assurance that November and December will witness an unusually high rate of activity in industry and trade. So marked has been the gain that many lines of business will achieve new high records for the full year, not only recovering from the recession in 1927 but actually surpassing 1926, which was the previous record year. Numerous difficulties have had to be overcome this year, constant adjustments have had to be mode, but American business goes on with a satisfactory degree of equilibrium and a volume and prosperity that seem irresistible. Not even the election year bogie so much feared last spring, could seriously slacken its progress."

REVOLT THREAT PUTS PEASANTS IN POWER

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—The grip of the peasants upon the government of Rumania today was attributed to their threat to effect a coup de'etat had their demand for power been denied. Foreign observers saw a stormy road ahead of the new government headed by Premier Juliu Maniu, since the all-opposition parties have combined against it.

The peasants had planned to overthrow the government headed by former Premier Vintilla Bratianu, leader of the mighty Liberal party, at the end of next week if the regency refused to make a change in the government. Peasants throughout the country had instructions to march on the capital. Sympathizers in Bucharest were to seize the public buildings.

KNEW OF PLOT

Knowledge of this plot was understood to have hastened the regency in deciding that Bratianu and his government must retire. A statement issued by the Peasant party after it had come into power said:

"We have accomplished a bloodless revolution and all credit is due to the council of the regency whose wise handling of the most critical situation averted a national disaster for Rumania."

Parliament has been dissolved with elections for the Senate set for December 15 and for the lower House for December 12. Observers were of the opinion today that the campaign for these seats would be the most bitterly fought in the history of Rumania. They feared that it might be attended by serious disorders.

Premier Maniu created a sensation when he demanded the dismissal of Gen. Nicoleanu, chief of the Bucharest police. Gen. Nicoleanu has guarded Queen Marie and the royal family for years and is regarded as a power in local politics. He dealt harshly with the peasants formerly when they tried to hold demonstrations in Bucharest.

RISE IN STEEL PRICES NOT FINISHED

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE steel industry is not through pushing its prices upward. The advance of $2 a ton in sheets made by several producers last week and the increase of $1 a ton in the price of sheet bars, the semi-finished material from which sheets are made, are additional steps toward giving the steel business a return in proportion to the investment. This advance in sheet quotations follows a reduction in the discount from 2 per cent to one-half per cent placed in effect on October 1.

With indications now pointing to only a moderate year-end reduction in steel mill activity, there is reason to believe that further attempts to increase prices of all types of steel products may be on orders to be delivered in 1929.

AT PRESENT the minimum quotations on bars is 1.95 cents a pound. This is $4 a ton higher than a year ago.' The minimum on plates and shapes is 1.90 cents, which is an advance of $3 during the year.

The prices of these leading steel products are lower than at the beginning of 1927, when bars and shapes were quoted at 2 cents and plates at 1.90 cents. There is little doubt but that an attempt will be made soon to establish a minimum of 2 cents on bars, plates and shapes. The steel producers should be successful in maintaining the higher quotation if demand remains favorable.

A futile scramble for tonnage during the period of declining demand for steel in 1927 was responsible for the loss of $5 a ton in revenues to steel producers.

WHAT is to happen to the thousands being thrown out of work by the increased use of labor saving machinery? This is a question frequently asked. Those who are disturbed by the progress made in saving man power fail to realize that this has been going on for the past century and, although there have been frequent periods of unsatisfactory employment in recent years, bread lines have become things of the past.

Dr. Julius Klein, director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, states that any slack in employment caused by the use of machinery is speedily being taken up by new jobs created. A factory operative now turns out 32,000 razor blades in the same time he produced 500 in 1913. In little more than a decade, there has been a per-man increase in output amounting to 211 per cent in rubber manufacturing, 83 per cent in petroleum refining, 61 per cent in cement production and 40 per cent in flour milling.

AGAINST this he points out that 1,125,000 men, formerly factory workers, have found employment since 1920 in driving and working on automobiles. The increased demands for educational facilities, a result of more leisure for the working man, has created additional demands for teachers. The $2,000,000 invested in the motion picture industry, with 20,000 theaters, has created new jobs for thousands. Aside from the production of films, 125,000 people are engaged in their distribution. At present we have 12,000,000 radio sets, the production and serving of which has created a vast new industry.

Taking 1913 figures as 100, he stated, wages paid in the United States in 1927 stood at 260, while those in the United Kingdom were 180, although price levels in the two countries were 145 and 142 respectively. This indicates that the American wage earner is much more prosperous than the British.

During the past 20 years a tremendous share of the work of mechanization has taken place, but instead of creating a surplus of idle men it has been accompanied by marked reductions in the working hours of most industries. The 12-hour day in steel making is gone. Similar changes have been made in other occupations and now the five-day week is looked upon as a possibility in the not distant future.

Friedman's Pass Gains 19-19 Tie

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—One of the prettiest passes Benny Friedman ever produced helped to give his professional football eleven, the Detroit Wolverines, a 19-to-19 tie with the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon in a great last quarter rally. Nearly 20,000 persons saw the game.

The Giants led by 13-to-7 at the end of the first half as a result of a 65-yard run back of a punt by Hinkey Haines and a 60-yard sweep of right end by Eckhart, both for touchdowns, with McBride kicking one of the points from placement and missing the other, while Detroit rallied once on a plunge through the line by Feather and the extra point by Friedman.

Detroit's chances looked dark in the third period when McBride drove through the line for a third Giant touchdown, but in the final quarter Benny uncorked his great pass, a 40-yard fling to Bacchus, over the goal line for a touchdown.

Team Under Bond, Game Deferred One Day

TOPEKA, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Football schedules have been changed for many reasons, but a new cause has been found by Highland Park High School.

Its game with Seamen High School for the Shawnee county championship has been advanced a day because the Highland Park team is out on bond and must be in court on Friday, the date originally set, to answer charges in connection with Halloween pranks.

COAST LEAGUE MOGULS MEET

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Directors of the Pacific Coast League open a two-day meeting here today for the serious business of electing a president to a five-year term and the added important matter of either continuing or discontinuing the split season.

Other matters fade into insignificance compared with these issues, and election of a president promises to work up the stormiest session since 1924.

While much has been heard of possible candidates, only Harry A. Williams, incumbent has announced his candidacy.

The 1928 season was played to a new all time record of 2,079,409 persons. Only once before in the league's 25 years has the 2,000,000 mark been equaled and that was in 1924, the year Williams took over the reins.

DETROIT, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Joie Ray, America's premier distance runner, won his secodn victory over El Ouafi, French Algerian, who won the Olympic marathon championship last summer, here Saturday, beating the invader over the 20 mile route.

Chesty Joie grabbed the lead at 27 laps and was never headed. At the finish he had a lead of more than three laps over El Ouafi who was unequal to the burning pace set by the American. The time was one hour 52 minutes, 11 seconds. Ray's best mile was the third, which

STEUBENVILLE MAIL BANDITS GET $40,000

STEUBENVILLE, O., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—With finger prints found on a battered safe as their only clew, postoffice inspectors today were attempting to trace six men who stole several registered mail pouches, believed to have contained nearly $40,000 from the Steubenville postoffice last night.

POSTAL AIDE GAGGED

The money had been shipped from the Pittsburgh branch of the Federal Reserve Bank and is believed to have been a payroll consignment to a local industrial plant. It arrived Saturday night on a Pennsylvania Railroad train, trailed all the way, police believe, by a gang of bandits who apparently were familiar with the exact spot the money shipment was placed.

Burning their way into the safe with acetylene torches, the men, all masked, fled with the pouches about 9 o'clock last night, while Assistant Postmaster Charles Irwin, bound and gagged, looked on.

An hour later Irwin managed to free himself and reported the robbery.

BASEMENT WINDOW FORCED

About 7 o'clock Irwin, making an unexpected call at his office, noticed that the lights in the main mailing room were burning. When he went to investigate two men with drawn guns confronted him. They tied his hands and feet, placed a gag in his mouth and then turned to aid their companions in looting the safe.

Solitaire Player Found Dead At Table

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Still holding the last card he played in a game of solitaire, August Maul, 72, was found dead last night in a club where he was accustomed to play cards with friends.

He was discovered by a younger brother, Albert, and another man, sitting at a card table in the darkened room reaching to place a card on one of the piles he had dealt.

By JAMES J. LONG

He is one of the best guards in the country, but had to be shifted to fill the big hole in the middle of the line.

Secrist looked good at end for W. & J. and Robinson, carrying the load of team leadership, punting and passing, looked like a man who would stand out if given the support of a stronger team. Jap Douds, despite his many injuries, played a gallant and effective game as usual.

CALLING any year an off-season where Notre Dame is concerned, on the strength of a slip or two in the early part of the campaign, is much like taking it for granted that Babe Ruth is going to have an off day because he strikes out in his first time at bat.

The Bambino is likely to hit the next two or three out of the state, and by the same token Notre Dame is apt to come back and smear all the carefully-compiled dope of a thousand experts by walloping an opponent against which her chances have been said to be nil.

Knute Rockne

THERE was a sick Army mule and a ruined perfect-season prospect Saturday night to attest that Knute Rockne has lost none of his uncanny ability as a wonder worker and that Notre Dame still is breeding football stars and unconquerable spirit. The triumph of the "Fighting Irish" over the hitherto unbeaten Soldiers ranks as one of the greatest feats credited to any team this season, and adds evidence to the heap piled up through the years that Rockne and his school form a combination that is never beaten until a game is over, even in an off-year. The fact that the Army had the ball close to the Notre Dame goal line when the final quarter expired does not necessarily mean that the Generals would have scored. The last few yards or feet always are the hardest.

Victorious Tartans Prime for Irish

week. Now it is Iowa that can look forward to the victor's laurels. Looks like some of those vaunted Buckeye sophomores still have a bit to learn about varsity football.

The owners of the Albany Eastern League baseball club are rushing madly around seeking the little bird that put the idea of staging the Tech-Georgetown game in their minds. The boys were taken for a little less than 25 grand. They had to have 12,000 at the ball game to break even and when they drew less than 6,000 paid admissions, away went a year's profit. They were thrown for more losses than Georgetown.

Westminster won a Conference game from Bethany, tripping up the Bisons 6 to 0, but the big surprise of the day in Western Pennsylvania was the scoreless tie that Frank Wolfe's Waynesburg Yellow Jackets played with Grove City. For all the day was bad and the gridiron treacherous, the Crimson certainly figured to beat the Jackets, though as Andy Kerr will tell you, a fighting team is never beaten, at least, it never is beaten badly.

Thiel deserves a lot of credit for holding the unbeaten St. Canisius varsity to a 12-6 score. The Luthrans weren't conceded much of a chance against the New York 'aters, and the fact that they held Canisius to a close score is further indication of the ability of Tommy Holleran as a coach.

West Virginia continued to knock all opposition stiff, and playing its second game in four days, took Oklahoma A. & M. for a merry-go-round ride at Morgantown. The more the Mountaineers win, the better they make Davis-Elkins look.

GENEVA-ALLEGHENY TODAY

Davis-Elkins removed Bill Donohoe's St. Francis eleven as a tri-state unbeaten team by running up a 40-0 score on the Loretta, Pa., Irishmen at Cumberland. Penn State ran over George Washington at State College, and Bucknell came back well after the defeats at the hands of Gettysburg and Villa Nova, to trim Lehigh. Villa Nova and Temple drew, though Temple was credited with outplaying the Struhledher clan.

Today, at Beaver Falls, Geneva and Allegheny meet in a Beaver Valley classic, and with the valley full of Armistice Day celebrators will play to a fine crowd.

Geneva has been beaten twice, losing to Bucknell and Grove City. Allegheny was taken into camp by Pitt, Grove City and Dartmouth and have been tied by Thiel.

This stacks up as a battle of backfields, with the Allegheny combination of Berger-Garback-Verano-Eighmy duelling the Covenanter quartet of Knapik-Preece-Ewing and Pinkerton.

The Panthers will also drill today, as the squad is due to entrain for Nebraska Wednesday. Workouts will be held at Stagg Field, Chicago and in Omaha en route.

Duquesne, idle on Saturday, plays Thiel in the Stadium, while Pitt and Tech are both out of town. Elmer Layden arrived back in town from New York this morning, where he saw his alma mater beat the Army, and will work the Dukes hard this afternoon.

Armistice Day Brings Veterans and Memories

Armistice Day is officially celebrated today, its ceremonial aspect including the reunion and parade of the One Hundred and Eleventh Infantry, Three Hundred and Twentieth, Fifteenth Engineers, Marines and other organizations which carried a great number of Pittsburgh district boys to the defense of the ideals of America.

It is altogether fitting that Armistice Day should be a day of re-union for these, our younger veterans, since it marks the cessation of a great struggle in which they were counted among the victors. They meet now, 10 years after the Armistice, not as conquerors, but as buddies eager for the handclasp and the friendly greeting of each to his old pal. They meet to put on the uniform of memory as well as the khaki symbolical of their great service to their country. They meet to sing again "Over There," "You're In the Army Now" and other rollicking songs. And always in the background to them will be "There's a Long, Long Trail a Winding."

The long, long trail still is winding into the land of dreams and into the land of actuality. It has carried the boys of the One Hundred and Eleventh 10 years nearer to the end than they were when they visioned their early return to homes and firesides. Ten years further into a mellowed view of their stupendous sacrificial endeavor.

Armistice Day and the service units, a salute to you!

Two Shadows Foretell That Christmas Looms

Christmas is coming! That startling bit of news breaks upon us with greater sudden ness than usual. Postmaster Gosser and the elysian Toy World intrude upon our reveries about Thanksgiving to tell us that it really is a fact that Christmas is coming.

Mr. Gosser advises us that certain requirements, which he details, as to packing and wrapping gifts intended for the mailbags of the honorable Mr. Santa Claus, must be followed or they may never get into that capacious express car having reindeer as the motive power. These regulations have been published in the newspapers, but if you have not read them the postoffice will gladly supply the information.

Toy World already has opened its gates to the kiddies and it behooves the younger element among them to go early to the big Christmas shows. Later they may have to fight for their chance against youngsters of 55 to 85.

Health Conquers

When he won this cup, establishing himself amateur champion of the United States for the fourth time, Bobby Jones defeated the English amateur champion, T. P. Perkins.

The nerves live on the healthy blood supply of the body.

To be cheerful and efficient, be HEALTHY.

You need not smile always, for you cannot THINK or do your best as you smile.

When Bobby Jones takes in hand his favorite putter that he calls "Calamity Jane," measures carefully the conditions of the putt, and "holes out," there is no smile on his face.

He saves this smile for moments of relaxation. The rest of the time he is in earnest.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

TO WHAT sort of a gallery do you play?

To some certain person or group of persons?

Not to afford them more pleasure, but to give them a favorable impression of yourself is what you play for, isn't it?

That means you are selfish in most of your actions where others are concerned.

And this very selfishness is the cause of your limited success.

It is easy to explain—you are not sincere.

Always play acting one way or another for what you can get out of it.

Don't you know that insincerity never brings results?

It does not ring true and is easily understood by the onlooker.

If your efforts to help others were honest you would derive joy from giving happiness.

But such an attitude is not yours.

You are seeking your own pleasure—you don't want to be hampered by the thought of what some one else might prefer.

You perform many kind acts with little satisfaction, because you are not genuine in your wish to give pleasure to others.

God's Wondrous Works

(Job 37: 14-24.

HEARKEN unto this, O Job: stand still, and consider the wondrous works of God.

Dost thou know when God disposed them, and caused the light of his cloud to shine?

Dost thou know the balancings of the clouds, the wondrous works of him which is perfect in knowledge?

How thy garments are warm, when he quieteth the earth by the south wind?

Hast thou with him spread out the sky, which is strong, and as a molten looking glass?

Teach us what we shall say unto him; for we cannot order our speech by reason of darkness.

Shall it be told him that I speak? if a man speak, surely he shall be swallowed up.

And now men see not the bright light which is in the clouds: but the wind passeth, and cleanseth them.

Fair weather cometh out of the north: with God is terrible majesty.

Touching the Almighty, we cannot find him out: he is excellent in power, and in judgment, and in plenty of justice: he will not afflict.

Men do therefore fear him: he respecteth not any that are wise of heart.

How About It, Men?

IT TOOK five policemen to subdue Mrs. George Sherman, a New York stenographer, who insisted on accompanying her husband, sent to jail for driving when intoxicated.

It is the old story of the "nut-brown maid," one of the loveliest of early English poems, the story of a girl who followed her lover into banishment.

Can anybody produce a record of a man fighting five policemen for permission to follow his wife to jail?

Isn't It So?

By Elsie Robinson

HELEN GREEN is always talking about "back home." It's 17 years since Helen left Back Home and traveled 1,500 miles to marry Fred, but her heart is still there. If you mention cooking she'll tell you how much better they do it Back Home. If you discuss road work, or child-raising, or toe dancing, Helen will immediately quote the superior methods which are used Back Home.

Everything is bigger and better Back Home, according to homesick Helen. It has pretty well spoiled her life with Fred, of course. She has never been able to give more than a small portion of her interest and affection to her new home, and she has always made Fred feel that he was entertaining an unwilling and martyrized stranger.

This is a most unfortunate state of affairs. Yet, oddly enough, Helen is actually proud of her homesickness. Ever since she was a little girl she was taught that fine people were passionately attached to their immediate families and towns and suffered greatly if taken from them. She would feel disloyal to her training if she were not homesick. She has made a fetish of it. In reality it has become a dark wall about her life—blinding her to all the great horizon of human interest.

Mistaken loyalty to a narrow love does that to all of us. We're taught, as Helen was taught, that such intense devotion is fine, but it rarely is—usually it's more of a blight than a blessing. The spirit that cannot mix happily save with its little circle of kin isn't a healthy spirit—it's a crippled spirit. The spirit that cannot see any good in other states, other nations, other peoples isn't a wholesome, progressive spirit. It's a narrow, bigoted thing—stupid and perverted. Spirits like that are a handicap to any country.

WE SHOULD NORMALLY OUTGROW OUR NARROW EARLY ATTACHMENTS AS A CHICKEN OUTGROWS ITS SHELL. WE SHOULD COME TO FEEL THAT ALL PEOPLE ARE OUR KIN, ALL LOCALITIES OUR HOME.

And we should train our children in this same attitude. We should make them feel able to do without us and eager to seek new fields. Above all, we should teach them that homesickness is not a virtue—it is a vicious vice, as wicked as any other form of cowardice or self-indulgence.

MAPS

By Garrett P. Serviss

MANY readers never consult a map. They do not know what they miss. Homes filled with plenty of books (especially novels) often have no atlas; much less a globe. Yet there is deeply implanted in all of us the desire to know the geography of things. One can hardly read a simple story without involuntarily creating in the mind a map of the locality concerned. In such cases it is not very important that it is a pseudo map which is thus formed. It is not strictly essential that the reader should see the scene exactly as it presented itself to the writer, although the interest of the tale is sometimes greatly heightened if the author has taken the trouble to offer a chart of the imaginary region where his action takes place—as Stevenson did in "Treasure Island." Writers of murder stories know the value of charts and plans in fixing the attention of the reader and preventing him from becoming confused among the imperfect and inconsistent representations of localities which he is sure to make mentally for himself if left without guidance.

The matter becomes of immensely greater importance when the subject is real history or exploration, past or current. Good clear maps are more essentially useful than pictures as illustrations of books of history or exploration, and, the more popular the style of such books, the greater the need of maps and charts. They not only save the reader from having to consult his general atlas, but they present details that no general atlas could contain.

On the other hand, current history as read in the newspapers calls frequently for the atlas. As the intercommunications of the wide world increase, general pictures of countries and oceans which every educated person carries in his memory do not suffice to locate important occurrences, such as a battle, a shipwreck, a geographical discovery, or the swiftly shifting scenes and too frequent disasters of aerial adventure. Recourse should be had to atlases and globes. Without having tried it, no one can appreciate the immense increase of satisfaction that a reader derives from following the daily news with such aids. A fullness of meaning is thus often given to foreign intelligence that will be almost entirely lost if clear pictures of its geographical bearings and relations are not thus presented to the mind.

One of the most important international projects now under way is that of the "millionth map of the world," discussed again at the recent geographical congress in Cambridge, England. When this work is completed (and from lack of governmental interest its progress is discouragingly slow), we shall have a map of the whole earth on a scale of about sixteen miles to the inch. For 30 years geographers have been urging the different civilized countries to do this important work. But the project has no political pull. The hands of our Geological Survey, which has the work in charge for the United States, are tied by lack of money—in the richest country in the world!

There is also a project for an airman's map of the world, to show the surface of the globe on a scale of about three miles to the inch. Think of what could be shown on a map like that.

I have often urged the use by automobile excursionists of the charts of the Geological Survey for the information which they give about the topography of the country traversed.

Tales That Are Told

The Hint

THE wayfarer paused outside the village butcher's and eyed the home-killed produce hungrily.

Presently the proprietor of the shop came bustling out, and the tramp spoke to him.

"I suppose you have joints and chops to suit all purses?" he ventured, with a disarming smile.

"Yes," said the butcher tersely.

"What have you to suit an empty purse, then?" beamed the other craftily.

But the butcher was equal to the occasion.

"The cold shoulder!" he snapped, as he turned away.

Time Flies

IT was little Willie's first ride in a railway train, and the succession of wonders had reduced him to a state of hysterical astonishment.

The train rounded a slight bend and, with a shriek from its whistle, plunged into a tunnel.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

OF course some cops in some towns like to get fresh with drivers, but then you got to admit the cop sometimes has got reason to complain, too. Some drivers are worse than some cops, most anybody will admit.

This here driver come into court all battered up. The judge looks him over and says, "Did you and this cop have some words about your driving?"

"Yes, sir."

"Tell us all about it."

"Well, his words I wouldn't repeat in the court, Your Honor, and my words I never got a chance to utter, because he started knocking the wind out of me as soon as I opened my mouth."

My Needs

WHAT are my needs?
These only:
Enough of song and sun.
New scenes when I grow lonely
And rest when work is done;
The strength for each day's task
Of honest, useful labor . . .
What more could mortal ask?

My needs . . . I reckon over
The list I thought complete,
And there one lack discover,
Surpassing all things sweet.
My needs? But futile pleasures
Would all the others prove
Without this crown of treasures,

New York Day by Day
by
O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Lay abed distressed over a flood of bills but came a note from William S. Hart to visit him at his Horseshoe ranch. And recalled a year ago this day was troubled more than ever in my life and for foolish reasons, so up, singing merrily in the bath.

It come on to rain in torrents and Marshal Neilan, the director, came and we sat watching at the window and recalled a typical Webster cartoon thrill of wading barefoot in the gutter after a fresh spring shower. Out after the rain and put in to see Russell Patterson, the illustrator, who was away.

In the evening to a dinner party and sitting next a lady harpist tried to see if her fair fingers were calloused from plucking strings but could not and too shy to ask. Then to "Goin' Home," a stirring play, and talked to Antoinette Perry, so well remembered in Warfield's "The Music Master." To bed late.

The classy clientele among Broadway theaters and cafes has long been referred to as the "carriage trade." Nothing is so swank to New Yorkers as the old-fashioned horse-drawn carriage. When a Wall Street operator has a heavy loss he "takes one on the nose."

Broadway will have—Parkins, my horse—a block long soda and sandwich counter this spring. It is planned to have an entrance on the Main Stem running through to Sixth avenue. Sixty clerks will serve 98 varieties of soft drinks and even a large variety of sandwiches.

New York dog fanciers for the first time in 10 years saw a litter of pug dog puppies last week. They were on display in a dog shop window and were imported from California. They sold like the hot cake is supposed to sell. But doesn't.

Harry Craddock is supposed to have made the last legal cocktail in America at the old Holland House bar and then removing his apron and roaching his hair went up the gangplank the same night for England. He now reigns at the Savoy in London.

And the man reputed to have made the first illegal cocktail in America, timing it a second after the law was in effect—a commentary on what he considered another travesty of justice—now lectures on alcoholic horrors.

Black silk shirts with collars to match and snow white ties have hit Broadway, but with only mild enthusiasm. The sartorial notion is reported a product of Hollywood. Actor stuff.

For the college cut-ups they are showing an overcoat of snow white fur as a successor to the raccoon coat. And what a break for a world-weary moth!

In downtown office buildings at noon appear venerable aproned women with ponderous baskets of fruits, candies, chewing gum and such to hawk among stenographers, clerks and office boys. They are known as Apple Marys and extend credit to all. Nearly all prosper in this inconspicuous calling.

New York has more than 100 newspaper stands and small shops operated by the blind. Many are said to make $5,000 a year. The public invariably and deservedly overpays the blind.

In a Texas trade magazine: "New York is overrun with slick newspaper columnists who seem to think they know it all, writing this way today and that way tomorrow. They are the eels of journalism."

RIGHT ANGLES

By Alexander Cairns

AS a piece of blue ribbon fiasco consider the campaign of Gen. Braddock against the French and Indians. He led two regiments of British regulars dressed in gaiters, scarlet tunics and conceit.

Franklin warned the snob General that the red men might attack from ambush and that he should send a hundred friendly Indians in advance scouting. They were there for the purpose. But Braddock smiled indulgently and condescendingly.

A few miles from the fort the Indians attack. The officers with the pack train of bright, new uniforms are wiped out. The soldiers fall right and left. Braddock's secretary is killed. And the General is mortally wounded and he dies saying:

"Who would have thought it?"

It looks as though the man had been specifically sent to strut the stage a mortal hour and demonstrate the truth of the biblical maxim, "Pride goeth before a fall."

But the fiasco has other elements than pride. The worst piece of asinity was stubbornness. In the days of Lincoln the farmers of Illinois would have called it bullheadedness.

It is doubtful whether humility ever loses anything worth the winning. To be teachable is the alpha of attainment. And philosophers may learn things in a kindergarten. Had some Uncas of the tribe scalped the General, the trophy could have been well utilized. It might have been hung up in the Smithsonian with a card reading, "The Scalp of a Conceited Ass."

The author of the "First Civilized American" says of Braddock, "A man less fitted for his mission was never selected by any ponderous governmental machine." And that's putting it midly. To call the man a mule is to compliment him.

But the General supplemented his two virtues of pride and stubborness with a third which the World War popularized in the term "unpreparedness."

Braddock lacked 150 wagons to cart his nonsense and Franklin provided them by taxing his own personal bank account. The General knew nothing of Indian warfare and was like a baby among rattlesnakes. He chose a foolish way of suicide for himself and murder for his men. He might have found it more painless to jump into the Atlantic while crossing from England.

The great philosopher of Galilee said something about the wise man who wants to build a house and first of all sits down to count the cost. Braddock might have consulted that authority of preparedness. With wise men, thought precedes action; with fools, action precedes thought.

That's a poor benediction on life, "Who would have thought it?"

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

THERE are discussions going on as to whether or not women propose.

"Well, you see it's like this.

We don't exactly ask them to please marry us. But we do get the idea into their heads and then, while it is hatching we treat them with extreme tenderness and consideration. When the idea is born, we nurse it with great care, and the first thing we know, rather the first thing they know, it is a great idea, growing strong and howling lustily.

The next step is the engagement. Then everybody is taken in on the secret and the man is congratulated until he feels that he has done something very fine. No woman ever discourages him in this idea.

Before he comes out of the daze he hears the faint tinkle tinkle of wedding bells—and all is well.

As well as could be expected.

It's a question as to just what a man should do these days, when he sees a lady in distress. A New York gentleman saw a lady struggle against the iron grip of a big hemale and he rushed in to save her. He got her loose and she ran away. He got arrested for his pains as the "lady" had just stolen quite a bill of goods and it was the store detective who held her.

In Chicago a man struck a woman and she screamed. It was dark, but the moonlight showed the couple near the porch of a house on Sunnyside avenue.

"Grab That Man," shouted the onlookers who ran out on their porches when they heard the scream. "He's beating the woman, arrest him!"

These are only a couple of reasons why chivalry seems to be waning.

"Women should know," says a public health expert, "that beauty is a fragile thing, and disappears rapidly when exposed to the lights of modern night life."

Like money in that respect.

Women when they lose beauty, can fall back upon intelligence, wit and charm. All a man has to do if he is broke, in night life, is talk a night club hostess out of her money.
